LINDBERGHS FIGHT GALE; SAFE

DRY CASES JAM COURT, REPORT OF WICKERSHAM

81 Per Cent of Total in Connecticut.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—How prohibition cases dominate "the whole character of the federal criminal prosecutions," as found in a study of federal courts in Connecticut, has been reported to President Hoover by the Wickersham commission on law observance and enforcement.

The report, the eighth in the series to be presented by the now disbanded commission, was made public today. It was entitled a "progress report" on the study of the thirteen federal districts in which cases for a three year period will be reported on in detail later. The chapter on Connecticut, where the gathering of data has been completed, was termed a "tentative analysis."

Prohibition cases in the Connecticut district increased from 69 per cent of the total number of cases in the first year of the study, the commission reported, to 81 per cent in the study's third year which ended June 30, 1930. The total increase in cases had been furnished by prohibition cases, it was explained, other types remained stationary.

Six Reasons for Volume.

The power of selecting cases for prosecution exercised by the government attorneys and the summary disposition of the cases were credited in the report as being the chief factors in making the percentage of prohibition cases both so large.

"They furnish the great majority of those as opposed to imprisonment," the report stated. "Also a majority of the cases are disposed of the same day that the indictment or information is filed. Almost 90 per cent of the proceedings are by information in prohibition cases as opposed to 8 per cent for all other cases. The great majority of prohibition cases are charged under the minor category of possession. The punishment of all prohibition offenders actually imprisoned in local jails, contrasted with the commitment of over half of other offenders in federal penitentiaries."

Few Cases Contested.

The analysis found that the proceedings in the federal courts in Connecticut were of a "summary nature," with few of the procedural delays "which commonly are thought to be inherent in and peculiar to the system. Contested cases and jury trials were found negligible. Due to the selection of cases for prosecution, trials were speedy and sure, only five acquittals and 83 dismissals being noted among the 740 cases studied."

United States commissioners were found exercising a winnowing out process which assisted the speeding up.

"Dads," such as have come into prominence in the Capone case in Chicago, were discovered in large number, the commission says, and "there is evidence of a large uncontrolled discretion, exercised off the record, either by the commissioner or the federal enforcement agencies, by which possible contested cases are eliminated or prosecuted under less serious charges."

Jury Report Coming.

When compelled, said the report, the study will show what proportion of the total number of cases in the 13 typical districts are furnished by violations of the various laws; the various procedural devices employed, in particular "the extent to which those ancient institutions," the petit and grand jury, "have fallen into desuetude."

Again the commission referred to the practice of dickering with offenders.

"The third type of data will be of major interest," the report stated. "Here will be shown the actual dispositions of the many classes of cases. These dispositions will give some measure of the extent to which the contested case is giving rise to species of standardized treatment and summary administration.

To Report on "Bargains."

"They may indicate inferentially the presence in various districts of the 'bargain day' practices in criminal cases about which so much comment has been made and the extent to which the prosecutor has used a highly selective process in choosing criminal cases for prosecution. Especially when combined with the second type of data they may show the extent to which standardized treatment and summary administration have given to these courts in criminal cases the characteristics of police or magistrates' courts."

In one of the thirteen districts, the northern district of Illinois, which includes Chicago, will be one of these shortly reported on in detail. The collection and checking of case data in this district was completed July 1, it was said.

Egg Surplus Is Reduced on Dr. B. Reitman

Last night was a big night at the Dill Pickle club, 18 Tooker place, rendezvous for Tower Town bohemians, and a crowd of about 300 men and women packed the place. Present were proponents of various "isms," coatless radicals, plain curiosity seekers, and a couple of bandits. Also present were Dr. Ben L. Reitman, author and hobo benefactor, and Roxy Hinkley.

The reason for the heavy attendance was the expected appearance of a young woman known as "Billie." She was to offer herself as Exhibit A in a solemn problem. She was to inquire what course should be pursued by an unmarried expectant mother—an operation, suicide, or permit the birth of the child.

Stage fright evidently seized the young woman. She failed to appear. The crowd showed disappointment. At this juncture Dr. Reitman saved the day. He mounted the rostrum as substitute Exhibit A. He spoke lengthily. He solved the problem.

Reitman Plastered with Eggs.

Mr. Hinkley followed Dr. Reitman on the platform. He, too, would solve the problem. By this time the audience indicated impatience and a few hoots echoed from the back of the room. Mr. Hinkley hesitated and once more Dr. Reitman saved the day. He rose in defense of his colleague and began a eulogy of him.

Some one in the rear of the room stood up. He went through the motions of a baseball pitcher. An oval shaped object left his hand and sped like an arrow. It was an egg. It was rotten. It splashed against the wall, alongside the good doctor's head.

In another moment the air was full of missiles. Some were eggs, some were cantaloupes, all in doubtful stages of maturity. There were even fish. All sped toward Dr. Reitman. Some missed, but some hit, and for a few seconds Dr. Reitman was dodging like an African dodger at the circus. He didn't wait to complete his eulogy. He ducked through the door slightly ahead of a barrage of fruit and vegetables. The meeting broke up.

And Mr. Hinkley Gets Beating.

Mr. Hinkley also retreated. He drove north in his car with Miss Myrtle Conn of Genoa City, Wis. At Surf street and Broadway, in front of his home, two men in another car stopped him. "We heard your lecture," they announced.

They forced Hinkley into their machine, but didn't molest his companion. They drove him to an outlying spot, robbed him, and beat him up.

Dr. Reitman was reached at his home, told of the holdup, and asked about the egging. "Yes, it's true," he admitted. "It was terrible." He related the story of the big night in detail. "By the way," he concluded, "don't forget I'm the author of a new book—'The Second Oldest Profession.'"

URGE BRITAIN TO TAKE OVER BEER, WHISKY TRADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 2. — Recommendations that all public houses—drinking saloons—and breweries should be taken over by the state, and that all brewers, bartenders and barmaids should be classed as civil servants, are among conclusions which authoritative political experts today forecast to be included in the report of the royal commission on licensing, which is expected to be presented to the home secretary this month.

It is believed that such sensational recommendations, coupled with differing views of the various commissioners, may make the Labor cabinet's position somewhat difficult. Under the system suggested for state control the profits would go to the state after the cost of purchasing the businesses now privately owned had been met. But if losses on beer sales were incurred the taxpayers would have to bear the brunt.

It is reported that the commission unanimously proposes that police powers for supervision and raiding of night clubs be considerably extended. Fashionable West End clubs and workingmen's institutes would be affected by these proposals.

Buys a Coffin, Ends Life in It, Harp on Breast

Tenants of the building at 4657 Malden street noticed that Gus Johnson, 45 years old, had been morose ever since he lost most of his savings in a bank failure a few months ago. He was the janitor of the building and had bachelor quarters in a basement room.

On July 22 Johnson went to the Hursen undertaking parlors at 929 Belmont avenue and bought a plain black casket. It is nothing unusual for living persons to make such preparations for death, employés of the company said. Johnson paid for the casket, for the embalming of his body, for the services of a sexton in digging a grave in a lot which he had purchased in Graceland cemetery, and made all of the other arrangements for a funeral. The casket was delivered to him that evening.

He went about his duties as usual last week. Yesterday tenants smelled gas and after tracing it to his basement room, called the police. Patrolmen Sven Peterson and Ellsworth Suckow of the Town Hall station broke down the locked door.

Johnson lay dead in his black casket. A small harp lay on his breast. Beside the harp was a book of war adventures. The jets of the gas plate in the place were all wide open.

On a dresser lay the receipted bill for the casket and funeral expenses. Beside it was a note written partly in English and partly in Swedish.

Police deciphered enough of it to learn that Johnson wished to leave all his possessions to a Frances Lanters, whom he called "my one and only friend."

POLICEMAN IN CAR WITH GIRL IS SHOT RESISTING BANDIT

Policeman Lawrence Welsh, 27 years old, was wounded in the left thigh early this morning when he exchanged shots with one of two bandits who attempted to rob him and his companion, Miss Annie Pfeisinger, 22 years old, in front of her home at 5348 South Rockwell street. Welsh, in civilian clothes, and Miss Pfeisinger were sitting in his car when an automobile containing four men drew alongside.

Two alighted, and one of them, flashing a gun, ordered Welsh to hold up his hands. The policeman fired at him instead, and the gunman returned several shots. One bullet passed through the car door and into his thigh. Welsh was taken to the German Deaconess hospital. He lives at 5428 South Maplewood avenue and is assigned to the Stanton avenue district.

Steal $1,200 of Maid's Bonds from Doctor's Home

Burglars yesterday morning broke into the home of Dr. Harry S. Gradle at 154 Vine avenue, Highland Park, and stole $1,200 in real estate bonds belonging to a maid. The thieves got in through a rear window while the Gradles and the domestic were asleep.

EDISON BETTER; EXPECT HIM TO RETURN TO WORK

Inventor Rallies; Has Good Day.

BULLETIN.

West Orange, N. J., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Dr. Hubert S. Howe, physician to Thomas A. Edison, announced in a bulletin at 11 p. m. that the inventor had retired and was resting comfortably. Mr. Edison's condition was described as satisfactory. Charles Edison, the inventor's son, told reporters his father was "feeling very chipper" before retiring.

New York, Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Improvement in the condition of Thomas A. Edison today led his private physician, Dr. Hubert S. Howe, to announce tonight at 9 o'clock that if the inventor continued to improve he saw no reason why Mr. Edison should not be able to return to his work.

Dr. Howe remained overnight at the bedside of his 84 year old patient, who collapsed suddenly Saturday afternoon at his home in Llewellyn Park, West Orange, N. J., and all members of Mr. Edison's immediate family, except a daughter, were within call.

Dr. Howe admitted that Mr. Edison's condition remained "critical," although he thought there was no immediate danger.

Cause of Collapse.

He disclosed that Mr. Edison's collapse was due directly to the inventor's recent curtailment of his diet to relieve a stomach disorder believed to be due to gastric ulcers. Because Mr. Edison is suffering also from diabetes and from Bright's disease, his physician earlier in the day had been quoted as saying that Mr. Edison would never return to his laboratories.

Mr. Edison, however, according to his son, Charles Edison, said he expected to return to work as soon as he regains his strength.

"Mr. Edison has been improving steadily for the last two weeks, with the exception of the collapse of Saturday," read a statement issued by Dr. Howe at 9 p. m. "If he continues to show the same improvement I see no reason to believe that he will not be able to return to his work.

Suffers from Complications.

"Mr. Edison is suffering from diabetes, Bright's disease, and a stomach condition which may be ulcers of the stomach," the physician continued. "The stomach condition causes him considerable annoyance, but it is not dangerous and must be constantly watched."

Dr. Howe said he believed Mr. Edison had been undernourished for some time because of his insistence upon a diet of milk. For three years Mr. Edison had restricted his diet to two glasses of milk every two hours, and in the last six weeks he had limited himself to one glass of milk every two hours.

The physician said that unless there were complications he would leave Llewellyn Park tomorow and would not return for several days. Another physician will remain constantly at Mr. Edison's bedside.

"Feels 105 Per Cent Better."

Charles Edison went into the sick room soon after his father had awakened and had finished his breakfast of tapioca pudding and milk. On a piece of paper which he handed to the inventor, who is deaf, the son wrote:

"You look 100 per cent better."

Mr. Edison smiled and said:

"I'm 105 per cent better."

While Mr. Edison continued to rally, inquiries kept pouring in from friends and sympathizers throughout the world, including Henry Ford, at Dearborn, Mich., and Harvey Firestone, at Akron, O., both intimate friends of the inventor.

Squall Cools City, Capsizes Boats on Lake

A sudden squall, which tore down trees and endangered boating parties on the lake, struck the city shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday. It also brought relief from the heat which reached a maximum of 93 degrees at 4 o'clock. At 7 o'clock the mercury had dropped 15 degrees, to 78, and at midnight an unofficial thermometer registered 73.

The relief is due to remain today, according to C. A. Donnel, government forecaster. Temperatures probably will not go above 80 degrees, he said, and it will be fair by afternoon.

Crowds Caught in Storm.

Thousands of bathers were at the beaches, and other thousands in the parks when the storm broke. Skies clouded rapidly and the rain came down in torrents.

A high wind accompanied the downpour, and swept the lake into dangerous seas. Scores of men and women in small craft put in to shore hastily, and only two accidents were reported. In one a small sailboat overturned off the Edgewater Beach hotel. Its occupants were rescued by a speedboat. Their names were not learned.

Three Others Are Rescued.

In the other two boys and a girl were thrown into the lake when their sail rigged canoe capsized off the Lee street beach, Evanston. The three, Bert Trabert, 17 years old, 715 Judson avenue, Evanston; and Kenneth Weld, 16 years old, and his sister, Eunice, 15, of 557 Green Bay road, Glencoe, were saved by Robert Houston, a life guard, and the crew of a passing motor cruiser.

The north side caught the brunt of the storm. In Lincoln park a group of picnickers was imperiled when a tree at the Fullerton parkway entrance was blown over. An unidentified girl was dragged out of the way of the tree by Policeman Kindlund. Another tree was broken in Wrightwood avenue at Clark street, but telephone wires prevented its fall.

Fatal Undertow Ended.

In addition to bringing relief from the heat, the storm, with its change of wind, ended the treacherous undertow which claimed five lives along the north shore and several others at city beaches during the last week. As a result the Glencoe beach, which had been closed, was reopened, and restrictions at other beaches were removed.

Before the break in the heat conditions in the city were similar to those which made July the hottest month in ten years and the fifth hottest month in the sixty years in which records have been kept here. The average temperature for July was 76.4 degrees, Forecaster Donnel said. In July, 1921, the average was 79.4.

Two Chicagoans Drowned.

Two Chicagoans were drowned on outings. John Verba, 43 years old, of 3302 West 47th place, father of six children, fell into the Des Plaines river one mile northeast of Lemont while fishing. Efforts to revive him failed.

The other victim, Frank H. Andrus, 38 years old, of 2300 North Maplewood avenue, was drowned in Delavan lake, Wisconsin, when high waves capsized a boat in which he and two other men were starting out to fish. Andrus' brother, Joseph, and Stanley Bandera, 2732 North Artesian avenue, were thrown into the water with him, but managed to cling to the bottom of the overturned boat until help arrived.

Lloyd George Passes Good Night; on Recovery Road

LONDON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Former Prime Minister David Lloyd George spent a comfortable night last night and his physicians today expressed themselves as satisfied with the progress he has made since he underwent an operation last week for a kidney disorder.

TIE UP PLANE IN CHURCHILL ON HUDSON BAY

Town Turns Out to Greet Couple.

A Day with the Flyers

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh arrive in Churchill, a port on Hudson bay, on vacation flight to Tokio after 751 mile dash from Moose Factory, Ont., where they landed right on time Saturday.

Hugh Herndon Jr. and Clyde Pangborn hop from Chita for Khabarovsk, Siberia, after 1,700 mile flight from Omsk. At Chita the American 'round the world flyers had reached the half way mark and were a full day behind the record set by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty.

Reg L. Robbins and Harold S. Jones, Texas flyers, reach Fairbanks, Alaska, on a nonstop flight from Seattle, Wash., for Tokio. Take on fuel while in the air and continue 5,100 mile flight to Japan over Bering sea.

CHURCHILL, Man., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Zooming across the storm lashed Hudson bay shore country with the precision of an automatic mechanism, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh came down on the blue waters of Churchill harbor at 6:50 p. m. [Chicago daylight time] after a flight of 751.5 miles from Moose Factory, Ont.

The Lindberghs completed their journey over the treacherous stretch of uninhabited country in the fast time of eight hours and fifty minutes.

Again Surprise World.

A crowd of 2,000 persons, Churchill's entire population, was out to welcome them. Mrs. Lindbergh waved a greeting to the throng, of which scores of persons had gathered on the rocky shores of the port bay before dawn.

Again the Lindberghs surprised the outside world. Yesterday the silence of their radio provoked apprehension over their safe landing at Moose Factory from Ottawa, and it was not until the Associated Press dispatched a plane to Moose Factory that definite word was obtained. Today in the face of weather which the Churchill radio operator described as stormy and suggested that it might cause them to land south of here, they maintained the high average of 85 miles an hour.

Greeted by Cheers.

A boat put out from shore to direct Col. Lindbergh to the mooring place where the pontoon-fitted machine would be sheltered from the treacherous rip tide which has already carried two planes to destruction while tied up at Churchill. The flyer and his wife were smiling and appeared in fine fettle after their flight along the southeast shore of Hudson bay.

Officials of the dominion department of railways and canals, under whose supervision Churchill's new port is being built, welcomed Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh on behalf of the settlement. As a motor boat brought the two noted guests ashore, wild cheers and shouts arose. Tugs, steamboats and dredges whistled in a pandemonium of greeting.

Circles About Town.

For several minutes before landing the Lindbergh plane soared aloft, circling about the town, then swinging up and down along the inner harbor seeking a safe landing place. The flying colonel sped his machine along above the new dock and checked up closely on the water surface for obstructions before coming to a stop.

Soft spoken and smiling, Col. Lindbergh remarked on the bleak solitude of the country between Moose Factory and Churchill, but mentioned that the weather had not been as unfavorable as it appeared to observers.

Assured by the apparent security of the mooring place and seemingly anxious to tour about Churchill, Col. Lindbergh indicated he would remain over night before continuing on to Baker Lake, 377 miles north, on the west shore of Hudson bay.

Churchill's eleven women inhabitants, wives of government and railway officials, of professional men and the resident Anglican missionary, took Mrs. Lindbergh into their care after she had aided her husband in seeing that the plane was tied up shipshape.

On Time as Usual.

MOOSE FACTORY, Aug. 2—[By Associated Press Airplane to Coral Rapids, Ont.]—On time as usual, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh

New Style Fur Coats Go on Sale at New Low Prices

Time was when a fur coat was a fur coat. The furrier used to sew together a lot of pelts, fit in some sleeves, add a lining, presto!—a fur coat. It didn't matter much if it made a women look twice her actual size. The main idea was warmth. Style, except, perhaps, in the choice of fur, was given little consideration.

Recent years have brought a change. Furriers began to give some thought to the matter of fit. Last year's styles went so far as to suggest a figure. This year the figure is there, and no mistaking. Coats, moreover, are a trifle longer than last year and collars are smaller. This year's garments are full of style.

All this requires additional tailoring and more skillful workmanship. It costs the furrier a whole lot more to produce this year's model, but you'd never know it from the price tags. The extra cost is more than offset by the decline in the cost of pelts.

Chicago stores now are showing these new styles. Veterans in the industry are authority for the statement that prices are the lowest they have been in a generation. It's a good time to shop and see how much fur coat you can get for so little money.

Chicago Tribune

brought their plane down at this isolated trading post at 2 p. m. [Chicago daylight time] yesterday, but the signals of their radio set were too weak to inform the outside world of their safety.

The faint radio signals were explained by Col. Lindbergh to Herbert Clegg who arrived here today from North Bay, Ont., in a plane chartered by the Associated Press and talked with the Flying Colonel before the Lindberghs departed at 10 a. m. for Churchill.

Col. Lindbergh smiled when Clegg recalled that his landing here yesterday was the exact hour at which he had anticipated arriving when he left Ottawa.

Lindy Goes Barefooted.

While the outside world became puzzled and later apprehensive after the signals from the Lindbergh plane ceased at 1:15 p. m. yesterday, Col. Lindbergh, barefoot, shy, and reserved, captured the admiration of the residents of Moose Factory, a tiny settlement of half a dozen frame houses.

When he and Mrs. Lindbergh arrived he said they had had a good trip from Ottawa and were enjoying their air vacation trip very much. Then he busied himself with his plane, occupying most of the afternoon with the task of refueling.

He transferred four drums of gasoline to the plane's tanks and had to transfer the supply in five gallon cans. While at this job the Flying Colonel walked around in his bare feet; in fact he stayed barefoot all afternoon.

Walk Around Island.

The Lindberghs stayed at the home of the district manager of the Hudson's Bay company, who though absent had turned his quarters over to them. They were entertained at dinner by the post manager of the Hudson's Bay trading post at Moose Factory, one of the oldest settlements in Canada. After dinner the Lindberghs walked around the island on which Moose Factory is situated.

When Col. Lindbergh was told that no messages were received from his plane after 1:15 p. m. yesterday he said he would test his radio set again on today's flight in an effort to communicate with the government station at Churchill.

Moose Factory is without means of communication with the outside world except by plane or boat.

A recapitulation today showed the Lindberghs, leaving Ottawa at 9:49 a. m. yesterday, covered the 461 miles to Moose Factory in four hours and eleven minutes, or an average of about 110 miles an hour.

Surprised Over "Fuss."

New York, Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Friends and business associates of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh here professed great surprise today at the "fuss" made over his failure to radio word of the arrival of himself and Mrs. Lindbergh at Moose Factory on their hop from Ottawa last night. The flyer's overnight silence on his whereabouts was accepted as a matter of course.

More than once during the course of his preparations for the admittedly hazardous trip here, Col. Lindbergh had taken occasion to warn friends expressing concern over his venture against becoming alarmed if he should fail to report his every landing on the flight.

He reminded them that it was to be a vacation flight, out and out, that he had no idea of fixing or attempting to maintain schedules over any part of the route, and that if he felt constrained to "loaf a bit" along the way that no anxiety need be entertained on the score. In fact, said the colonel, if he happened to fly over a particularly inviting lake or stream anywhere along the way he probably would put his plane down upon its surface and spend a day or two or a week enjoying its delights.

LINDBERGHS LAND AT CHURCHILL

Shaded line on map shows route Col. Lindbergh and his wife have taken on their vacation flight to Tokio. The couple yesterday flew from Moose Factory, Ontario, to Churchill, Manitoba, along the storm lashed coast of Hudson bay.

Upon landing they indicated that they would hop for Baker lake, 577 miles north, today. The dotted line indicates the route Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh will take to Nome, Alaska, from where they will fly to Tokio by "easy stages."

AVIATOR FLIES 300 MILES TO GET LINDY STORY

NORTH BAY, Ont., Aug. 2.—(AP)—There's an aviator in the north country who would be right at home in the city room of a newspaper office. His name is Pilot Herbert Clegg.

At dawn today Clegg and a mechanic left here for Moose Factory, directed by the Associated Press to obtain news of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh. Clegg made the flight of more than 300 miles in rapid time, got his story, took a few pictures, and started back.

Like a good reporter, he stopped at the nearest telephone booth—which, in this case, was the telegraph office at Coral Rapids, about 75 miles away. Clegg had foreseen the terrific storm ahead and was taking no chances on not getting the news through. Tonight the storm he had anticipated forced him down at Cochrane on the return flight. The first thing he did was to go to the phone and explain about the pictures.

HAWKS' RECORD MAY BE MARK AT CLEVELAND MEET

Cleveland, O., Aug. 2.—(AP)—The transcontinental speed Derby of the 1931 national air races, starting from Los Angeles and ending officially at Cleveland airport, may develop into an assault upon Capt. Frank Hawks' record of 12 hours and 25 minutes from Los Angeles to New York.

Headquarters of the air races, which will be held here Aug. 29 to Sept. 7, tonight announced that the free for all speed race will start from United airport, Los Angeles, and that from four to six planes, capable of making more than 225 miles an hour, will be entered. The race carries a purse of $10,000.

It is possible some of the pilots may register in here and continue to New York if they have a fair chance to beat Hawks' cross-country mark.

CHICAGOAN GETS THREE YEARS FOR THEFT OF AUTO

Billings, Mont., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Ray Porter, 23, of Chicago, who surrendered to police to bring about the arrest of two erstwhile women companions, has been sentenced to three years in the state prison for bringing a stolen automobile into Montana.

Porter gave himself up after Evangeline Nugent, 20, Chicago, and May Stuck, 19, Milwaukee, abandoned him and departed in a motor car the Chicago man had stolen from P. D. Curtis, Chicago coal dealer.

The girls pleaded guilty to using the car without the owner's consent and were given 90 day sentences. They said they were hitch-hikers and had been given a ride by Porter.

FLYERS REACH HALF WAY MARK IN WORLD DASH

Hop 1,700 Miles in Siberia; Day Behind Record.

MOSCOW, Aug. 2.—(AP)—America's second pair of round the world flyers, Hugh Herndon Jr. and Clyde Pangborn, took off from Chita, Siberia, for Khabarovsk at 5:30 p. m. today [9:30 a. m. Chicago time], according to a report received by the Tass agency here.

The flyers arrived at Chita at 1 p. m., after a 1,700 mile nonstop flight from Omsk. They were just a half hour short, at that time, of being five full days out of New York.

From Khabarovsk they hope to fly across the Sea of Okhotsk and the Behring sea to Nome, Alaska, and from Nome to New York.

Day Behind Post and Gatty.

When they landed at Chita they had consumed 119 hours and 32 minutes since they left New York, which placed them almost a full day behind the mark of Post and Gatty at the same point.

They lost valuable time when they were forced down yesterday at Jietiegari, over 500 miles southwest of Omsk, but they were keeping in mind that Post and Gatty lost 26 hours in a mudhole at Blagovyeschensk, which time they hope they can pick up if they avoid adversity on the remainder of their journey.

The route from Chita lies over one of the most isolated terrains in the world to Khabarovsk, and thence across the Sea of Okhotsk and the Bering sea homeward.

The flyers on the hop to Chita were sighted over Krasnoyarsk and again over Irkutsk. When they passed over Irkutsk they had consumed 112 hours since they left New York, or four and two-thirds days, and they still had nearly 500 miles to reach Chita.

Run Into Bad Luck.

When Post and Gatty reached Irktusk they had been on the wing less than 100 hours.

Leaving Moscow only ten hours behind Post and Gatty, in spite of their slower plane, Herndon and Pangborn ran into bad luck shortly after crossing the Ural mountains, when they were forced down at Jietiegari, some distance south of their true course.

U. S. Flyers Place Wreath.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Aug. 2.—(AP)—The American flyers, Russell Boardman and John Polando, who hopped from New York to Istanbul, this morning placed a wreath of red and white flowers, tied with the colors of America and Turkey, at the foot of the monument of the Turkish republic, which depicts Mustapha Kemal as military commander and president. The ceremony took place in the presence of thousands of Turkish spectators and the flyers were surrounded by an honor guard of police and Boy Scouts.

77 ARE SAVED FROM FLAMING BOAT IN RIVER

New York, Aug. 2.—[Special.]—A holiday disaster was averted by a fortunate circumstance today when the fishing boat Usona, its narrow decks filled with seventy-seven Sunday excursionists, including one woman and two children, took fire from faulty ignition on a starboard motor in the East river.

The circumstance which shunted off disaster and brought rescue, was the fact that the fire broke out when the boat was about two hundred yards from the plaza of the Red Wing Boat club. With two dories and two small motor launches, twelve members of the club made two trips each to the burning boat and brought every passenger safely to shore.

The Usona, in war time, was a submarine chaser bearing the number 151.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Over the Yukon valley the monoplane Fort Worth, with the first 1,650 miles hop of its Seattle-Tokio flight completed and the first refueling finished, pounded tonight towards the Bering sea.

The two Japan-bound flyers, Reg L. Robbins and Harold S. Jones, made the long hop from Puget sound in 12 hours and 50 minutes, flying well inland north through British Columbia and not being sighted for more than a thousand miles of their journey.

After spending fifty minutes from the time the plane first arrived over the city until the refueling was completed and the refueler was ready to follow, the Fort Worth got away to the west at 6:45 p. m. [11:45 p. m. Chicago time].

Skies Clear for Refueling.

The skies were clear and the refueling was completed easily with 200 gallons of gas transferred to the Fort Worth.

James Mattern, pilot of the refueling plane, said that weather reports to the west made the southern route down the Yukon to the south shore of Norton sound, to Unalakleet and St. Michaels, preferable to the flight by way of Nome.

In landing after the refueling to fill the refueler's tanks to their 700 gallon capacity Mattern added that several messages about weather reports had been passed down to the Fort Worth, but that none had been received from Robbins and Jones.

Hop from Seattle.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Reg L. Robbins and Harold S. Jones, Fort Worth, Tex., flyers, left here at 7:02 a. m. [10:02 a. m. Chicago time] today for Tokio, 5,100 miles away, on their second attempt to conquer the North Pacific in a single hop.

The white monoplane, Fort Worth, lifted easily from the runway after reaching 3,500 feet. The plane carried 340 gallons of gasoline.

At 9:45 a. m. they passed over Quesnel, British Columbia, 375 miles north of here. They turned northwest following their charted course. Earlier they had been sighted over Lyton, B. C., and over North Bend, B. C.

Face Rain Over Sea.

The weather over the great circle route to Tokio was described by C. O. Brink, meteorologist, as being favorable. He said showers and increasing cloudiness may greet the flyers over the Bering sea and down the Siberian coast.

Several hundred persons were at the field when Robbins and Jones arrived at 6:30 a. m. They ordered the ship into the hangar immediately and the motor was warmed for twenty minutes.

Storm Delays Takeoff.

The flyers had planned to hop yesterday but waited a day because of a hot minute weather report from Alaska. Rain and overcast skies cut the ceiling and visibility at Nome and Fairbanks to virtually nothing.

Bumpy weather and a motor too light to carry more than 300 gallons of gas forced the flyers to land at Solomon Beach, last month, after about 27 hours in the air from Seattle and after several successful refuelings had been completed.

The men are competing for a prize of $25,000 posted by Asahi Shimbun, Japanese newspaper, for the first nonstop flight between Japan and the United States. Robbins and Jones will alternate at the controls.

Eat Fried Chicken.

Five fried chickens, numerous small devil's food cakes, two loaves of bread, a thermos bottle of hot coffee, and two gallons of water in a canvas bag are tucked away in crevices of the fuselage of the plane, already so crowded with gasoline tanks that Jones, who will do most of the navigating, will be unable to stretch out during the flight.

Launch Overnight Freight Service by Air to N. Y.

An overnight air freight service using two specially constructed planes will be inaugurated today by the Transcontinental and Western Air, Incorporated, it was announced yesterday. The planes will fly between New York City and Kansas City. The rate for this service will be eleven cents a pound with a minimum charge of fifty cents. The maximum weight is two hundred pounds.

The first division of the parade will start east from Wacker drive and La Salle street at 11 a. m. Other divisions will enter the line at Clark, Dearborn, State street and Wabash avenue and the full procession will then turn south in Michigan boulevard to Seventh street, then over the bridge to the outer drive on to Soldiers' field.

The afternoon program will include a field meet and pageant in which hundreds of school children will participate under the direction of Kate Krausel.

Seventy-five organizations have signed up to march in the parade which will be headed by David A. McVey, grand marshal, and a band composed of members of the Chicago Federation of Musicians.

Revolt Collapses

TOKIO, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Rengo dispatches from Tsinan today told how Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek won an important victory for her husband, the head of the Nationalist government of China.

Gen. Han Fu-Chu, chairman of the Shantung provincial government, who held the key to the issue between the Manchurian chieftain, Chang Hsueh-Liang and the rebel Shih Yu-Shan, because of his strategic position, was reported nearly ready to cast his lot with the rebel when the news reached Mme. Chiang.

Realizing that minutes counted, Mme. Chiang, who, as Melling Soong, graduated from Wellesley, the American college for women, arranged by telegraph a meeting with Mme. Han Fu-Chu, her friend since girlhood. The two had a friendly chat over a pot of tea and soon afterwards Gen. Han Fu-Chu issued a statement supporting Chiang Kai-Shek.

BANDIT MOTHER HAS NO TEARS FOR SLAIN SON

Victims Identify Her in Police Showup.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

One of the most peculiar figures ever to face the weekly showup in the detective bureau shuffled across the platform yesterday and stood drooping under the greenish glare of the strong lights from above. The appearance of Mrs. Anna Baranski, 58 year old grandmother whose criminal career was abruptly ended Saturday afternoon when a policeman shot and killed her son and companion, John Baranski, in a holdup, produced a strange effect on the 200 persons assembled in an effort to identify the crooks who had robbed them.

Mrs. Baranski wore the same gray housedress in which she was captured while fleeing with her son and another man from the robbery of the Sorensen & Olson real estate office at 4819 Irving Park boulevard. Her wispy hair blew frowsily about her wrinkled face. Her mouth twisted convulsively and she seemed faint.

Crowd Uneasy at Sight of Her.

From the group assembled for the showup came a rustle of uneasiness. That veneer of pathos and respectability that had so often fooled the police in the Irving Park district where she, her son and his companion operated, was functioning once more. The crowd wanted her off the platform and out of sight.

"This is the woman who came into my shop on July 14 and cashed a check," he declared. "Two men walked in right after her and held me up, and got away. They took $55 from my till. That man there beside her was one of the two men."

Other Robber Is Arrested.

Hayes referred to Harold Marcelle, 24 years old, who was arrested early yesterday in bed at his home, 4057 South Richmond street. Marcelle, who had accompanied John Baranski in the holdup of the Sorensen & Olson office, had fled on foot, as did Baranski, when the automobile in which they were fleeing with Mrs. Baranski crashed into an electric light pole. Patrolman Fred W. Kretschmer, who was in pursuit, ran after Baranski as he dashed north in Lavergne avenue and killed him when the bandit attempted to shoot from beneath a porch where he had taken refuge.

After hours of questioning of Mrs. Baranski in a fruitless effort to learn the name of the second robber, Sergt. Arthur Rathke and his squad ascertained elsewhere that Marcelle was the man they wanted. They took him from his bed, where he had a revolver lying beside him. Marcelle and the dead man had both served terms in the penitentiary at Jackson, Mich. Baranski returned from there only eight months ago.

A Crafty Grandmother.

Even yesterday, after she had been positively identified by Hayes and other victims as the woman who had helped the two gunmen, the craftiness of this bandit grandmother was continually demonstrated. She not only refused to "squawk" on her allies, but she managed to convince police at the detective bureau that she did not speak English, thus blocking efforts to question her further. At the Irving Park station, after her arrest, she talked English fluently, when she could be persuaded to answer at all.

Nothing but denials of her guilt could be obtained from her, but the supply of green cord found in her pocket gave mute testimony against her, as did part of the $130 in loot taken from the real estate office. The cord was similar to that used by her son and his companion in binding Charles Nation, manager of the looted office.

Not a tear has Mrs. Baranski shed for her dead son, who was 30 years old and had a police record dating back to 1918. To a reporter she asserted that he had never been a good son, that he had run away from home when he was 16, and had been in more than one jail; that he seldom worked, and had never paid his board at home. She has a daughter living in the Pullman district, who has two small children.

Dope Found in Her Car.

The twitching of Mrs. Baranski's mouth is the result of the use of dope, police declare. Both she and her son apparently used narcotics, and a variety of drugs were found in her car.

She Knows the Tricks.

If there was a trick in the category of criminology that she did not know, at least in her particular field of operations—robbery—the police have yet to encounter it, they said. She it was who lulled the suspicions of her intended victims by entering a store to size it up, then beckoned to the two men waiting outside with smoked glasses and revolvers. They followed her in, obtained the loot, and then divided it with her.

Waiting outside in the car while the holdup was being accomplished, she would sometimes lie down in the back seat. When the men returned she would give her place to one of them and don a white hat to make her more conspicuous. Cruising police squads, hunting two desperadoes in a certain make of car, would pass by without suspicion a respectable looking elderly woman and a young man.

But all Mrs. Baranski has to say about anything connected with it all is, "No, no, no!"

Hold Suspect with 300 Tickets on English Race

Harry Helme, 66 years old, of Dixon, Ill., was held for further investigation by police yesterday after it was discovered that he had 300 tickets in a sweepstakes lottery based on a race to be run at Doncaster, Yorkshire, England.

SHOWS HAZARDS OF SLOW DRIVERS ON 2 LANE ROADS

Block Travel, Create Risk of Passing.

BY HAL FOUST.

A drive of six hours yesterday on Illinois highways in the metropolitan area found many slow moving cars blocking travel and forcing other machines to cut around, sometimes at the risk of an accident. And on the trip not a single highway policeman was seen.

On the Dunes highway, between Gary and Michigan City, five Indiana state police have been assigned to enforce a rule on week-ends that no driver with clear space ahead shall move less than forty miles an hour. Although in the rush hours congestion clogs the narrow old road, nevertheless the average speed of travel has been boosted and the number of accidents has been reduced through this active policing against the slow driver.

Hazard on Two Lane Roads.

THE TRIBUNE car yesterday paid special attention to the two lane highways. While the slow driver in the center lane of the forty foot pavements is popularly denounced as an ignorant, selfish, or inconsiderate road hog, yet it's on the twenty foot concrete that he causes the most accidents and the most inconvenience to the motoring public.

On the Northwest highway, northwest of Barrington, a coupe with license 209-038 was holding a string of automobiles to 30 miles an hour in a hilly country where it was dangerous to pass in the moderately heavy traffic. Two men in the car appeared to be engrossed in conversation.

A few miles farther from Barrington on the same road a small green roadster, with a young couple in the front seat and another couple in the rumble, was moving between 20 and 25 miles an hour. The license number was 994-330.

Milk Truck Delays Traffic.

Northbound on Milwauke road, approaching Libertyville, a milk truck was chugging along at 15 to 20 miles an hour with fifty automobiles behind it. Southbound traffic was too heavy to pass on the pavement. A man stood on the right running board of the truck and waved cars around on the loose dirt shoulder of the road.

A ten wheel milk truck with an eight wheel trailer was also seen on the Rand road, south of Lake Zurich and Chicago bound, holding back motorists to 25 miles an hour.

Southbound from Lake Forest on the Waukegan road, a large sedan, license 1-807-072, was delaying about fifty or sixty machines, traveling about twenty-five miles an hour. At the wheel was a young girl, apparently in her early teens. There were several adults in the car.

Many Driving Too Slow, View.

There were many others driving too slow for safe and efficient use of the highways, too many to note in a short report on the six hour trip. These few are cited as examples.

On the Dunes highway the Indiana police take slow trucks off the highway. Slow passenger car drivers are stopped on the shoulder of the road and instructed to keep up with the automobiles ahead. According to the Chicago Motor club, Illinois has about the same authority to regulate traffic as has Indiana.

The plan for this grade separation, the first on Cook county highways, was adopted more than three years ago, but construction was delayed until this year. Milwaukee avenue continues at grade, and Dempster street traffic passes under it in a subway. To accommodate automobiles that turn from one road into the other there are narrower outer lanes for Dempster street at the Milwaukee avenue level.

Originally the county highway engineers had estimated the cost of this county improvement at $281,000, but the low bid on the work was $228,000.

SEES $11,000,000 STATE ROAD JOBS START SHORTLY

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 2.—(AP)—With the state advertising for contracts for more than $11,000,000 worth of road projects, Director H. H. Cleaveland of the department of public works and buildings today expressed the hope that protests against the department's prevailing wage scales would not seriously delay the work.

H. H. CLEAVELAND. [Eckman Photo.]

Objections have been filed which must be settled by arbitration before an appeal board or by court decision.

Awards Are Delayed.

"As a measure of unemployment relief," Director Cleaveland said, "the highway department planned for this year a construction program of $45,000,000, the biggest construction season in its history. When the prevailing wage law was passed by the general assembly, the department had the major portion of its program under contract, and had bids pending for more than $7,500,000 worth of work. Awards on these projects had been delayed by right of way difficulties, but were expected to clear up in a short time.

"However, after July 1, when the law became effective, the department obtained legal guidance, and proceeded with all possible speed to obey its provisions. This involved the rejection of all pending bids and the making of careful surveys in 40 counties to determine the rate of pay in each locality for the classes of labor employed.

Provisions of New Law.

"When these surveys were completed, the department, following the provisions of the new law, included in its advertisement for bids the prevailing rates of wages for the work involved. These advertisements invited bids on more than $11,000,000 of paving, grading, and bridge construction projects, in these 40 counties. Objections to the wage scales were filed at once. How much time will be required in reaching an agreement is problematical.

"Postponement of this work until next year would be unfortunate because of the adverse effect it would have on our economic situation. This is readily understandable when one contemplates the fact that sixty-five per cent of this $11,000,000, or $7,150,000, would be paid out in wages.

"The addition of $7,150,000 to the purchasing power of labor during the next few months would contribute materially to toning up our economic situation. Furthermore, it would provide employment for a considerable number of men whose dependents now are leading a precarious existence," he said.

Two in Family Are Dead from Poisoning, Two Ill

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Two children died of poisoning in the city hospital tonight. The father of the children, Robert Kerr, and another child were ill. The mother and another child apparently were not affected. Mrs. Kerr told police the family had only two meals today and that only potatoes and green beans were eaten.

MAC DONALD WILL VISIT STIMSON'S HUNTING LODGE

LOSSIEMOUTH, Scotland, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald admitted tonight that Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson had invited him to spend two days with him "somewhere in Scotland" and that he had accepted. However, the prime minister refused to reveal where the meeting would take place.

It is known that Secretary Stimson rented a house in the highlands for part of the grouse shooting season, but its location is not known.

It is understood the prime minister will join the secretary there Thursday, when it is expected they will resume discussions of international affairs.

THREE CHILDREN KILLED BY AUTOS IN CITY STREETS

Man Is Fourth Victim of Motors Here.

Automobiles claimed the lives of three children in Chicago yesterday. Two were killed in the streets yesterday and another died from injuries received the previous day. The three deaths, added to that of one adult, increased the motor toll in Cook county since Jan. 1 to 664.

George Parkinson, 4 years old, 4022 North Paulina street, was playing in front of his home when he was struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Adelia Cote, 55 years old, 4120 North Ashland avenue. His skull was fractured and he died a short time later in the American hospital, where he was taken by Mrs. Cote.

Injuries Cause Death.

The second child victim was Mary Blevin, 6 years old. Playing in front of her home at 339 Garibaldi place on Saturday, she ran in front of a truck driven by Carman Muratal, 1509 Taylor street. She suffered a fractured skull and her injuries caused her death yesterday in the county hospital. Muratal, who is 17 years old, was held by the police.

Carlos Lane, 2 years old, 2942 Lowis street, was fatally injured when he was struck at Fullerton and Western avenues by an automobile driven by August Aikman, 1446 North Campbell avenue. The boy's mother witnessed the accident. Aikman took the lad to St. Elizabeth's hospital, where he died.

Henry Horn, 29 years old, 3722 South Damen avenue, was killed last night when an automobile in which he was riding alone swerved in front of 3619 South Ashland avenue and crashed into a light post.

Fatally Hurt in Michigan.

Albert H. Wenzel Jr., 16 years old, son of A. H. Wenzel, vice president of the Herman H. Hettler company, died yesterday at Monroe, Mich., of injuries suffered on Saturday, when the automobile in which he was riding collided with a truck. The accident occurred five miles north of Monroe.

Wesley Clark, 19 years old, 1414 Laurel avenue, Waukegan, was killed last night when the motorcycle he was riding ran into an automobile driven by a Waukegan physician, Dr. John Freeland of 416 Greenwood avenue. The accident occurred at Grand and Elmwood avenues in Waukegan. Another youth, Raphael Peterson, 114 Patrick street, Waukegan, was riding on the cycle with Clark and was seriously injured.

William Malburg, 18 years old, 4232 North Narragansett avenue, and Anthony Kline, 22 years old, 3341 Lincoln avenue, were injured last evening in a collision of automobiles at Southport and Eastwood avenues. They were taken to the Illinois Masonic hospital.

AUSTRALIA PAYS NEW SOUTH WALES' INTEREST BILLS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CANBERRA, Australia, Aug. 2.—The commonwealth government of Australia has arranged for the necessary remittances to pay interest due on July 21 for loans made by overseas banks to New South Wales. Of the $3,071,520 due, $2,366,320 is payable in London and $704,700 in New York.

By this action Australia keeps her foreign loan record clean, having honored all overseas obligations to date. New South Wales will repay the commonwealth government whenever it is able to do so.

Treasury bills totaling approximately $10,555,920, issued to cover temporary governmental financing of Australia, which matured on July 21, have been renewed on a basis of 33 1-3 per cent reduction in interest, by the Commonwealth bank and commercial banks. The banks had formerly discounted the bills at 6 per cent, but will now discount them at 4 per cent, reducing the annual interest by approximately $211,000.

The important loan council meeting at Melbourne on Wednesday will consider the attitude of the commonwealth towards New South Wales.

Drink Goat Milk

Colorful native costumes and a reproduction of an entire Sloval village featured the annual festival of the United Slovak societies at Riverview park yesterday.

Native dances and athletic exhibitions were also held during the day. City Comptroller Szymczak and Consul Jaroslav Smetanka made speeches, after which refreshments were served.

One of the most popular of all the native drinks was the goat milk. Other native Slovak delicacies were also quickly demolished.

Prince and Princess Svasti, parents of the queen of Siam, left Chicago yesterday on the Capitol limited of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad for Wawasee, Ind. There they will visit Mrs. M. U. Spink, whose daughter is wife of R. B. Stevens, advisor on foreign affairs to the Siamese government.

GERMAN PRINCE SAILS FOR U. S. TO GO TO WORK

Ex-Kaiser's Grandson to Seek Job with Ford.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—Prince Louis Ferdinand Hohenzollern, second son of the crown prince and grandson of the former kaiser, has decided "to live his own life." He sailed on the Europa yesterday to confer with Henry Ford about a job in the Ford company.

The 24 year old prince returned from South America in December because his family insisted that he complete his studies at Berlin university in order to acquire the title of doctor. No German mother—not even the crown princess—believes that her son has a real chance in life unless he has acquired the title of doctor before his name as proof that he has been initiated into the secrets of culture.

Calls on Ex-Kaiser.

The prince complied with the wish of his family and acquired the title, and then called on the former kaiser in Doorn, Holland. His grandfather made a last effort to convince him that he should remain in Europe, but the prince was insistent that he must build up his own life.

The prince told his friends that when he was in America for the first time Mr. Ford promised him a job as manager of the Ford agencies in one of the more important countries, provided he studied and worked assiduously. Meanwhile the prince, who had returned to Germany, got entangled with Lily Damita, a movie actress, and he was sternly ordered to South America, under the supervision of Don Carlos Alfredo Tornquist, millionaire banker of Buenos Aires.

Prince Louis did not want to study banking, so he appeared at the bank only a short time each day, and spent the bulk of his time at the Ford plant.

Helped in Revolution.

During the revolution in Argentina the prince gayly carted soldiers back and forth in his Ford car. When the family heard of this they hauled him back to Germany, but could not keep him there. So now he is starting out again on his own, with the hope of the life of a Ford salesman ahead of him.

That the prince is still very much interested in Miss Damita, despite the scandalized protests of his relatives, was shown by the fact that he asked friends to inform the actress of his departure for America.

STATE ASSEMBLY PRAISED FOR TAX BOOST BLOCKADE

Civic Federation Reports on Last Session.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The last session of the legislature is given credit by the civic federation, in a report made public yesterday, for rejecting a number of measures which would have "increased taxation substantially." The federation, however, found no effort by the legislature to decrease taxes worthy of mention.

CLAYTON MARK.

"Some of the bills which threatened to affect taxpayers most adversely," reads the report, "were not offered until the closing days of the session—too late to arouse public protests so as to offset organized political pressure.

"This left the burden of defeating them upon a few hard hitting champions of the taxpayer in the assembly, and more than doubled the work of the civic federation in analyzing these measures and supplying legislators with facts to use in defeating them."

On School Building Bonds.

Under the heading, "The School Building Bond Bunc," the report, which is signed by Clayton Mark, president of the federation, and Douglas Sutherland, secretary, says:

"The most obnoxious of these measures, the $50,000,000 school bond bills to authorize the building of schools in Chicago with borrowed funds, instead of on the pay-as-you-go basis—which has saved Chicago taxpayers countless millions in interest during all the city's history—were introduced the last week of the session.

"Four carloads of lobbyists, organized and taken to Springfield at somebody's expense, were expected to hurry these bills through to enactment in six days. Frantic efforts were made by the school board's lobby to 'contact' manufacturers of school supplies and building material throughout the state with suggestions that if their downstate representatives supported the measures, there might be an opportunity to spend some of the bond money downstate as well as in Chicago.

Trustee Joseph Savage, in urging the house revenue committee to report his bills favorably, reiterated several times that it was the board's policy to limit its spending to Illinois—an open bid for downstate votes.

"The excuse for the bonding proposal was that considerable money is owing to contractors for work already done on buildings and that due to the inability to sell tax anticipation warrants—in turn due to unsatisfactory local assessments and tax collections—it could not be paid.

"The reason for it on the part of certain aggressive members of the board seemed to be a desire to have large amount of funds available for immediate spending."

The report analyzes the plan of the former city administration to issue bonds for school building and says that Savage's plan was worse than that.

Comments on Other Bills.

"An old age dole system, which would have cost the state at the outset not less than $8,000,000 a year, and within a short time probably as high as $25,000,000 a year, merely to provide a moiety of $5 a week to all destitute persons over 70 years of age.

"A set of bills which purported to provide a means for the so-called 'funding' of the 1930 taxes, which were technically so faulty that there would have resulted outright a 35 per cent increase in taxes in Cook county.

"A state income tax with rates graduated from 1 to 6 per cent, was to have been in addition to the existing property tax, but affording no relief from local taxes, either real estate or personal, which make up 90 per cent of the tax bill."

Still another bill is described as a plan "to create municipal utility districts with power to issue bonds and levy unlimited taxes."

The federation tells of the minor increases in taxes approved by the legislature to tend to make solvent various pension funds. These will increase the local tax bill about $2,000,000 in 1931 and several million dollars more up to 1935.

The only "constructive measure for the relief of the taxpayer," according to the federation, is the one which permits taxes to be paid in two installments beginning in 1931.

SEVERAL DIE AS STEAMER BREAKS LOCK IN CANAL

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Several destitute men are believed to have been swept to their death when the steamship Rapids Prince crashed through a lock gate in the Lachine canal here today, releasing a 35 foot wall of water.

About forty unemployed men were gathered on an embankment in the center of the canal. When the ship broke through the gate a number were trapped by the sudden rush of water. Some of them managed to cling to supports until the flood subsided. One, George Sevec, said about twelve were swept away. Boats were put out to search for the bodies.

All but two of the canal department sheds and offices in the path of the flood were carried away. The damage was estimated at $300,000 and it is thought traffic on the canal, which joins the St. Lawrence river, will be tied up for two or three days. The Rapids Prince was not damaged.

Police Find Automobile of Slain Beer Runner

The county highway police yesterday recovered the automobile of Matt Hoffmann, 33 year old beer runner who was slain Thursday night in Glenview. It was found at Marshall road and Lawrence avenue, near Bensenville. Hoffmann's body was found, with bullet wounds in the head, near the village of Aptakisic in Lake county on Friday. It was assumed that the killers of the beer runner, who lived in Wilmette, drove his car away.

REPORTS LEGAL FLAW IN MANY TAX PROTESTS

A plan under which 25 per cent of the total of 40,000 building valuation complaints will be dismissed by the board of review has been suggested to the reviewers by Andrew W. Gatenbey, chief clerk, it was learned yesterday. Action of the board is expected today.

A. W. GATENBEY.

Operation of the proposal will cut at least 10,000 complaints from the piles which engulf the members of the board, Gatenbey said. Even this relief, however, leaves the reviewers faced with a task which they admit is impossible to accomplish.

Cost Figures Not Given.

In explanation of the plan Gatenbey said: "The law demands that a complete description of the property involved, with cost and estimate figures included, be filed attached to the complaint on the valuation reached by the board of assessors.

"In the past we have been lenient in this respect and have allowed our investigators to get the figures from the assessors or from the property owners when the complaints were considered. However, such complaints can be thrown out, because they do not comply with the legal filing.

Seek to Speed Hearings.

"In this emergency we can deal summarily with taxpayers who do not file legal complaints, and they number at least 25 per cent of the total. If the board adopts the plan there will be an appreciable easing of the pressure here."

If taxpayers are to be granted even a few days to pay their 1930 assessments after receiving the bills the board of review must complete its hearings by Oct. 1. It will require three months to prepare the reviewers' books and the tax bills after the hearings are finished. Taxes for 1930 are delinquent on Jan. 1, 1932. Thus far the board has heard 400 of the complaints. Beginning today the reviewers promise to hear 500 a day.

STREET CAR MEN FIGHT POLICE IN HAVANA STRIKE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Aug. 2.—The three day complete paralysis of street car service in Havana was climaxed today with clashes between motormen, conductors and citizens on one side and strike breakers and armed police on the other, as strikers met the challenge of Frank Steinhart, president of the Havana Electric Railway company that he would operate the cars with men who were not members of the motormen's and conductors' syndicate. The strike is the result of a wage cut which went into effect Friday.

Sixty-eight cars left their barns this morning, loaded with strike breakers and police. Four cars were attacked by members of the syndicate disguised in civilian clothes, and serious injuries were inflicted upon the strike breakers with sticks and stones. Cans of ignited gasoline were thrown from roofs of houses on several cars, and one caught fire.

Meanwhile, a 24 hour general strike is scheduled throughout the island Tuesday, when 6 labor organizations affiliated with the National Labor Federation will walke out to commemorate International Communist day.

BIGAMIST PERRY GOES TO PRISON FOR LIFE TODAY

Convicted Murderer Has Restless Night.

Eagle River, Wis., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—George W. E. Perry, Milwaukee brakeman, who took marriage vows with eight women without benefit of divorce, is to be taken to the Waupun penitentiary early tomorrow, to begin serving a life sentence for the murder of Mrs. Cora Belle Hackett of Chicago, third of his bigamous wives, during their honeymoon near here July 6, 1930. The sentence was imposed by Circuit Judge C. M. Davison after a jury found Perry guilty of first degree murder, at the conclusion of a five day trial yesterday.

To Travel Under Guard.

Perry is to make the 200 mile journey from the Vilas county jail handcuffed to Sheriff Thomas McGregor and under armed guard of two deputy sheriffs. The prisoner was not moved today because he pleaded illness following his collapse during cross-examination by Special Prosecutor A. J. O'Mella as he maintained his innocence against a mass of circumstantial evidence.

The baldheaded bigamist passed a restless night pacing his cell. His tossings and moanings roused Sheriff McGregor, who reported he thought Perry was about to confess the crime. The prisoner, under questioning, however, continued to stoutly deny the murder, as he did when the judge pronounced the sentence.

Eats Hearty Meals.

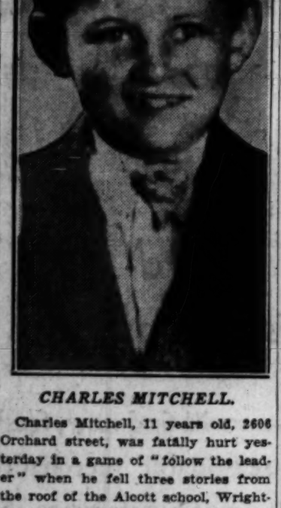
Perry ate a light breakfast, but ate a heavy lunch and dinner. By evening he had regained the jaunty attitude he displayed at the trial and declared many women, including his many wives, would regret his imprisonment. He was visited by his attorney, John Dolan, of Milwaukee, who announced he will appeal to the Wisconsin Supreme court.

The body of Mrs. Hackett, former Milwaukee school teacher and employé of the Chicago Art institute, was found along a swamp road ten miles from the resort where she honeymooned with Perry on Oct. 1, 1930. State's witnesses linked Perry to the scene the preceding July 6. He was captured last May and returned for trial. A jury found him guilty after 1 hour and 45 minutes of deliberation.

CAB CONDUCTOR HELD UP.

The lone passenger on a westbound Roosevelt road street car produced a revolver yesterday morning, forced the conductor, Alfred Kozak, to stop the car and robbed him of $27.

FALLS TO DEATH



CHARLES MITCHELL.

Charles Mitchell, 11 years old, 2606 Orchard street, was fatally hurt yesterday in a game of "follow the leader" when he fell three stories from the roof of the Alcott school, Wrightwood avenue and Orchard street. With other boys, Charles had climbed the fire escape on the school to the third story. Then the boys placed a board on a window sill, shinned up a drainpipe and clambered to the roof. When Charles slid down the drainpipe a gust of wind blew the board away. He stepped where the board had been and fell to the ground. He died a short time later at the Children's Memorial hospital.

YIELD RIGHT OF WAY—IS SAFETY PLEA TO DRIVERS

"Give the other fellow the right of way" is the advice given to motorists by the Chicago safety council. The council in a survey of accidents, made public yesterday, found that a great many accidents occur because a motorist insists on having the right of way even up to the point of an accident.

"Chicago's appalling list of automotive accidents can be substantially reduced if motorists will heed this simple maxim," says the warning. The council lists the refusal to give the other fellow the right of way and the instinctive urge of the average motorist to "get there first" as the most frequent causes of accidents.

WARNS AUTOISTS TO GET STICKERS OR FACE ARREST

City Clerk Says Police Will Act Tomorrow.

Police tomorrow will start arresting motorists who do not have new vehicle tax stickers displayed on their windshields, City Clerk Peter J. Brady warned yesterday. He announced that the new tags had been mailed to every automobile owner and today would be the deadline for putting them on.

PETER J. BRADY.

"We have been assured the cooperation of the police department in starting the drive Tuesday," said Mr. Brady. "Every Chicago car without a sticker will be checked up, and unless the owner has a good alibi he will be taken into court."

Some of Stickers Unclaimed.

Approximately one and a half per cent of the 440,600 stickers mailed out last week were returned undelivered. The persons to whom these were addressed should appear at his office immediately and claim these tags if they wish to escape arrest, the city clerk said.

Mayor Cermak inaugurated the plan for the stickers to supplement the round metal tags as a means of trapping drivers with tags illegally obtained. Approximately $250,000 in additional revenue is expected to be obtained in this way for the vehicle tax fund.

Motorists frightened by the sticker campaign thronged the city clerk's office the last three days of last week seeking licenses which they should have obtained the first of the year. On Friday 890 full year licenses were issued and approximately $11,000 collected. The collections on Saturday morning were almost as large.

Tag Thieves Thwarted.

It is the belief of the city officials that there is no way for tag thieves to solve the sticker problem. Whereas it was easy to remove the metal tags, the only way to remove the stickers is to scrape them off with a knife or razor blade. It also will be impossible under the new system for a car owner to give away or sell his tag and obtain a duplicate for a 50 cent fee.

Although the number of city licenses issued to small cars still is under that of last year, more tags for high priced cars have been issued, according to a wheel tax report for the first seven months of 1931 made public yesterday by City Collector E. J. Kaindl. During the seven months 12,772 licenses were issued for passenger cars in excess of thirty-five horsepower, as compared to 11,615 in the same period last year. The 1931 total for smaller cars was 373,144, as compared with 395,301 for 1930.

PROPAGANDA FOR ALASKA TIMBER SALE DENOUNCED

New York, Aug 2.—(AP)—Officials of the American Paper and Pulp association today sent a letter to President Hoover urging him to halt pending negotiations for the sale of national forest timber in Alaska for conversion into newsprint.

"Under the conditions presented in the accompanying survey," the letter said, "we are firmly of the opinion that all pending negotiations should be dropped and that no other offers of Alaskan or other national forest timber entailing paper or pulp mill construction should be made until a need arises which does not now exist.

"To thrust unwanted production upon an overexpanded industry struggling with a diminished demand and vanishing profits would make a bad unemployment situation worse and further depreciate a capital investment of over $800,000,000 in the United States, Canada, and Newfoundland, of which more than $600,000,000 is estimated to have been invested by citizens and companies of the United States.

"The survey shows there could be no possible gain to the consumers of newsprint in price or service; that the present supplies of pulpwood are ample and that the continental newsprint industry right now is equipped to produce 2,000,000 tons in excess of the average consumption over the last five years."

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

AN ALDERMAN AFFRONTED.

Mayor Cermak has encouraged Ald. Clark to go through with his offer to resign as chairman of the finance committee. Ald. Clark had taken the position that the mayor's proposal to hire an efficiency engineer to go through the city's departmental expenditures was unsound because the finance committee had already done everything an efficiency expert could hope to do toward saving money; and the employment of the expert, in any event, constituted a reflection upon the committee which the chairman of the committee could not tolerate.

The council supported the mayor; and Ald. Clark and any members of the committee who have sided with their chairman are therefore in the position of gentlemen tolerating what they themselves described as the intolerable. They have said they will regard the appointment of the expert as an insufferable affront, and it is difficult to see how men with a vestige of honor could have spoken otherwise. The employment of the expert is beyond question a grave reflection upon the competence of the committee and its chairman. Ald. Clark might have borne the affront as long as it was only the mayor who was dissatisfied, but now, with the city council itself voting with the mayor on the issue, it is clear that Ald. Clark and his committee are no longer in a position to act for the council.

Ald. Clark's pride may be sufficiently upholstered to sustain the blow, but his common sense should indicate that his usefulness as chairman of the finance committee is at an end when his own colleagues on the floor of the council will not sustain him.

So far as the public is concerned, Ald. Clark will receive no sympathy. He was not a conspicuous opponent of the régime of waste under the previous administration. He played a leading part in the formulation of the present budget, although it was almost as clear in December as it is today that the revenues would not come up to the committee's expectations. The fact that the efficiency expert has already found soft spots in the health department pay roll is an indication of the committee's indifference to the taxpayers. The fact that the new administration has cut expenses in many departments, with resultant gains rather than losses in efficiency, is more evidence in the same direction. The further fact that Ald. Clark's committee has retained former Ald. Richert as its adviser despite Mr. Richert's participation in the real estate expert grab is not being overlooked by the taxpayers.

The public, in short, joins Mr. Cermak and the city council in their lack of confidence in Mr. Clark. It is to be hoped that his sense of honor will lose none of its delicacy now that the intolerable affront has been delivered. It is to be hoped that he loses no time in submitting his resignation as chairman of the committee.

DREISER'S FIGHT WITH HOLLYWOOD.

Theodore Dreiser's suit to restrain the showing of the picture made of his "American Tragedy" was enlivened by an outburst from the provoked novelist. The court asked his counsel to exercise restraint or remove his client. Dreiser has suffered a severe strain on his temper and the forms of society haven't his admiration anyway. He's a bit of a nonconformist.

The conflict between the fifty cent theater and Dreiser as one of America's famous novelists is interesting. His attorneys contend that the Paramount-Publix corporation made "Hollywood swill" out of the story, misrepresenting its theme to such an extent that a grave injury would be done to the reputation of the writer if the picture were to be exhibited as it came from the studio.

Dreiser's Clyde in the "American Tragedy" is, as Attorneys Hays and Hume present the case, the victim of society. His fate is an inevitability arising from the chain of circumstances. The Paramount Clyde is a victim of himself. Dreiser indicts society. Paramount justifies society and indicts Clyde as an individual competent to have kept out of trouble if he had the will to keep out. In the picture he is not a tragic figure of helplessness with society throwing him to the gallows, but a young fellow who selected his path in life and found himself going up to the drop in consequence.

For fifty cents the pictures do not indict society, nor will they do it for two dollars. The pictures will indict factors in society, the police, the public prosecutor, men of wealth, crooks or any conventional villainy. Sometimes they'll even indict a pretentious virtue. They do not mind applesauce a sentimental viciousness, and a frivolous libidinousness is frequently fat stuff, but society itself is not. In movie conception, a stupid, brutal, ravenous beast. It is, on the contrary, composed of the very fifty cent pieces which make the gross on a picture. Hollywood does not admit that Clyde commits a murder because society got him into some sex troubles and counseled or compelled him to get out by bumping off a girl friend. Its view of life is that Clyde got into his own sex troubles because of his own character and that his final predicament was of his own creating.

This is Hollywood and not Dreiser. The twain never should have met, and it's Hollywood's fault that they did. The vague ambition of the producers to touch the admittedly more critical life leads it into these esthetic adventures which it will not pursue through. It may be believed by many people that the Hollywood idea of individual responsibility hits nearer the mark of probability than Dreiser's theory of society responsibility, but that's not Dreiser, and Hollywood should get its script from its own sources. It is not its province to insist that Hamlet's mother was his aunt.

FASTER TRAINS.

The railroad executives are candid in saying that the 15 per cent rate increase they are asking at present is intended to meet an emergency. The increase will not permanently restore railroad prosperity. That will require measures of a different sort.

The railroads are suffering from a loss of traffic which has only been accentuated by the business depression. So far as passenger service is concerned, that loss has been cumulative over many years and is to be explained not in terms of less travel by the American people but in terms of diversion of travel to other forms of transportation. Most of the loss no doubt has come through the competition of the privately owned automobile, but the motor bus and of late the airplane have both taken heavy toll, the one from the day coaches and the other from the parlor cars. The airplane as yet has made no great inroad into freight traffic, but of course the motor bus, either privately owned or common carrier, has done much damage and this damage is likely to be increased if railroad rates are advanced materially. At the same time the gradual increase in the use of waterways by privately owned shipping lines will be speeded up directly as the burden of railroad freight charges increases.

If the railroads are to hold their own against these competitors it must be through improved service. The railroads must speed up. There is scarcely a train on the continent which could not have its schedule reduced by 25 per cent without in any sense jeopardizing the lives or the safety of the passengers. Seasoned travelers are continually impressed with the fact that even our twenty hour trains to New York, the pride of American railroading, make unnecessary stops and through much of the run loaf along at speeds which are far from hair-raising. It is not an uncommon sight to see automobiles on the parallel highways overtake and pass our crack trains, although the railroad has a protected right of way and a trained man at the throttle.

The American people, it has been frequently observed, are obsessed with the idea of speed. The railroads have not sought in recent years to capitalize this preference. They seem not to realize that even the commuter will take pride in speed. It is true that the ten minutes he might save in a forty minute run would not be worth much to him in dollars saved, but it is also true that he would place a high value upon the improvement in service. He would use his automobile less and the train oftener.

Speedier service will restore lost business to the railroads. It is one of the means of permanent rehabilitation which railroad managers should have under consideration. It can be laid down as axiomatic that unless passenger trains are speeded up materially business will continue to fall away. And there is much reason to believe that faster freight service, too, will stimulate business.

RESERVE OFFICERS VS. PACIFISM.

Graduates of the reserve officers' training camps are planning to form an alumni organization with the object of making their influence effective for the protection and advancement of national defense and other patriotic purposes. The project is admirable and we hope will be pursued vigorously. Pacifism and its allied pseudo-internationalism is highly organized and exercises an influence upon our government out of all proportion to the extent of their adherents in the nation. Our magazines and even our newspapers are full of pacifist theories and assumptions. There is persistent resistance to reasonable measures of preparedness, including the effort to abolish military training in the schools and colleges. This influence should be challenged and resisted and none is better fitted to counteract its effects than the young citizen of the reserve. We should like to see a similar association of graduates of the citizens' training camps, or, probably better still, the extension of the reserve officers' project to include them.

Editorial of the Day

[Council Bluffs World-Herald.]

A year ago promoters of miniature golf courses were coining money. The game had achieved a sudden vogue and, in Omaha, three score or more courses were crowded every evening. The equipment was relatively inexpensive, rents for vacant lots were low, and the patronage seemed inexhaustible. Everybody thought the promoters would make a killing.

But all that has ended now. The public has forgotten the game and all except a scant half dozen of the Omaha courses are overgrown with weeds. The profits of last summer were eaten up in the collapse.

A half dozen years ago there was sudden wealth in the oil business. The country was deluged with stories of oil millionaires, of farmers made extravagantly wealthy overnight, of leases and subleases made suddenly valuable by gushers. But the stories attracted too many drillers. Too many wells came in and too much oil was produced. Now an ordinary oil well is a liability and profits on the best wells have been whittled below the ordinary interest rate.

Two years ago people were getting rich in the market. Quotations were going up, they would always continue to go up, and the pathway of life would be an endless carpet of daisies. That theory, too, is now weed grown.

Somehow bonanzas never last. The gold is panned out by the first few who find them and those who follow must go to work or go hungry. That's why there are ghost cities in the west, capped oil wells in Oklahoma, weedy golf courses in Omaha, and railings around the tops of New York's skyscrapers.

The moral? Perhaps it is that you should get there first, before the diggings are worked out. Or perhaps it is something about hard work in fields that are known to be productive.

USEFUL REMEDIES ARE DANGEROUS.

A CORRESPONDENT asked recently about castor bean, the plant from which castor oil is made. It appears that some children have been poisoned by eating the pods of what seemed a harmless weed. When it was explained that this bean was the source of castor oil, the drug, the inquirer was bewildered.

He could not understand how a poison and a useful drug could be extracted from the same plant. He did not realize that every useful drug is harmful when improperly used. Castor oil is an illustration. This drug contains an irritating substance as well as a more ordinary vegetable oil. The oil itself may have a slightly laxative action but it would be no greater than that of olive oil, coconut oil, or corn oil.

Most of the laxative action of castor oil is due to the presence of irritating substances incorporated in it by the growing plant. Properly used, in correct doses, at the right times, and for suitable purposes, castor oil is one of the most useful drugs. Taken in too large doses it is an irritating poison, having some kinship to croton oil. Used daily, it is very harmful. That capacity for irritating, which makes it useful as a single dose given for a specific purpose, makes it bring about constipation when used habitually.

The castor bean and its extract, castor oil, always contain this poison. In the case of plants the poison may be in one part of the plant and not in another; or, in a certain part at one stage of development but not in another; or, in the plant when grown on some soils but not when grown elsewhere.

The part of the story which interests us more is that a drug which is very helpful used in one way may be very harmful used in another. The drugs that are safe are entirely inert and, practically always, are entirely useless. Money spent for them is wasted. The man who takes them is occupying his time, or entertaining or "bunking" himself, while nature is curing him, or while his disease is following its natural course.

Yesterday two men were overheard discussing beef, wine, and iron as a tonic. The well fellow was advising the ailing one to get a bottle of it. The would-be helpful friend told of having taken a bottle of it and having been cured of his ailment. One dose made him feel like a new man, and after the third dose he could see that he was well on the way to recovery. Of course, our well-intentioned friend had had no effect from one dose or three. He had been self-hypnotized, or cured by suggestion.

The medicines that are of real service when they are needed may be harmful if taken when they are not needed, or if taken in doses that are too large. The custom of taking drugs on slight provocation does much harm and would do more but that so many drugs are inert.

EXPECTANT MOTHER.

Mrs. E. A. C. writes: Will you please send me your book on the care of the expectant mother?

I would like to know what is the best diet to make a good, strong baby.

REPLY.

I have no book on prenatal care. You can get such a book by writing your state health department or the children's bureau, United States department of labor, Washington, D. C.

You should eat the ordinary amounts of standard, wholesome foods. You especially need milk, fruit juices, and yeast or wheat germ.

ANYBODY'S GUESS.

L. M. H. writes: I know a lady about 74 years old, apparently in good health, who has recently lost four fingernails on her right hand. They merely dropped off. The woman weighs about 180 pounds, leads a normal, simple life, and is apparently a well woman.

1. What does this signify?
2. Is it a disease of itself?
3. Is it hereditary?
4. Will nails grow again?
5. Is it a serious condition?

REPLY.

1. One guess is as good as another. It may be due to ringworm, some other infection of the nails, or perhaps to Raynaud's disease.
2. It might be.
3. No.
4. Probably not, but this is speculation.
5. Probably not.

FALSE ANSWERS.

Joliet, Ill., July 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Last fall A was divorced in Ohio and three weeks later married again in Illinois, but as her former marriage had been kept secret, she did not tell the minister about it and gave the names of her former parents-in-law as those of her real parents. She used her right name, however. 1. Is this marriage legal? 2. Could the minister do anything about it were he to learn she had lied about her former marriage?

H. S. J.

1. Yes, but the parties giving false answers to the license clerk are subject to prosecution.
2. He might report her to prosecuting officials. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ALWAYS HAZARDOUS.

Chicago, July 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Isn't there a law forbidding people from growing tall bushes at the extreme corner of an intersection? Such is the case on the southeast corner of Leamington and Dickens avenues. Recently these bushes were instrumental in causing an automobile accident. 2. Removal of these bushes may prevent future accidents.

L. H. T.

1. We know of no such law although we feel that there should be one.
2. We suggest that you try reporting the facts to the city forester.

CLAY PILE REMOVED.

Chicago, July 23.—[Friend of the People.]—Recently, in the alley on the west side of Kedzie avenue between 2300 and 2400 south, the landlord dumped a load of clay, which now proves to be a menace. Children are constantly throwing it around and it is a hazard to passing motorists. I wonder if you could force the owner to remove this?

F. F.

Report is made that clay complained of was removed. Notices were also served on householders in the vicinity to stop further dumping of any kind in the alley.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THEY TELL ME THAT IN CANADA—

They tell me that in Canada,
In happy, smiling Canada,
You're treated, if you're grown up,
As if you were of age,
And not as a pet monkey
That has got out of his cage.

You aren't told you mustn't swear,
You aren't told what you must wear,
You aren't told what you must think,
You aren't told what you must drink,
You're not talked to in childish prattle
And kept in a crib with a toy rattle;
You aren't classed with the ten year mites,
Nobody cares if you're out late nights,
Nobody cares your acts to scan,

Great Scott, can this thing really be?
I'll go to Canada and see.

They tell me that in Canada,
In happy smiling Canada,
Folks'll attend to their own business
And let me attend to mine,
And no one there will care if I—
Drink buttermilk or wine.

They do not think that grownups belong in bassinets,
They do not punch a lady for smoking cigarets,
They like to see you happy and none of them desires
To spoil your happy holiday by shooting off your tires;
They have no stern reformers there and no self-righteous bleaters,
No boards to guard your morals and (three cheers) no civic greeters.
They don't require of you to be a saint upon a shelf,
They only ask (it isn't much) that you behave yourself.

Now, can these things be really so?
Which way is Canada? Come on! Let's go!

WHAT! NO GUNS! The Illinois commission of prisons, probation, and parole now junketing in Europe is reported in the daily press to be thrilled, surprised, and dumfounded because of their amazing discovery that the police in England do not carry guns. Ah ha, but if that is news to the commission wait until they find out that in Paris a police officer says "oui, oui" instead of "yes, yes" when he is talking to other Frenchmen. And they understand him. Marvelous! And in Italy the coppers eat yards and yards of spaghetti, which enables them to pursue the Black Hand to its mountain lair. It's a wonderful world, and only by travel are we able properly to appreciate it.

THIS CHANGING WORLD! Time was when actors had their diamonds stolen to get on the front page. Now they have themselves stolen or are at least being in danger of being stolen. If we were a bandit we would rather steal an actor's diamonds than kidnap the actor himself. If we had him on our hands we'd have to listen to him tell what a great actor he is and how Joe Schenck broke down and cried all over the lot when he was starred in the films last winter.

"WHAT'S THE BIGGEST KICK you expect to get in going to Canada?" That's a serious question and we deliberated for some time when it was asked us by a man who has just come back from there. "Well," we said, after thinking it over, "probably a lonely house in the big trees on one of the Kawartha lakes, the Thousand Isles in the St. Lawrence, the Gaspe peninsula, or the deep forests of New Brunswick." He looked at us with a pitying smile. "The one big kick in Canada," sezze, "is to stick close to the border—so close you can look across straight into the U. S. of A. and the U. S. of A. can look at you. And you sit on a nice wide veranda and you pour out a stiff hooter of Scotch or Canadian rye, or something like that, into a glass, and you look straight across at the U. S. A. and the U. S. A. can look straight across at you and you raise your glass and say, 'Hello, Mister Volstead, here's mud in yer eye!' And you drink her down and don't get pinched or nothing. Boy, there's one awful wallop in that now, I'm telling yuh!" It sounds good; we'll think it over.

OLD DOC EVANS raises the question: "Does Eating Onions at Bedtime Lead to Domestic Tranquillity?" Much can be said on both sides, and usually is. However, eating onions at night seems preferable to eating crackers in bed. But the abandoned soul who will do one will invariably do the other. It is these things that have made Reno what it is today.

LAST SONNET IN A SEQUENCE.

Beauty is born too bright for mortal eyes,
Yet in the long sweet silences of love
A moment I have marked her where she lies Deepening that she is the shadow of;
As one may see with quick and sidelong glance
And dares not turn upon it, lest it go.
So do I know her as a prisoner knows
From his hot cell the unattainable hills,
And sickens for the coolness of the snows
A narrow glimpse between the crowding bars

COMING UP WITH A NUGGET

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 3, 1915.

AMSTERDAM. — The Luxemburg correspondent of the Tyd reports that 140,000 Germans in the last ten days have passed through Luxemburg on the way to the western war theater.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The United States has decided to ask the coöperation of South and Central America in the next step to restore peace to Mexico. The ambassadors from Argentina, Brazil, and Chile and the ministers from Bolivia, Uruguay, and Guatemala have been asked to confer with Secretary Lansing.

CHICAGO.—Documentary evidence tending to place the blame for the Eastland disaster on the steamboat inspection service, including high officials as well as local inspectors, was introduced before Secretary of Commerce Redfield's board of inquiry. This evidence came to light after Lieut. Gov. Barratt O'Hara had persuaded Secretary Redfield to make a more sweeping investigation than was originally intended. Robert Reid and Charles C. Eckliff, the Grand Haven inspectors, were brought to the inquiry in handcuffs. One of the chief exhibits of the day was a report made by George E. Foulkes, special agent for the treasury department in 1906. This report said that when Foulkes inspected the Eastland on Aug. 5, 1906, there were 2,530 passengers aboard and in many instances they were unable to find seats or move around with reasonable degree of comfort.

NEW YORK.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt will stand by the Progressive cause and will not reënter the Republican party. That was his definite statement at Oyster Bay after he returned with Mrs. Roosevelt from a visit to the Pacific coast.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 3, 1901.

CHICAGO.—Chicago just now is an immense hospital for horses that are coughing and sneezing and drooping their heads. With the breaking of the severe heat an epidemic swept over the city and leading livery men last evening estimated 90 per cent of the equine population is affected by a malady new to the veterinarians. They have not even a name by which to characterize the complaint. As nearly as the horse doctors can diagnose the disease it is a form of influenza which attacks only the equine kind.

CHICAGO.—Policeman John Duffcy, the giant of the Chicago force, died at his home, 668 West Erie street, of Bright's disease. He was 47 years old and his height in stocking feet was 6 feet 7¾ inches. He was by several inches the tallest Chicago policeman. Duffcy joined the force on Sept. 28, 1878. The last few years he was connected with the West Chicago avenue station and was generally stationed at Grand avenue and Halsted street.

CHICAGO.—To the duties of auxiliary bishop of the archdiocese of Chicago, Bishop P. J. Muldoon will add that of vicar general of the archdiocese, which dignity was bestowed upon him yesterday.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The crisis in the affairs of Colombia and Venezuela is serious. The state department is arranging with the navy department to rush a warship to those waters to protect American interests in case the situation gets worse.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 3, 1881.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The President gained in strength decidedly and passed a most comfortable day. It is now thought quite probable that he will be able to leave his sick couch within a fortnight, or three weeks at most. The evening fever continues and will probably continue for some time to come. It quickly subsides, however, and the physicians apprehend no danger. Dr. Agnew stated there was no feature in the case that did not indicate recovery.

LONDON.—The Irish land bill was read a second time in the house of lords last night without a division. Lord Denman, a Liberal peer, has given notice, however, that he will move the rejection of the bill on going into committee tomorrow. The indications are that the motion to reject will be defeated, but it is almost certain that the bill will be so amended by the lords that its authors will scarcely know it when it returns to the commons.

FREE PRESS IN ARGENTINA.

New York, July 31.—It is called to my attention that Mr. Paul J. Hogan of Chicago vehemently dissents from the opinion expressed in an Editor and Publisher editorial, which was reproduced in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, that the suppression of the Buenos Aires [Argentina] Critica and the jailing of the editor and his wife and employés was an outrageous piece of government censorship. Mr. Hogan asserts that the Critica was a "blackmail" sheet, a "yellow newspaper," "ferociously anti-American," "anarchistic," and "morally responsible" for the bombing of the Buenos Aires branches of two American banks. In conclusion, Mr. Hogan says that American newspaper men should be careful to pick out only "respectable" newspapers for their support against government censorship.

I have made an investigation of the newspaper situation in Argentina as it exists under Provisional President Uriburu, and the facts, as I get them from responsible sources, are contrary to Mr. Hogan's views.

More than two months ago government agents without warning seized possession of the office of Critica, a newspaper with the largest circulation in Buenos Aires, locked the doors, and arrested Señor Natalio Botano, the editor and publisher; his wife, and two of his chief employés. They have been held incommunicado since that time. The charge against them is not "blackmail" or "anarchy," but the publication of matter critical of the administration. Only last week six other newspapers were suppressed by the authorities because of their political utterances, one being El Mundo, with large circulation and excellent reputation. Furthermore, the government has demanded that foreign press correspondents refrain from sending out of the country news which reflects discreditably upon Argentina or its ruling party. Mr. Hogan would not say, I assume, that all of the editors and correspondents that have felt the iron heel of Uriburu are "blackmailers" or "morally" responsible for bombing, or are anarchistic or anti-America.

It is true that Critica was a sensational newspaper, and judging from press reports from Argentina the social and political conditions have been sensational enough to warrant such publication. Surely it is "sensational" for the president of a country to turn on the editor of a newspaper that supported his revolutionary activity only a few months ago and incarcerate him and his gentle wife in a vile prison like common criminals. Critica was apparently quite all right when it was defending Uriburu, but it is all that Mr. Hogan claims, in the eyes of Uriburu, when it criticizes his administration. Indeed, as press reports indicate, several of the very best citizens of Argentina have joined the Critica editor in prison in recent weeks, and it is an interesting coincidence that they have been guilty of uttering unfavorable comments about Uriburu. I suppose Mr. Hogan would not presume to say that such men as ex-President Marcelo T. de Alvear and former Ambassador to the United States Honorio Pueyrredon, now under arrest, are "blackmailers," yellow, anti-American, or anarchistic.

Mr. Hogan's statements do not hold together. The reason Argentina is seeking to uphold her fair name in this country at this time, whether such fame is deserved or not, is doubtless related to the fact that on Oct. 1 she will ask the American people to subscribe to a refunding operation involving some $80,000,000.

Our interest concerns nothing but the principle of free press. Suppression through censorship is repugnant to Americans, whether on this soil or in foreign nations. If Critica was all that Mr. Hogan alleges it could easily have been reached by the laws of Argentina. Its crimes were political and it must be gagged and its editor persecuted. This, then, is the exact measure of the Uriburu administration, depending upon merciless force to gain the world's favorable opinion.

MARLIN PEW,
Editor of The Editor and Publisher.

$10.62 A DAY.

Chicago, July 25.—No doubt you will receive numerous replies to the janitor's lament regarding the proposal to cut salaries of school employés. However, I must have my say.

I just wish I could have a salary of $10.62 for six hours' work, no matter if I had to sit on the top of Tribune tower, and after working at that wage scale for 22 years it would seem to me that a man would be in a position to take a little cut in a crisis like this.

After all, I wonder if Mr. Glanier stops to think that his earnings are not the interest on any investment such as education.

Four days a week at $10.62 is $42.48. Just think of the men and families that would be elated over such wages. I'm going to raise my boys to be glaziers and politicians.

W. J. SOMMA.

CARDIGAN.

Chicago, July 18.—Mr. Taylor must be suffering from delusions. They were not Swedes; they were Russians. No doubt the following is what he is trying to get into his head:

"'Tis a famous story:
Proclaim it far and wide,
And let your children's children
Reecho it with pride,
How Cardigan the fearless,
His name immortal made,
When he killed ten thousand Russians
With his glorious Light Brigade."

ED LAWSON.

THE FATHER OF THE NAVY.

Chicago, July 28.—I am much obliged to the Rev. McCaffery for his information on Mr. Barry. However, I cannot think that the schedule of naval bushwhacking which he compiled warrants for Mr. Barry the title, "Father of the American Navy," or puts him in a class with that superb Virginian, John Paul Jones.

MACCARTER.

MAYBE THE FORT SHERIDAN AIRPLANE.

Chicago, July 29.—Recently I read in the Voice of the People, that some one had seen a peculiar cometlike phenomena in the sky. I did not pay much attention to it until tonight, while standing on the beach I saw it appear in the northwest at about 9:30. It looks something like a falling star, but it is much too bright for that. What can it be?

AT THE NEW LOW PRICES. FURNITURE PRICES THE LOWEST IN 14 YEARS

THE John M. Smyth Store reflects the new low prices that have come into the home furnishing business. We are doing this by placing on each piece of furniture a price tag which shows the new low price and the former price the article sold for. You can quickly judge for yourself the saving to you that today's new low prices offer over what you would have paid at former prices.

We have advertised for many years that "you can visit through without a salesman." We invite you to see our display floors yourself and at your leisure become acquainted with the new low prices in furniture.

We bought liberally in the June market. We always sample about seventy bedroom suites—each different in design—and about sixty dining room suites. Because of liberal purchasing in the new market we have a larger showing of new furniture than ever before in the memory of our present buying staff. And, of course, this new furniture is at the new low prices, so you have an opportunity to select the latest designs at the lowest prices that furniture has been sold for in fourteen years. We are of the opinion that furniture prices have reached bottom. It was this opinion that induced us to invest heavily in the new merchandise.

We are manufacturers of upholstered furniture, and you will find on our Living Room Floor that we show each piece with its former price and its new low price. In Orientals and Chinese rugs the reductions have been tremendous, much more so than in carpets and domestic rugs.

If you wish a truthful presentation of the reductions that have taken place in home furnishing prices, visit the John M. Smyth Store. Our price tags show accurately, without exaggeration, the real decline in price that has actually occurred.

STATE ORDERS 17 INDIANA COUNTIES TO INCREASE TAX

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Orders were issued last night by the state boards of review in seventeen counties to increase the original tax assessments made this spring on various classes of personal property to equalize the assessments with those of other counties.

The board approved the assessments made by local taxing officials in the remaining 75 counties.

Counties in which increases are ordered are: Bartholomew, Daviess, Decatur, Floyd, Greene, Harrison, Howard, Knox, Monroe, Montgomery, Newton, Orange, Scott, Sullivan, Switzerland, Washington, and White.

Action of the state board followed a week's conference with assessors and other officials of the ninety-two counties.

In ordering the readjustments the board asserted:

"The board finds and determines that in order to accomplish a just and fair equalization of assessment either as between classes of property and as between local taxing units, and as between the different counties of the state, so that the same may be in harmony with assessments in all taxing units and counties, the changes should be made by the respective boards of review, to be convened in special session Tuesday and report back by Aug. 10."

With Prices Bumping on the Bottom Our August Sales

No less an authority than John D. Rockefeller is credited with the remark that one of the easiest ways to make money is to buy straw hats in the wintertime. The same principle applies to the purchase of furs, shoes, furniture, and certain other things in the summertime... In our opinion it is wise to buy almost anything in today's market—before an upturn sets in. Money buys more right now than it has bought for many years, and at the extra concessions offered in these August Sales it has a power that you should be tempted to take advantage of . . . All basic materials have been very low in price for weeks, and some of them are tending upward . . . We have purchased well assorted stocks and we believe that at present prices merchandise is a good investment. We believe it is also a good investment for our customers.

JOSEPH'S VISION GUIDES PLAN TO FEED THE NEEDY

Dr. Myers Finds Lesson in Story of Old Egypt.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Taking as his text that passage in Genesis which describes the Joseph of ancient Egypt opening his grain stores to feed all nations stricken with famine, the Rev. Dr. Johnston Myers, for thirty-six years pastor of Immanuel Baptist church, 2320 Michigan avenue, yesterday morning conducted an unusual service.

In his audience sat rich and poor alike. All were eager to catch the words from the man who for years has been feeding Chicago's hungry, and who last week launched a movement to bring surplus fruits, vegetables and grain from the nearby countryside to feed Chicago's hungry this fall and winter.

Children Give Thanks in Song.

Two hundred children at the opening of the service sang a composition written for the occasion by Mrs. E. C. Miller, one of Dr. Myers' workers. Theirs was a song of thanks for the privilege of being sent to the parks and for their nourishment at the hands of the pastor and willing donors to his fund.

In the galleries sat hundreds of friends and relatives of the children and other persons who have been drawn from the ranks of communism to a brighter outlook on life because they have been fed and comforted.

"Joseph was a statesman, a man of vision," declared Dr. Myers. "There were periodic famines in Egypt, perhaps corresponding to our periods of depression. Joseph believed that such a famine was near at hand and he filled the storehouses with grain in preparation for the days of want, when there would be no food.

The Lesson Taught by Joseph.

"He had these central food supply stations to which the people could come in their hour of need. So perfect was his preparation that even the countries round about came to purchase their food from Egypt. People who were hungry became restless and dangerous; and Joseph saved his government and nation."

Dr. Myers, referring to the starting of the similar movement in Chicago, on much simpler plans, declared:

"Food is fundamental to the life of a nation. America must feed her people this winter or our republican form of government will be in peril. And America can feed her people.

"We have never before had a more abundant supply of food in our country than we have today. We need some one with the spirit of a Joseph to bring this food to our people. It is not difficult or expensive to gather these food supplies at central places to which the people in need could come.

Farmers Offer to Help.

"The time to gather this food is now before the cold weather comes. Our unemployed men and those dependent on them are entitled to eat, and they are anxious to help gather in the supplies. The response from farmers, who themselves are losing heavily on returns from their crops, has been gratifying and indicates a noble attitude in this time of emergency."

Today, Dr. Myers declared, the first of many trucks, donated by Chicago business men and manned by husky unemployed fathers, will start into Michigan to pick up the "food offerings."

Pastors in many rural communities have also announced from their pulpits the needs of Chicago's poor and have written Dr. Myers they would be glad to place him in touch with supplies among farmers and gardeners.

STAR BOARDERS ARE DINING ON FORK HANDLES

In Fact Grasshoppers Eat About Everything.

Bran moistened with molasses is a delicacy. Such a mixture, however, is the lorelei that leads them to their death, entomologists having found bran, molasses, and arsenic the most effective control method.

Some farmers in North and South Dakotas, Iowa, Nebraska, and Minnesota already have spread the bran mush on their fields and have done much to curb the invasion.

This week the Iowa department of agriculture plans to use airplanes to spread the mixture along wastelands to kill the insects whose presence a few days ago filled farmers with apprehension lest there be a recurrence of the devastating hopper plagues of the 1870's.

Grasshoppers don't rebel at a steady diet of corn, alfalfa and other grain. In fact they ate bare a 1,600 acre field in South Dakota. But when these foods have been exhausted they readily turn to weeds and even pitchforks.

LAUNDRY OFFICE ROBBED.

Two Negroes entered Wouter's laundry, 2527 South Wabash avenue, yesterday and at the muzzles of revolvers forced George F. Gibson, the manager, to open the safe and give them $483.

'GO TO RUSSIA, YOUNG MAN,' SHAW'S ADVICE; RETURNS TO ENGLAND

LONDON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—George Bernard Shaw came home from Russia today, said he was sorry to be back, and that he would advise a young man to go to Russia and settle there.

"Russia is putting her house in order," Shaw said. "All the other nations are playing the fool.

"I cannot speak in detail about the great experiment I have seen, for what I have to say must be carefully thought out and written and I have made arrangements to do this.

"Meanwhile, all I can add is this—we had better follow Russia's example as soon as possible."

Shaw chuckled when he was asked whether he and the other members of his party, including Lord and Lady Astor and the marquis of Lothian, were treated well.

"Treated well?" he said, laughing. "We were treated like kings and the food we had was very good."

Asked whether the cost of living was high, he said:

"Well, it's like everywhere else. You can live expensively in Russia, if you want to, but you can also live quite cheaply."

TEACHERS MEET TOMORROW ON PAY ROLL CRISIS

A special meeting of the Chicago Teachers' federation will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the Capitol building to discuss the teachers' pay roll situation. Miss Margaret Haley, business representative of the federation, will explain the plan formulated by the executive board of the federation, by which, it is hoped, money may be obtained to pay overdue salaries. The city council already has approved the sale of 1930 education fund tax warrants held by the city in surplus funds and the purchase of similar 1931 warrants.

CHICAGO PUSHES PLANS TO CLINCH 32 CONVENTIONS

Financial Program to Be Completed Soon.

Financial plans for bringing both the Democratic and Republican conventions of 1932 to Chicago will be completed soon, according to the statement yesterday by Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the nonpartisan committee created by the Chicago Association of Commerce.

"Preliminary arrangements for launching the financial program," read the announcement, "are being completed. Almost daily conferences are being held with Walter J. Malatesta, manager of the committee, and William J. Hennessy, executive secretary.

Preparing Detailed Report.

"Actual work of raising the necessary funds to insure the conventions for Chicago will be directed by Mr. Malatesta. Mr. Hennessy, manager of the convention bureau of the Chicago Association of Commerce, is directing the preparation of a detailed report on Chicago's advantages as a convention city."

Chairman Hurley said he expected rapid progress.

"The program for raising the necessary funds to bring the conventions to Chicago," he said, "will be ready within a month. Following its approval by the executive committee of the citizens' group preparations will be made to present the appeal for financial support to the outstanding civic, commercial, and industrial leaders of the city.

Response Is Gratifying.

"The response from national committeemen of both parties to Chicago's invitation has been gratifying. Indications are that Chicago is well regarded as a convention city by both Democratic and Republican leaders."

Chairman Hurley appealed to all Chicagoans to aid the committee by telling their friends throughout the country of the Chicago plan.

"Bringing the convention here," he said, "means a great deal to the city—the presence of more than 150,000 visitors. We want to assure all prospective visitors that such a visit would be enjoyable, that our hotel facilities are unsurpassed, that cool breezes assure comfortable temperatures, that central location reduces transportation costs to a minimum."

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS.

Dies of Shot by 12 Year Old Son Defending Mother

Ashland, Ky., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Dr. Oscar E. Bailey, 40, of Estep, Lawrence county, died here today of a shotgun wound inflicted by his 12 year old son, Billy, at their home yesterday. Billy said he believed his father had whipped a younger son to death and he fired to save his mother's life when his father attacked her after she interfered with the whipping.

CRUSADERS ASK R. E. CHURCH FOR DRY LAW STAND

Open Canvass of Candidates for Congress.

The first of a series of letters asking congressional candidates for a declaration on the prohibition issue was sent yesterday by Col. Ira L. Reeves, division manager of the Crusaders, to State Representative Ralph E. Church of Evanston, candidate for the Republican nomination for congress from the new 13th district.

RALPH CHURCH.

Col. Reeves said an effort will be made by his division of the Crusaders, an anti-prohibition organization, to determine the wet or dry stand of each candidate in ten of the central states before the primaries next April.

The letter to Mr. Church called attention to "the fact that you led the fight in the lower house of the last legislature against the bill for the repeal of the state search and seizure act and that you were the recognized floor leader for the Anti-Saloon league and the W. C. T. U. in that fight."

"You doubtless know," the letter went on, "that the majority of the voters of your district favored the repeal of the state search and seizure law and also cast their ballots against the 18th amendment and for modification of the Volstead act."

Representative Church said yesterday that he had not yet received the Reeves letter and that he would answer it "at the proper time." He said he would make his stand clear on all issues before primary day.

In Legislature Eight Terms.

Voters in the 13th district have recently received literature endorsing the candidacy of Mr. Church, stressing the fact that he has served 16 years in the legislature, having been reelected for eight successive terms with increasing majorities. He announced his candidacy immediately after the passage of the reapportionment bill at Springfield.

Among the 277 North shore residents listed as having signed an endorsement of Mr. Church are Harry Eugene Kelly, William R. Dawes, Fred W. Sargent, Edward L. Schaub, Eugene M. Stevens, Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal church, Ernest F. Tittle, President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern university, and Dean John H. Wigmore also of Northwestern.

Wet Attorney Enters Race.

William Capesius, an attorney with offices in the Ashland block, who lives in Winnetka, announced himself yesterday as a candidate for the Democratic congressional nomination in the 13th district. He said that he opposed the further centralization of power in the federal government and favored repeal of the 18th amendment with state control of the liquor question.

Two other Republican candidates have entered the congressional race in the 13th district. They are James Simpson Jr., and Stephen A. Day, the latter an avowed wet. The district embraces all of Cook county north of North avenue outside of Chicago and all of Lake county.

Thousands of Poor Kids Are to See the Circus

During the nine day engagement of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus, which opens in Grant park Saturday, thousands of crippled children, boy and girl inmates of orphanages, and under privileged children will visit the show as guests of the management.

Mrs. Charles E. Frankenthal of Chicago, who acts as director of charities for the circus, has charge of all arrangements. It is hoped to have over 1,000 such children at the show daily, from Monday, Aug. 10, to Friday, Aug. 14.

RADIOS IN THIRD OF HOMES; MAY REVIVE TRADE

New York, Aug. 2.—[Special.]—About 10,000,000 homes in the United States, one-third of the total in the country, are equipped with radio sets, according to calculations of the census bureau, it was revealed tonight by Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce.

The figures show, Dr. Klein added, that the radio industry at present is only half grown, and he expressed the opinion that its further growth may help materially in bringing about the expected recovery from the present business depression.

Dr. Klein quoted the estimate of Martin Codel that the present total capital investment in all branches of the radio field amounts to 3 billion dollars. He compared this figure with the 3 billion capital investment in the soft coal mining industry, 5 billion valuation of American electric railways, and the 3 billion invested in national shipping and canals.

WORLD BANKERS DISCUSS GERMAN CREDIT PLIGHT

Relief Committee Called for Saturday.

BY EGBERT SWENSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BASEL, Switzerland, Aug. 2.—The directors of the World bank today fixed next Saturday as the date for the committee of inquiry into German credit needs to start functioning, and reached the conclusion that two or three weeks should probably be sufficient for the committee to render its report.

GATES W. McGARRAH. [U. & U. Photo.]

The committee was originally scheduled to start early in the week, but the meeting was postponed until Saturday, as the American member, Albert Henry Wiggin, chairman of the board of directors of the Chase National bank, will not arrive until then. There will be nine other members of committee, whose principal task will be to study the possibilities of converting a portion of Germany's short term credits into long term credits, although the French will doubtless try to transform it into an inquisitional body.

Discuss British Crisis.

The bank's directors this afternoon also discussed the British crisis and possible consequences. No formal proposals were made and the general view is that the Franco-American credit will take care of the situation for the time being at least. This is interesting, in view of the extreme coolness hitherto prevailing between the Bank of England and the World bank, which the British accuse of being dominated by France.

The reports on the condition of Austria and Hungary were also heard this afternoon without any action being announced.

This afternoon's meeting was purely informal. The official meeting will be held at 10 o'clock tomorow, which is a week earlier than the usual date for the regular monthly conference. This was considered necessary, due to the emergency of the situation. It is expected that the bank will recommend another three months extension of the $100,000,000 loans to Germany which was originally due on July 16.

Two Members Absent.

All of the ten members of the board of governors were present this afternoon except Dr. Hans Luther of the Reichsbank and Montagu Norman of the Bank of England.

"NO MORE WAR"

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—"No more war," was the slogan of 30,000 men and women who gathered for a Socialist demonstration today, recalling the start of the world war 17 years ago. For three hours they listened while German nd French orators denounced war and sang the praises of peace.

Siegfried Aufhaeuser, member of the reichstag, declared that all the world must work together in friendship, rich and poor alike, striving to end the present business depression.

"France Holds Key to Aid."

"The key to the understanding and financial help for Germany is in the hands of France," he said. "All obstacles to coöperation with France must be removed. The French are worried about the steel helmet parades, the cavalry meetings of the old timers, and the national Socialist intrigues. Chauvinist slogans are not only useless but are driving the friends of Germany away from her. Only a Franco-German understanding will open the road to liberty for us."

The French deputy, S. Grumbach, urged Franco-German coöperation against the radical communists and Fascisti in both countries.

"Finances are not an important feature of our relations. Mutual trust is what we need," he said, and 30,000 Germans cheered his words.

Catalonia Votes for Liberty Lost Over Two Centuries Ago

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BARCELONA, Aug. 2.—Catalonia today put into the hands of her elderly champion, Col. Francisco Macia, provisional president, the weapon he has been waiting for.

In a provincial plebescite, marked by great enthusiasm, Catalonia gave practically its unanimous approval to the constitution which defines the liberties of a people oppressed for over two centuries.

There was a record vote. In Barcelona 183,000 persons went to the polls, more than in the constituent assembly election and more than in the municipal vote that "dethroned" Alfonso. Only 3,000 votes were cast against the constitution here, and in scores of villages there was not a single dissenting vote.

Liberty, or Civil War.

The approval of the constitution was so nearly unanimous that it makes it clear that the only alternative to liberty for Catalonia—in federal relationship with the rest of Spain—is civil war. But at the present there seems to be no danger of a revolution.

To obtain the smashing vote and to definitely silence the Castilian claims that Catalonia is not willing to follow Col. Macia to her ruin, the generalitad spent vast sums of money on election propaganda. No moving vehicle appeared today without posters calling on the Catalans to revive their glorious past. All vertical surfaces were plastered and airplanes cluttered up the horizontal surfaces.

To make it unanimous, the generalitad has done even more. It has got itself into commitments with "the one big union," the anarcho-syndicalist-labor colossus, that will lead it to where, no one knows. Minister of the Interior Maura said on the floor of parliament in Madrid recently that if Col. Macia didn't watch out he would find that he had won all those liberties for a corpse.

Macia Wins Syndicalist Vote.

Three to four hundred thousand syndicalists in Catalonia are reckoned to have at least 65,000 votes. Col. Macia apparently got these today. But his truce with the syndicalists, safely extended these many weeks, runs out next Saturday. A general strike is threatened then. Tomorrow the metal workers, who number 55,000, will go out, demanding, among other things, higher wages for family men.

Col. Macia promises his intimates that he will extricate himself from the syndicalist embrace when the time is ripe and that he will preserve order, too. The greatest nervousness prevails among employers, however.

In Barcelona alone 90,000 women approved the statute. The average Catalan tonight is convinced that the constitution is now a reality, no matter what the Madrid parliament does.

FRANCE USES SEX APPEAL TO LURE BOYS INTO ARMY

Wants Recruits to Help Cure Jobless Crisis.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 2.—To combat the growing unemployment—now about 18,000, which looks big to the French military authorities are conducting a crafty campaign for voluntary enlistments in the army.

Seductive posters smeared throughout the country point out the advantages and pleasures of military life. These posters, urging enlistment, frankly utilize sex appeal, getting the idea across by picturing scantily clad Indo-Chinese dancing girls; langorous, veiled Moorish women, and other enticements—so much so that some reformers are protesting that the posters are corrupting youthful minds.

A "Patriotic Privilege."

Posters advertising the army at home take a more practical slant. Here the plan is one for relief of the unemployed is not expressed in so many words, as that would detract from the dignity of the service. Instead, voluntary service is stressed as a glorious, patriotic privilege. The posters dwell at length upon the good pay and food the soldiers are supposed to get, and the great opportunities offered a recruit to master a trade which will insure him of a lucrative position upon quitting the army.

At first glance it is difficult for many observers to see why authorities would need voluntary enlistment to reduce unemployment when universal compulsory service exists. There is a purely military angle, of course—enlistments call for three years' service, and this naturally produces a corps of trained men to swell the already large standing army.

One of the chief reasons for voluntary enlistments is to remove the large number of jobless youths from the streets. Under French law a year's military service is compulsory—except for students and a limited number of special exemptions for married men between the ages of 20 and 21. A boy cannot do his regular one year "trick" until he is 20, whereas he can voluntarily enlist at 18, graduating three years later.

No New Jobs Open.

Precisely those boys between the ages of 16 and 20 find it most difficult to get jobs, both because of a lack of training and because employers will not give a responsible job to any one who has not completed his military service.

The comparatively low unemployment figures show the number of men being laid off is very small, but there are practically no new jobs open. Each month a few thousand more boys reach the minimum legal working age, and there is no work for them. So, unless the majority can be coaxed into the army, the list of jobless swells alarmingly.

Many adherents of universal military service believe this in itself is a big factor in reducing unemployment. Obviously, they say, the taking of between 220,000 and 260,000 men out of industrial competition every year has a beneficial effect, but social experts do not think it is a major factor. They insist that if compulsory service was gradually abandoned over half the total number of men released would be absorbed by industry under the present conditions.

Draft Brings Suffering.

In a prolonged crisis even, it is pointed out, compulsory service creates a great deal of suffering, if only of a temporary nature. It is charged that because boys who have finished their service are not let out gradually but twice each year in large classes and when work is hard to find, it naturally confuses things to discharge 100,000 soldiers at one time.

What is really the predominant factor in the comparative lack of jobless in France is the total army effectives, including professional and long term soldiers, who total almost 700,000 at any given time.

One class of unemployment upon which the army has no effect, however, is the number of partially unemployed. At present there are over 1,500,000 on part-time pay, most of them getting only a small fraction of their former salaries. But, owing to the prevailing scale of living in France and the enormously wide distribution of land, whereby nearly every one has a relative on a farm who can take him in for awhile, much less is heard about their suffering than in other countries.

Turkish Brigands Raid Syria and Kill Five

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

JERUSALEM, Aug. 2.—A band of 150 Turkish brigands today crossed the northern Turkish border into Syria at Senarich, attacked and looted villages, killed three villagers and two shepherds, wounded many more, and drove off large flocks of cattle and sheep. Returning from the raid, the brigands clashed near the border with a detachment of border police. In the engagement five brigands and three policemen were killed.

HOW WASHINGTON BEAT REDCOATS AT YORKTOWN

Historic Letter Tells of Outwitting British.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Anxiety lest reenactment of the surrender of the British army of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown, Va., to American and French troops might offend British sensibilities apparently overlooks the true historic significance of that battle.

In Washington's own conception, the stroke was aimed primarily "to revive the expiring hopes and languid exertions of the country" in that dark year of 1781.

Washington outlined to Noah Webster in 1788, seven years after the victory, the objectives he sought in that engagement. Webster had asked whether originally it had not been planned to lay siege to British forces in New York.

In his letter in answer, Washington paints a vivid picture of the cares that constantly harassed him and of the strategy to which he had to resort against his own army and his own countrymen, as well as against British generals.

"To Noah Webster,

"Sir,

"I duly received your letter of the 14th of July, and can only answer that a combined operation of the land and naval forces of France and America, for the year 1781, was preconcerted the year before; that the point of attack was not absolutely agreed upon: that it was determined by me [nearly twelve months beforehand], at all hazards to give out and cause it to be believed by the highest military as well as civil officers that New York was the destined place of attack, for the important purpose of inducing greater exertions in furnishing specific supplies, as well as for the purpose of rendering the enemy less prepared elsewhere, that it was the fixed determination to strike the enemy in the most vulnerable quarter; that New York was thought to be beyond our effort, and consequently the only hesitation that remained was between an attack upon the British army in Virginia or that in Charleston; and, finally, after the intervention of several communications, the hostile post in Virginia became the definitive and certain object of the campaign.

"Some splendid advantage was so essentially necessary to revive the expiring hopes and languid exertions of the country, at the crisis in question.

"That much trouble was taken and finesse used to misguide and bewilder Sir Henry Clinton in regard to the real object is certain. Nor were less pains taken to deceive our own army; for I had always conceived, when the imposition did not completely take place at home, it could never sufficiently succeed abroad."

PLAN HUGE COAL MERGER TO SAVE BRITISH INDUSTRY

Would Operate Mines in Six Units.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 2.—A gigantic scheme for the amalgamation of British coal mines—a plan for dividing Great Britain into six geographical units, each to be a self-contained undertaking in which only the collieries which could be worked economically would continue production—is proposed in the first report of the coal mines reorganization commission, which was appointed under the coal mines act last year. The report will be issued tomorrow.

The commission insists on the vital need for reduction in costs by the industry through the "concentration of productive effort." The present state of affairs in the British coal industry, in which there are over 1,000 independent operating units, the commission condemns as out of keeping with world conditions of production today.

The report is submitted "not dogmatically, but tentatively, as a basis for discussion" to the owners of all big mines in the country. If it is adopted, the reorganization scheme will involve the reduction of approximately 1,000 individual colliery organizations to six great amalgamations; the closing of hundreds of uneconomic mines and the conversion of whole districts now active into derelict areas, and the dismissal probably of 100,000 miners.

Days of Ease Gone.

"The days of easy supremacy have gone," states the commission's memorandum in outlining the case for the drastic proposals. "The supply exceeds the demand and costs are swollen by part time working, and the unrestricted competition of many hundreds of independent units, which served well enough when we had things all our own way, but which are positively destructive in the altered conditions of today. The vital need of industry today is that costs should be reduced by the concentration of productive effort. More pits ought to work at fuller capacity and some ought to stop altogether, at least temporarily, if not permanently."

Both the central sales organizations and the quota system as alternatives to the amalgamation have been rejected by the commission.

Plan Group Directorates.

It is suggested that the geographical grouping of six units be: Scotland, Ayr, Lanark, Fife and the Lothians; northeast—Northumberland, Durham; northwest—Lancashire and Cheshire; east midlands—West Yorkshire, South Yorkshire, Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire; central midlands—North Staffordshire, South Staffordshire, Cannock Chase, Shropshire, Warwickshire, South Derbyshire and Leicestershire; South Wales and Monmouthshire.

In addition there are six small coal fields which do not fall naturally into any group—the Forest of Dean, Bristol, Somerset, Kent, Cumberland, and North Wales.

Each group, it is suggested, should be controlled by a central directorate, to determine where coal for which there is a demand can be best produced, the control of sales, wages, and the research and treatment of coal, and regulation of finance and policy.

6 SUBMARINES, 2 PLANE SHIPS ON NAVAL SLATE

Program Is Worked Out for Congress.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Aviation and underseas craft dominate the new warship authorization program which has just been worked out by the navy department for submission to congress in December. Of 11 ships which the navy wants authorized this winter, and under way in the fiscal year beginning next July, two are aircraft carriers, one a flying deck cruiser carrying from thirty-six to forty-eight airplanes six are submarines and one is a 6 inch gun cruiser. The eleventh vessel is a destroyer leader, an experimental type of craft in so far as the United States navy is concerned.

REP. FRED A. BRITTEN. [A. P. Photo.]

While Secretary of the Navy Adams is not ready to make recommendations to President Hoover regarding the size of the building program he believes should be authorized this winter, the navy general board and officers of Mr. Adams' cabinet are agreed that appropriations should be voted at the next session of congress.

Funds are wanted to begin work on twelve new vessels in the 1933 fiscal year, to continue work on eleven destroyers to be begun this year, and to put the finishing touches on the aircraft carrier and 8 inch gun cruisers now under construction in American government and private shipbuilding yards. Of these twelve new ships, but one is authorized an 8 inch gun 10,000 to treaty cruiser. The other eleven must be authorized.

The eleven ship program, already drafted, represents one year's installment of a long program which must be authorized and built if the United States is to remain among the leading naval powers. Whether the authorization bill submitted to congress this winter will carry more than one of these installments will not be known until after further conferences have been held by Mr. Adams with President Hoover.

Mr. Britten wants a two or three year program adopted while Mr. Hale is on record as favoring adoption of a half billion dollar program authorizing all ships which this country needs to build in the next five or eight years to attain London treaty parity with Great Britain.

One thing now appears certain. The failure of congress and the Hoover administration to pass the $74,000,000 dent Hoover, Representative Fred A. cruiser and aircraft bill at the short session has definitely set the navy one year back in its campaign to build up naval treaty.

TEST SHOWS TALKIE ON NATURE BEST WAY TO TEACH CHILDREN

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—The boy or girl who looks and listens to a talkie about toads or volcanoes will know twice as much about toads or volcanoes after seeing the picture than before.

So it was announced today by the United States commissioner of education in a report on the recent tests of sound pictures as a factor in education. As the result of a call issued by President Hoover, children from 47 states and the District of Columbia took the tests.

The five test pictures were about "toads," "monarch butterflies," "volcanoes," "glaciers" and "river valleys." In the first two Dr. Clyde Fisher of the American Museum of Natural History gave the screen lecture. The last three showed President W. W. Atwood of Clark university at the blackboard with illustrative scenes interspersed.

The children answered correctly on an average 19 more questions out of the 50 on each test after seeing the picture than they did before, or a gain of 38 per cent. A previous test with silent pictures demonstrated a gain of only 19 per cent.

Measured by increase of knowledge, the average gain was 115 per cent, or more than a doubling of the children's knowledge of the five subjects studied.

GOTHAM POLICE GIVEN CLEW IN CHILD SLAYING

New York, Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Through information secretly supplied by eyewitnesses to the shooting, the police believe they have at last established the identity of the gangster gunmen who felled five children, killing one of them by shotgun and pistol fire. in West 107th street Tuesday.

Just how near detectives may be to making an arrest was not disclosed. Acting Capt. Louis B. Hyams, in charge of the investigation, insisted that he was "sure we'll eventually break the case."

A shotgun and pistol believed to have figured in the shooting have been found.

All available detectives were investigating new "leads" and the streets of Harlem and the Italian quarter quarter were patrolled by an added detail of fifty "rookie" policemen.

TAKEN FOR RIDE ON OCEAN LINER, HE CANNOT STOP

England and U. S. Won't Let Him Land.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Peter Russell appeared tonight to be on the way to a record for nonstop Atlantic crossings although not—emphatically not—through any desires of his own.

Peter's troubles began when he missed his ship at Cork some time ago and stowed away on the steamship Bellflower. On arrival here he promptly was deported on the steamship Winona County by United States immigration officials. Arriving in England, British authorities refused to let him land, and sent him back.

Peter and the Winona County docked here yesterday and American authorities again refused to let Peter leave the ship. He claims he was born in Scotland, and American officials rule he is a British subject. English authorities declare he is an American seaman. And, while two nations argue over his status, Peter, temporarily at least, has become a man without a country.

Russian Border Guards Kill Woman, Nab Children

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Aug. 2.—While attempting to cross the Soviet-Latvian frontier, near the village of Rabinkino, a middle aged woman was shot and killed by soviet frontier guards yesterday. Latvian border guards who witnessed the shooting said the woman was accompanied by two small children who had reached the bank of a creek in the middle of the neutral zone when four Red guards opened fire. As the woman fell dead the Russians seized the children and took them back into Russia.

Bandits Get Only 25c, So They Steal Victim's Pants

The weather being such that he could not sleep, Harry Erickson, 7240 Langley avenue, went out for a walk early yesterday morning. At Seventy-sixth street and Ingleside avenue he was stopped by three gunmen who were angry when they found that Erickson had only twenty-five cents, so they forced him to disrobe and took his clothes. Erickson took refuge in a fire station at Seventy-sixth street and Dobson avenue until the police brought him a pair of pants.

Parole Violator Tires of Soup Lines; He'll Go Back

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Paul Adams, 34, walked into the county jail tonight, told Sheriff Henry Behrendt he is a parole violator from Illinois state prison at Joliet, and asked to be returned there. He said he had grown weary of soup lines and had decided to turn to burglary when he reached Detroit three days ago. It was in fear that he would yield to that impulse, he said, that he gave himself up to serve the eight years that yet main of a ten year sentence.

On the last part of a tour awarded him as part of the prize for downing 400 contestants in a spelling contest, conducted by the Brooklyn board of education and the Paramount theater there, Bernard Friend, 11 years old, left Chicago yesterday for his home. Bernard was the youngest competitor enrolled in the trials. He was accompanied on his tour by his mother.

Taste will Tell!
Slowly sip "Selected" milk — then sip the milk you wish to compare with it. The "Sweet Natural Taste" of "Selected" tells its better quality.

"Selected" milk is produced with extra-ordinary care . . .

The 105 dairy farms producing "Selected" are chosen because of: well-fed, healthy cows; light, clean, airy barns; careful methods in grooming and milking the cows; equipment for keeping the milk properly cooled. We pay the farmers a liberal premium for all the extra care taken.

This fine herd of cows is on the farm of John H. Alcock, near Lake Geneva, Wis. One of the 105 "Selected" farms in this region devoting its entire milk production to "Selected."

This fine milk with the famous "Sweet Natural Taste," is only 16 cents a quart. Try it for the boy or girl who does not drink enough milk.

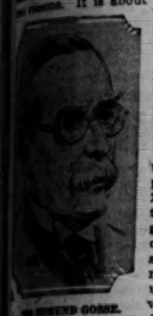
Sir Edmund Gosse's Letters Published.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

THE HON. EVAN CHARTERIS has written a most interesting book in "The Life and Letters of Sir Edmund Gosse [Harper and Brothers]. It is interesting for two reasons. It is about a man who occupied an important place in the world of literature in England during the latter part of the 19th century and the first part of the 20th. It throws a great deal of light on such famous figures as Stevenson, Algernon, Thomas Hardy, Henry W. D. Howells, Siegfried Sassoon, John Drinkwater, and many others all of whom were personal friends of Sir Edmund's.



SIR EDMUND GOSSE.

The author of this biography gives much more space to the letters written by Gosse to those men and to others, than he does to the narration of the events of his life. What the letters themselves, therefore, is something much finer than is to be had in the usual account of a man's life. You see and feel the personality of this literary figure. By reading the letters you grow to know him. You become familiar with his likes, his fine points, his weaknesses, his thoughts and opinions.

In a man's private correspondence he nearly reveals himself. Mr. Charteris tells you about Gosse, but more than that, Gosse tells you about himself in his letters.

"The best letters," states his biographer, "were always written from a position of equality or colgn of vantage. Deference, self-consciousness, or an underlying motive are liable at any time to spoil letters; 'natural-ness' vanishes and idiosyncrasies are brought out. This was noticeable in the case of Gosse. . . . Provocation made him artificial, and deference made him of dignity." He was at his best in writing to Maurice Baring, one of his closest friends and a prese-nt day novelist of note, and in his letters to "Lotis," R. L. S. [Robert Louis Stevenson].

Philip Henry Gosse, a distinguished naturalist and something of a religious fanatic, made the following entry in his diary, Sept. 21, 1849: "E. developed a sore. Received green swallow from Jamaica."

The boy was Edmund William Gosse and in his childhood he showed a remarkable aptitude for the science that so engrossed the father who gave a good enough equal prominence with it, in-at least, in his diary. Edmund could memorize the Latin names for plants as easily as most youngsters could learn, "Eeny, meeny, miny, mo," and his very first letters were filled with "convolvulus, habrothamnus, laurustinus," and the more homely "rhubarb."

In "Father and Son" he later described his childhood and the rigid religious atmosphere in which he was reared. In 1866 he went to London and took a small position in the British museum, living at the home of two maiden ladies whose principles were as strict as those of his father. In 1871 he went abroad, visiting the Scandinavian islands. His knowledge of Norse and Danish gave him a glimpse into Scandinavian literature and, with the help of a dictionary, he learned to read the works of Henrik Ibsen. He was the first to introduce Ibsen to English readers.

In 1875 he was offered a position at a much better salary in the Board of Trade at London, as translator, and in the same year he married Miss Nellie Epps, one of five sisters, four of whom were artists, one being married to the painter, Alma-Tadema. Mrs. Gosse's literary efforts, his brilliant conversational ability and wit brought him in touch with Robert Browning, Austin Dobson, Andrew Lang, W. D. Howells, Mrs. Humphry Ward, Sidney Colvin and a continually growing circle of important men and women of the world of letters. He was an admirer of Walt Whitman's verse, meeting Whitman in 1904.

In 1879 Gosse was invited to write a series of criticisms for the London Sunday Times and immediately his audience increased by leaps and bounds. His ideas of literary criticism were so splendid that I should like to quote his opinions here: "It is one of his merits that he never pretended, he never claimed finality even for his most cherished convictions. He revealed the strength of his preferences, but he banged no doors and brandished no sledge hammers. Literature was a house with many mansions, and turning a key of exquisite workmanship, and with a hand that never resounded, he threw open doors to illuminate without pedantry or affectation the mansions that he entered.

"I ask that literature should give me pleasure; I do not dictate to writers by what route they shall approach me," he wrote in a review of Miss Sitwell's poems, a sentence which gives a clew to much of his charm as a critic. He certainly neglected no means by which that pleasure could be transmitted to his readers. That was one of the functions of the critic, to excite curiosity and interest, to lure the reader by delectable visions, to persuade him of the enjoyment to be derived from a cultivated understanding of literature."

He continued to write for the Times until his death, at the age of 80, in 1928. With his going passed one of the kindliest, most distinguished and brilliant literary men of an era radiating famous names.

"The Life and Letters of Sir Edmund Gosse" will make a worthy addition to your library.

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

The absence of Ruth Chatterton's customary exaggerated accent and studied manner, and Stuart Erwin's splendid work in a straight rôle which proves him to be an all 'round fine actor and not just a lovable clown, are the high lights of this movie. It also marks the screen debut of a clever stage actor, Ralph Bellamy, and that, too, is something.

The film is founded on Leonard Merrick's novel, "Laurels and the Lady," and it makes entertaining enough screen fare. As presented, the story is a bit confusing at times and not always credible, but the plot material is dramatic and the central characters hold the interest.

You learn of a soldier boy who, for thirteen years remains faithful to his exalted memory of a French actress who had spoken kind words to him in a time of anguish. He is working at his old job in New Orleans and bunking happily enough with his pal, Elmer, when this Rose Duchene again enters his life. . . .

The war has left Bill with injured optic nerves. Excitement proves bad for them and darkness descends upon him. Now comes the cabaret dancer, Poll, with her "magnificent lie" which is calculated to save a blind boy's belief in romance and bring him happiness.

Whether or not it does, the film on the Chicago's screen will show you.

The picture is really very well acted throughout and Miss Chatterton sings (I THINK she sings) a couple of songs quite charmingly. Ralph Bellamy plays his difficult rôle like a screen veteran instead of a recruit, and if you're not keen for Stuart Erwin as Buddy Elmer, I WILL be surprised. Minor rôles are skillfully handled; direction is fair and, technically, the production is commendable.

Audiences are always one lap ahead of a movie's action! Towards the last of "The Magnificent Lie" there's an auto wreck. As the smash came I heard at least five people near me hiss:

"THE SHOCK BRINGS BACK HIS EYESIGHT!"

(Try it on your hisser.)

INA BOURSKAYA PROVES VERSATILE STAR AT RAVINIA

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Week-end high spots at Ravinia were numerous. Possibly the most striking was afforded by Ina Bourskaya. On Saturday night she presented as colorful, striking, and altogether satisfactory a Carmen as is to be seen on the American stage in the present generation. She returned on the following night to put on a perfect picture of old time comedy, Lady Pamela in "Fra Diavolo." But she was not the only reason for attending the famous north shore music center.

One also thinks of Queena Mario's delightful singing as Micaela in "Carmen," as lovely a single exhibition as has been presented this summer. One also is reminded of Mario Chamlee in the name rôle of "Fra Diavolo," an extraordinary example of what singing and acting in an elder school of comic opera ought to be. In fact, "Fra Diavolo" had just about a perfect cast, considerably better balanced than the list of artists for "Carmen." Still they both went with great effect.

Think of "Fra Diavolo," for example, with Florence Macbeth as Zerlina, a singing actress whose tang of voice and sparkle of comedy never fail her, especially in a rôle like this. And Virgilio Lazzari starts one laughing from the first moment that he appears as the incredible bandit in "Fra Diavolo" and keeps it up until the final curtain has fallen. Able assistance here is given by Desire Defrere, which would be still more able if he could be convinced that he is secondary and not primary in the action.

Likewise Vittorio Trevisan, as Lord Rocburg, is the sort of character that one reads about in books and seldom sees unless one happens to be at the theater when Mr. Trevisan is acting. And it is necessary to give credit to Giovanni Martinelli for his fiery Don Jose in "Carmen," likewise to Mario Basiola for his Escamillo in the same work. And Louis D'Angelo gets a rating of two perfect though minor rôles, Heuniga in "Carmen" and the innkeeper in "Fra Diavolo."

It was Russian day for the concert program yesterday afternoon. Eric DeLamarter conducted the Chicago Symphony orchestra with fine effect through Tschaikowsky's sixth symphony and Stravinsky's "Fire Bird" suite. Joseph Vito played a group of solos to such great applause that he afterwards admitted that his name should be changed to Vitovsky.

Turning Society to Hold Picnic for Old Settlers

Chicago's old settlers will hold their annual picnic today at Riverview park under the auspices of the Chicago Turngemeinde. Several hundred of the grizzled veterans of the "forties," the "fifties," and the "sixties" are expected to attend.

German food will be served and dancing will start early and continue until the picnic breaks up early in the evening. Prizes will be given to the ten oldest couples that dance.

Other prizes will be given to the oldest resident of Cook county; to the settler who has resided the longest in one place, and to the oldest veteran of the army or navy present.

SALLY, PLANNING FOR HER CIRCUS PARTY, TELLS ABOUT SHOW

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Are you all set, boys and girls, for a rollicking, good time when the circus comes to town? I suppose you read my announcement in yesterday's TRIBUNE that for our next party we are going to see Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey circus when it pitches its city of tents in Grant Park on Chicago's lake front. The circus will open on Aug. 8 but the date of our party will be Thursday, Aug. 13.

And what a party it promises to be! The show is bigger and grander than ever, the acts are more interesting and the performers more daring, and there's a menagerie that would be the envy of many a zoölogical garden. Eight hundred actors entertain in the numerous rings and stages, there are 735 of the finest bred horses, six herds of elephants which is more than half of the entire number in America.

Every letter must be in my office by Thursday morning for that is the day I shall choose you and every letter must contain the name, address and age of the writer. Please remember not to ask for an invitation for anyone else. If your younger brother, sister or your best friends wants to accompany you he or she will have to write a letter, too. Just address it to Sally Joy Brown, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

French Law on Alimony May Aid Men

But Most of the Time It Works for Women.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 2.—Many Americans undoubtedly hold the idea that alimony is an institution non-existent in France. That is not true. It is recent, but it is there.

M. Geo London, the well known Parisian court reporter, gives some interesting data on the scope and working of the law. It has been in operation since 1924. Alimony is one of its incidental provisions; it was designed to cover all cases of desertion of a family and dependents—not only wife and children but aged and infirm parents. The latter must be supported by their adult and capable children.

This law contains one strange provision, in that it is operative both ways for husbands and wives. The latter, if they have infirm mates, incapable of supporting themselves, and themselves are healthy, must willy nilly support the helpless men. M. London thinks this is officially putting a premium on scandalous conduct.

This provision apparently has been seldom, if ever used. Nor are there many cases on record of aged, poverty stricken parents, who have had to call in the law to force their maintenance out of stony hearted progeny. In practice, the law has worked mostly only in one situation, that of the deserted wife. Now a divorce pronounced against a husband constitutes a case of desertion.

In its application, M. London finds that this law has lent itself to "abominable abuses." It results, for instance, sometimes in the fixing of a sum of alimony beyond the divorced husband's means. The cause thereof most frequently is "the incapacity of the magistrate who determines the alimony to find the exact data which would enable him to estimate it with justice." This does not seem very clear, but M. London gives no further explanation.

Another abuse is that the alimony law sets a money price on liberty, hence makes it an object of barter and even of blackmail. The case is not infrequent of the husband being subject to a virtual holdup.

Typical example: a married man who no longer has sentiments of affection for his wife, but has them for a mistress. The latter is threatened with maternity. The man, especially if he is a well brought up, bien pensant, little bourgeois, dreads the stigma which, in his class and circle, will be attached to his child. The one remedy is divorce and marriage with the mistress.

The wife may be well aware of the facts in the case. She may be perfectly willing to give her husband his liberty. Only she sets a price on it. Anxious to get the business done at all costs, the husband may agree to signing her over an alimony so large that it amounts to dispossessing himself. Thus, writes M. London, "the courts of justice unconsciously become an accomplice in a veritable case of blackmail."

The law further does nothing to advance the cause of family life in France or to help repopulation. It encourages discontented wives to seek divorce, knowing that afterwards they will be economically secure. [This is ont quite true for the poor, where alimony may be as low as 200 francs a month.]

In any case, it will be a help. Thereafter the divorced wife has so much less incentive to remarry and create another home. She will prefer thereafter conjugally irregular situation or situations. The birth-rate and morality both get a rap.

NEW SILHOUETTE OF FASHION CALLS FOR GAY PERSIAN COLORS

PARIS, Aug. 2.—(AP)—A brand new silhouette, which aims a death blow at the old fashioned mode and which is designed in rich colors and brocades of ancient Persia, was exhibited by one of the greatest Parisian couturiers this week end as the winter style of 1932.

The new silhouette, which was exhibited with tiny, tip-tilted, feathered hats, had a narrow shoulder line, hips supple without being wide and skirts fairly full at the hem, in contrast with the wide shoulders, tight hips and skirts and old fashioned fancies hitherto displayed.

Puffs and crinolines are out for modern women," said a statement of the courturier issued with the collection, "because the doors of our little two-seaters bar the way."

The collection presented a further style upset in the complete elimination of black and the substitution of dark brown. Other colors were Persian red, a shade resembling old rose, and Persian green neutralized by grass green.

Many rich Persian brocades of gold, dull blue and old rose were used in suit blouses, evening gowns and wraps and daytime dress trimmings. Dark brown velvet ensembles were an outstanding note and these were designed with three quarter length flared coats, or seven-eighths coats, almost straight line in cut and worn with Persian green, Persian red, Persian blue or gold brocade tunic blouses.

The coats, following semi-fitted or almost straight line silhouettes, used less fur than heretofore for reasons of economy. The favorite cuffs were marten, sable and blue fox.

OUR SECRET AMBITION

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 2.—[Special]—During the filming of a scene in the Warner Baxter-Eddie Low border movie, "The Cisco Kid," at Fox Westwood studios yesterday, a liquor glass was supposed to be shot out of the hand of an extra, but the steel jacket of the bullet was deflected in some manner, and entered the actor's hand. The case was quietly treated at the company's emergency hospital on the lot. The actor's name was not learned.

When Mayo Methot, from the Broadway stage, was told at United Artists studio that her name would not carry well in movies, and advised to give herself a new name, she said George M. Cohan had told her never to change her name, and she wouldn't. She has a part in "Corsair," which Roland West is winding up this week. Thelma Todd's name was changed to "Alison Lloyd" for this picture, and the change brought a protest from Hal Roach, who holds Miss Todd's contract, and loaned her to United Artists. Roach's contention is that the name "Thelma Todd" has good will and box office power which will be dissipated if it is unused.

It is interesting to note the films of the 1930-'31 crop which rated highest throughout the country rated highest in nominating their "ten best directors" for "the film daily." The ratings:

Lewis Milestone, "All Quiet on the Western Front" and "The Front Page."
Wesley Ruggles, "Cimarron."
George Hill, "The Big House."
Josef von Sternberg for his work with Marlene Dietrich, in which "Blue Angel," "Morocco" and "Dishonored" were considered.
D. W. Griffith, "Lincoln."
Robert Leonard, "Divorcée."
Charlie Chaplin, "City Lights."
John Cromwell, "Tom Sawyer."
Howard Hawks, "Dawn Patrol."
Howard Hughes, "Hell's Angels."

BOOK ON CHILDREN SHOWS PARENTS NEED SOME DISCIPLINE, TOO

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Dad will be due for discipline if the American home adopts the scientifically prepared pre-school child care handbook issued today by the children's bureau.

He will have to get his evening romping down to a bedtime story basis, and to non-exciting stories at that, to follow the tenets of the child experts.

"Make bedtime a quiet, happy time without romping or boisterous play," the volume of guidance advises. "By the end of the day the children are tired, and if romping or teasing is permitted they easily become overexcited or tense, near to giggling laughter and to tears."

Widow's Mite Goes to Feed Hungry Pupils

Price of Bonnet Sent to School Food Fund.

A little, gray haired widow lives on Chicago's northwest side. She is dependent on her daughter, who doesn't have too much of the world's goods herself, but who gives all she can to see that her mother is happy.

Friday the widow was presented with a dollar bill by her daughter. At a neighborhood store there was a sale of lace decorated bonnets for 98 cents. The elderly woman, who had denied herself all her life that her children and grandchildren might have pretty things, wanted one of the bonnets. But she decided to wear her old bonnet. She sent the dollar to THE TRIBUNE to be turned over to the fund for hungry school children.

Accompanying the contribution was a letter, written in careful Spencerian letters and directed to Miss Frances L. Swain, director of home economics in the public schools.

"Dear Miss Swain," she wrote, "I have but little myself and am dependant on my daughter. I had a dollar for a new hat, but thought that a little school child would need food much more than a foolish old lady needed a hat. So please do what you can with my mite and keep my name secret."

Similar contributions to the campaign inaugurated by Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan have come in in such gratifying numbers that only $300 now is needed to complete the $2,000 fund set as the amount needed for summer school care.

The largest contribution received during the last week and the one to come the greatest distance was from Mary Blair Keep of Camden, Me. She sent a check for $50.

Other donations received during the last week and immediately turned over to the home economics department of the board of education included the following:

$37—Mrs. Henry Klein, representing the bridge winnings of herself and friends.
$25—"A friend from Lake Geneva."
$10—Marion Prentiss, A. J. Birkle, bureau for the advancement of patriotism; Mr. and Mrs. Harrington, Alice D. Young.
$ 5—Beatrice Phelps, Edward Marsley, Sand Ridge Dorcas club of Harvey; Mrs. J. Milkening, P. R. McNulty, Anonymous, J. McC., Betty Jane and Lorraine Israel, Irving Paskitz, Tillie Gershenow.
$ 3—Freda Goldsmith.
$1.50—Room 207, Foreman Junior High school girls.
$ 1—Miss I. A. Foley, A Friend, Two anonymous contributions.

"We are fortunate indeed to have come through the summer months so successfully," Superintendent Bogan said. "Without the help of the many generous persons who contributed to the care of the children the burden would have been too much for the teachers to have carried. The city owes a vote of thanks to those kind hearted persons."

Negro Singers Thrill Thousands at Loyola; Appear Again Aug. 22

Some of the music that the audience will hear at the second Chicagoland Music Festival, Aug. 22, in Soldiers' field, was sung and played last night when the Mundy Choristers, directed by Prof. James A. Mundy, sang the Hallelujah chorus from the "Messiah" and the singers were accompanied by the Chicago Philharmonic orchestra in the Loyola stadium.

Stepping down from the director's rostrum, Adolphe Dumont, conductor of the orchestra, turned over the baton to Mr. Mundy, who then conducted the orchestra for his 100 Negro singers.

The choristers also sang "Ol' Ark's a-Moving," "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," and "Joshua Fit de Battle o' Jerico," songs which the 2,000 colored massed chorus will present the night of the festival, directed by Prof. Mundy, Prof. J. Wesley Jones, Prof. Edward Boatner, and Prof. George R. Garner Jr.

The Philharmonic orchestra is being received with enthusiasm and larger crowds are expected for the four remaining Sunday evening concerts. Mlle. Lola Monti-Gorsey, soprano, will be the guest soloist next Sunday night.

The Ice Wagon Stops No More at the Yarboves'

Every morning the ice wagon rattles past the door of the Yarbove household in a tenement district. It never stops.

Sometime ago the wagon used to stop because then the Yarboves felt that they had to have ice, just as they had to have milk and butter. That was before Yarbove signed away his flat building and the cottage that was the family home.

Twenty years Yarbove had been in America, always working hard and saving. That was how he could buy the flat building and the cottage. And that was why he could provide a good home for the five children, the youngest 3 years old, the eldest 15, and give them all the educational privileges of American born boys and girls.

But in 1928 Yarbove lost his job. Several of the flats in his building were vacant and he was in danger of losing his property. A man offered to trade the family a farm in Wisconsin for their home. Yarbove signed some papers which he could not read. He did not know then that he had signed over his home and apartment house and mortgaged the farm to another person.

The farm mortgage was soon foreclosed. The family was left destitute. They returned to Chicago with no money and only a meager supply of onions, potatoes and brown bread. This lasted three weeks.

That was Yarbove's story as he told it the other day to a district worker of the United Charities. The rest of the family's troubles the worker found out for herself: That the oldest daughter is ill with tuberculosis. That the other children are undernourished and will become tubercular if they do not get wholesome food and ice doesn't arrive daily.

"Ice is absolutely a necessity in this case," declared the worker firmly after she had finished discussing the case. "The children's milk must be kept sweet."

And that is just one of the hundreds of cases known to the United Charities where ice is needed to save the health of children.

THE TRIBUNE free ice fund, created a number of years ago to supply ice to destitute and needy families, will perform this function is contributors see to it that there is enough money in the treasury. It doesn't take much money to buy ice for one family but it does take a great deal to provide it for the hundreds of families who really need ice delivered to their doors.

Among the gifts to the fund yesterday was $1.25 from Terry, Tom, and Francis Simpson. By going into the bottle-selling business and becoming lemonade venders the youngsters managed to accumulate their contribution.

TRIBUNE FREE ICE FUND.

Anonymous	$10.00
Mrs. Leonard Lewis	5.00
Marjorie H. Meyer	5.00
Clara F. Fristoe	5.00
M. M. Tomlin	2.00
I. and G. Peterson	2.00
Tom, Terry and Francis Simpson	1.25
Total	$30.25
Previously acknowledged	$2,167.90
Grand total	$2,198.15

Three $5 gifts came for the Camp Algonquin fund, which provides free vacations of two weeks for mothers and children of the tenements. The camp is 45 miles northwest of Chicago on the Fox river and all summer it is filled to the limit of its capacity of 500 persons.

Mrs. A. J. Christy, Helen Christy and Mrs. Leonard Lewis were the contributors. Gifts to either fund should be directed to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE.

Feather Finery Is Back for Evening Wear

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—It looks as if our feathered friends of the Mauve Decade—the feather boa, the feathered hat, and feather bands for evening frocks—were coming back to style again.

The most striking evening ensemble to be seen in Paris at the height of the social season of the summer is trimmed with feathers, and scarcely a woman sees this outfit but falls a-tremble, craving to have one just like it. You see such an outfit in the sketch. It is an evening dress and jacket of purest white crepe romaine with a band of the blackest feathers around the waistline, and at the bottom of the jacket.

Schiaparelli designed it, and Mme. Schiaparelli, herself, wears it in Paris, where dressmakers appear only in the creme of their creations. She has made a sensational mode, with feathers for its trade mark, by appearing in this ensemble.

The jacket is more like a blouse, with long blouse sleeves and with a crossed, draped surpliced closing in front, the ends of the two surpliced sides being bordered in the curly feathers, as shown. Under the jacket is a low cut bodice, with a cowl neck in front and practically no back at all. The skirt is floor length and trails about two inches in the back. It is just a full circle of white crepe romaine that falls in limp folds, but it is the smartest of all evening skirts in the French world of fashion today.

Feather bands are being used in black and white for trimming other evening frocks, and ostrich feather trimmings are also poking their way into the class of fashionable decorations for evening.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

E. L.: IF THE GROWTH OF HAIR is not too heavy it may be bleached with peroxide of hydrogen to which ammonia has been added. The peroxide may be used alone, too. To two teaspoonfuls of peroxide add a half teaspoonful of household ammonia. The ammonia dries out the oil. Apply several times a day.

Tragedy May Follow in Wake of Removing This Hair Annoyance

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

There are so many harmless but satisfactory ways of removing superfluous hair that one wonders why women will take a chance with a treatment in which the use of X-ray is involved. There are excellent depilatories to be had in cream, liquid, and wax form. For permanent relief, or as near permanent relief as we can hope to get, there is the electrolysis treatment. There are ammonia and peroxide applications and other applications to bleach the hair that is not wanted seen. These for the milder hair growths.

For emergency use the razor may be used to remove the hair. About this latter system of relief, there seems to be a good deal of discussion going on as to its ultimate desirability. But I think the danger of hair coming in coarser and heavier is pretty much exaggerated. The depilatories leave a smoother, cleaner job, I think. And with the reliable products, there are complete and carefully outlined instructions which it is advisable to follow to the letter in their use.

But about the X-ray applications, the National Better Business bureau feels impelled to warn women that: "Serious consequences may follow attempts to remove superfluous hair by X-ray machines. . . . It is not necessary to tell physicians—at least those with any extensive dermatological experience—how serious a menace is the use of X-rays in the removal of superfluous hair.

"The tragedy in the case arises from the fact that precancerous keratoses and other untoward effects are usually not evident until months after the treatment has been given. There is a further unfortunate factor in the problem that the victims—nearly always women—frequently refuse to prosecute because of the publicity. . . .

"Ulcers, cancerous sores, atrophied muscles, wrinkled skin, and red and white blotches are but a few of the disfiguring injuries and precancerous conditions described in some forty cases reported. The American Dermatological association at its last annual meeting severely scored the usage of X-ray machines for the removal of superfluous hair and adopted resolutions recommending that the dangers of this procedure be placed before the American public."

Letters Seeking Job as Escort Reaching Hotel

Just give them a chance and plenty of American men would be gigolos with alacrity, Miss Llewellyn Jones, social director at the Stevens hotel, decided yesterday after a cursory examination of some of the letters of application. It was announced a few weeks ago that the hotel was considering employing a number of male escorts for the convenience of their feminine guests from out of town.

"Here's one from South America, from a Latin who announces that he is of the type preferred for gigolos," she commented. "That is the sort of letter that doesn't surprise one. Here's an Englishman, who says in part: 'Perhaps you have heard of my various adventures through the press or the films—having devoted my life to expeditions into Africa, India, Brazil, Sumatra, taking motion pictures. A graduate of Cambridge and Oxford—captain in the royal air forces, member of the Russian-China rebellion and other means of adventure.

"Have recently returned from France where I served in this field. With these as a background and one of the successful entertainers of Paris and southern France, I feel as though I could fit into your plans for this fall.'

"The most interesting proposition, however, came from a man who walked in and announced that for $50 a night he would act as bodyguard to any lady, and that under his supervision she might wear all the genuine jewelry she possessed, as no crook would get away with it while he accompanied said lady."

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—The Italian ambassador, Nobile Giacomo de Martino, is spending the week-end at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams went to his summer home Friday to join Mrs. Adams and their son, where they celebrated the secretary's 65th birthday anniversary today. He will be absent ten days.

Acting Secretary of State Willian R. Castle Jr. returned late tonight from Hot Springs after a short visit with Mrs. Castle, who is there for the summer.

Common Sense Is Best Guidance in Rearing Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A man, who has three children, almost grown, who is the editor of a prominent women's magazine, and who has articles presented to him by the foremost child psychologists and child research experts of the day, said to me not long ago:

"I think too much fuss is made about rearing children. I don't think parents should be made to feel that it's such a difficult thing to do. Look at most of us—look at you and me. We were reared by a combination of common sense and luck. My frank opinion is that common sense does the trick."

Well, I agree with him, don't you? But I couldn't help noticing that the common sense he described is not commonly found.

Common sense is what the sane modern child expert recommends. He or she may not call it by that name, but if you scrutinize his or her advice you'll see that that's what it is under the surface. For example:

Be as considerate of a child as you would of a grown-up.

Let children learn to do by doing.

If a child is absorbed in play or a book, don't expect instant obedience.

Guide your child by fondness and friendliness, and not by fear.

Ask your child to do things—don't order him about.

If your child lies, don't think he is bad—find out why he does it and remove the cause.

Dozens of items could be listed which all boil down to common sense.

The editor had it in full measure. Many people have.

But many people haven't this native common sense. Native common sense is uncommon, and that is why so many people need guidance in rearing their children.

The booklet, "How to Gain Obedience," will be sent by this department on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Frank, age 6, came running into the house one hot night and threw himself onto the floor. His mother said, "You may as well jump into the tub. It's past your bedtime now." Frank replied, "Not yet; wait till I get unheated." F. C. S.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

BOYS' VACATION TOGS.

Brown cotton covert cloth made this sports outfit, just the thing for hiking and hard play. It is easy to make and also to launder—two good points that mothers will appreciate. The collarless neckline and cap sleeves will be cool and comfortable, and instead of making the belt of the self-fabric, a gay leather one may be used.

The pattern, 3175, comes in sizes 4, 6, 8, and 10 years. Size 8 requires 2¾ yards of 35 inch material.

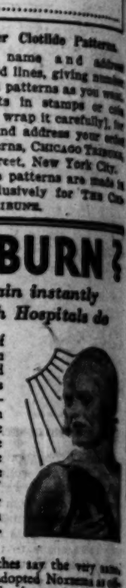
End pain instantly as Beach Hospitals do



IN his 28 years of service, John McMonigle—head of Coney Island's 85 life-guards—has tested sunburn remedies by the dozen. "But we haven't found one yet to compare with Noxzema," he declares, "for relieving sunburn instantly and healing quickly."

Other big beaches say the very same. They, too, have adopted Noxzema as official sunburn remedy after testing it on their worst cases. FLOWER OF THORNS

By Marie Conway Oemler

SYNOPSIS.

Sally Rutherford, the last of a proud old southern family, following the ruin and death of her grandfather, determines to keep the heavily mortgaged Oakleigh plantation for her grandmother. She opens a hot dog stand on the Dixie highway. The estate of Sir Frederick, of carpetbagging stock, adjoins Oakleigh. Henry Winstead holds the Oakleigh mortgage. His only son, Sam, is a great help to Sally, although she doesn't know his real identity until the stand is successfully started. Sally falls in love with Lowndes Bradley, Sam forces Lowndes to admit in front of Sally that he is engaged to the wealthy Georgia Reinert. Sam asks Sally to marry him, although he knows she doesn't love him. Sally becomes Sam's wife in name only. Sam gives Oakleigh back to Sally as a wedding present. The night of the wedding Sally's grandmother dies. Sally collapses and is taken to Winstead's while she is still unconscious.

INSTALLMENT XXV.

"YOU CAN GO FREE."

The nurse has just told me that I have been here two weeks," said Sally. "It seems unbelievable."

"I didn't wish you to wake up at Oakleigh," the bridegroom told her. "I thought you'd better wake up here . . . the strange room would arouse your interest, I imagined."

"It did. I didn't know where I was at first. It is a very beautiful room."

"Hurry up and get well in it," said he kindly.

"Please . . . is grandmamma . . put with . . grandpapa?"

"Of course. She would wish that, dear old lady!"

"I think they're together," said she wistfully. "I couldn't bear to think that they're not together again. They loved each other so much!"

"For love is strong as death," he quoted again.

"You believe that?"

"Yes, Sally, I believe that. I am sure of that."

"I hope he came for her. I think he came, and she saw him—and went away with him."

"I hope so with all my heart," said he gently. Katje's son found no difficulty in knowing that love is strong as death. "Let us think so, and be glad for them both."

She lay with closed eyes, but the tears she could not control crept under her lids and trickled down her cheeks. His eyes grew compassionate. Poor little girl, she had stood so much! He had brought some late May roses from the garden, and now he called her attention to them—see how exquisite the color, how perfect the form, how wonderful the fragrance! Her tears ceased, she held out her hand for the flowers.

"When you are better you must see the Winstead gardens. We pride ourselves on our roses—that is, I do, and dad smiles benignly. Rose growing is a favorite occupation of mine," he smiled.

She looked at him curiously, with something of resentment.

"How many favorite occupations have you got?" she asked. "Running a successful dairy, raising prize chickens, knowing everything about antiques, growing roses—I suppose you grow particularly wonderful roses, too."

"Fairly."

"You surprise me more and more. I am terrified to discover how many, many things you can do!" she managed to make answer.

"You'll be terrified if ever you are called upon to be my partner at bridge," he told her, laughing. "I somehow manage to acquire the rottenest hands ever dealt to anybody this side of hades."

"You don't play a good game, really?"

"Really I don't."

"I am glad to know that," she said deliberately. "I do. It gives me real pleasure to know that there really is something in the world I can do worse than you can."

He laughed. "Now I know you're better! You're—Flower . . of . . Thorns herself again."

"I heard . . the milkman . . singing that. A long time ago. When I had a hot dog stand on the road," she remembered tiredly. For suddenly she was absurdly weak and tired.

"I used to sing it myself. A professor I knew showed me the words and music, and I learned to sing it because it pleased him so much."

"So the milkman told me. I liked it, too." And she added astonishingly: "I should like to hear it again . . right now."

"Flor . . de . . Espina . . ."

The wind from the garden ruffled the curtains and brought in the fragrance of many flowers. The whole room was a sort of golden glow and a man's voice came out of the heart of the radiance and the fragrance and the past.

She was so utterly spent, and so weary! The brown lashes rested on the pale cheek. The exhausted girl slept.

But Sam Winstead's head drooped. He watched the girl who didn't love him, who was afraid of him—and who was married to him. A rueful smile twisted his lips. He could give her everything. Could he give her happiness? And he wished her to be happy.

Mrs. Rutherford's sudden death and Sally's collapse had shocked him profoundly, had forced upon him a question which peremptorily demanded an answer. What was to be the effect of her grandmother's death upon Sally's reaction to her marriage with him? He had seen the look Sally had cast upon his father when Henry Winstead attempted to approach his son's wife and it had angered him, had given him pause to think anxiously. Sally had married him because of her grandmother—and the old lady's death had immediately followed. He had counted on Mrs. Rutherford remaining alive for some years; he had hoped that, after she had married him, and with her mind relieved of fear, Sally would naturally learn to care for him—how could she remain adamant against the constant thoughtfulness of a devoted lover?

But with Mrs. Rutherford his strongest prop was removed. Sally was alone in his house, ministered to by his affection, his by every law—except the one great law. She didn't love him. Now that her grandmother had gone perhaps she would never learn to love him. He could give her everything—except happiness. Had he, indeed, done well to marry Sally?

Well, he had followed his inclination, done what he wished to do. He had honestly meant it for her happiness as well as his own, knowing what he had to give her. And now perhaps she would never understand, she would never want what he had to offer.

A hazy plan, a nebulous ghost of an idea, began to form in his mind. He rose and stood for a space by the bedside looking down at the sleeping girl, and his eyes were the eyes of one tormented. This was the one woman. He loved over her whom he loved and who didn't love him, didn't begin to know him, was afraid of him, and kissed her.

He must think this thing out rationally. Her happiness must be safeguarded. If he couldn't have her—and have her against her will he would not—nevertheless he had his own work, a man's work in the world of men. Thank heaven for that—a man's work, his own particular work, chosen by himself. But as he walked out of the house he did not hum to himself nor whistle as was his wont. Flor de Espina he had called her. . . Flower of Thorns. But there were no buds of blossoms now. Only thorns.

Because Sally was young and healthy her body was more resilient than her spirit. Color came back to her lips, sparkle to her eyes. She had left her room and was growing stronger with every passing hour. Then the nurse departed—Mrs. Sam Winstead was quite well again and had no further need of her; Sally was out of the house, in the garden; it was early June, a cool, cool June, and the garden was riotous. It was a very beautiful garden, as beautiful as only a Carolina garden can be.

"This is a lovely place, but I thought we were to stay at Oakleigh," she ventured one morning. There was a little seat under the great live oak outside her window, and this was her favorite haunt. She felt safe here as if the strong arms of the live oak upheld and protected her, shut her in safe from all intrusion. Her privacy was seldom intruded upon. Henry Winstead spent most of his time in the city, coming home late at night and having early in the morning before she was out of bed, and her breakfast was always served in her own room. Sam seldom disturbed her. But this morning he sat with her. He had decided to speak if she gave him the right opportunity to do so.

"I thought you had better stay here for a while—at least while you weren't quite well. But if you prefer to go back to Oakleigh now——" he paused.

"I'd like to—it's home. But, of course, if you'd rather stay here——" she looked at him inquiringly.

"My dear girl, you must consider your own wishes. I—ah—have been wanting to say something to you, Sally. I think you're quite well enough now to listen to what I have to say."

"I am quite well enough to listen to whatever you have to say, please." His tongue tripped at a difficulty in saying what he had to say.

"I wanted to say this, that perhaps—since your grandmother's death—there is really no reason why you should have to be married to me."

"I mean that you can go free, Sally," said Sam Winstead.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Clothing Needed for Job.

"I have a promise of work in a shop within the next few days but I cannot take it unless I can get a pair of slippers, size 6 or 6½, and one or two white coverall aprons. Won't you please try to get these things for me? I need the work so badly. I have four children to support and my husband has been out of work for more than a year.

"MRS. P. W."

Do you have an extra white apron to give this woman, and does some one have a pair of fairly good discarded shoes in the size needed? With employment so hard to secure it would be a pity to have to pass up this job.

Mother's Character Not Always Guide to Daughter's Conduct

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Studying mother is widely recommended as a reliable form of forecasting what daughter will be like twenty or thirty years from now. But one wonders if this is not one of the platitudes that modern life puts slightly askew.

Take the case of Anne, let's call her, and her mother. Anne's mother is a giddy creature, already thrice wed, with not a thought in the world for any one else's comfort or happiness but her own. Clever in a certain way, she is, but frivolous and flighty as a woman can be made. Anne is her father's daughter through and through. Those who know the family history relate how that father, deeply in love with Anne's mother, gave her the divorce to make her happy.

Anne in her school record and in her college record is known as "a peach of a girl," serious, generous, straight as a die, and one who vows to marry "for keeps." It isn't believable that such a girl would duplicate her mother's mistakes. Nor could her character be changed with marriage likely. Not with her firmly established principles.

Another girl, Eleanor, let's call her. Her mother is a selfish tyrant, a nagger, a pest to her family. Eleanor is the oldest of the family. She shoulders the financial responsibilities. She shields the younger brother and sister. Her disposition is a matter of common tribute. She hates the vices in her mother that make their family like unendurable at times. It wouldn't seem that she could ever evolve into her mother's type.

Granted these are exceptions to the general rule, which they may be, but with the younger generation boldly reading into family situations, parental shortcomings, and wisely resolving to conduct their lives on patterns more provocative of peace, isn't it more than possible that the girl with the unlikely parent might conduct her married life in a manner agreeable to her mate.

Food Talk.

Mrs. L. G. writes: "How are Brussels sprouts and kohlrabi cooked?"

Brusseis sprouts and kohlrabi belong to the cabbage family, therefore the principles of cooking are essentially the same as for cabbage. Brussels sprouts, however, are much more delicate in texture and color, so great care must be taken not to overcook. Sprouts of uniform size should be selected. Soaking in cold salt water to remove insects is advisable.

All wilted leaves on the outside should be trimmed off, then a slice should be taken off the stem end and the stem slashed in an X shape. This slashing hastens the cooking of the thick stem. Cooking should be done in an open kettle and the prepared vegetable should be dropped into boiling salted water (1 teaspoon salt to 1 quart of boiling water) and cooking should be done rapidly. Not more than eight or nine minutes of boiling is necessary for the largest of sprouts.

At the instant the sprouts are tender, drain off every drop of water and add melted butter. Send to the table at once, which means that one should never begin cooking the sprouts until the meal is almost ready to serve.

Kohlrabi should be chosen with caution, because the vegetable may be tough, fibrous, and disappointing. The best kohlrabi always has the leaves left on, is heavy and solid, delicate green with a tender appearing skin, crisp and juicy tender flesh. And, generally speaking, satisfactory kohlrabi is little larger than a golf ball. Peel and slice as you would turnips, and cook in boiling, salted water in an open kettle. The only difference between the cooking of Brussels sprouts and kohlrabi is that the latter may be cooked in much less water. Little water should be left in the pan when the vegetable is done. Ten or twelve minutes of cooking should suffice. Add the butter and serve hot just as one would turnips. Tender kohlrabi also makes a delicious salad. It should be shredded or sliced thinly and then dressed and served like cole slaw. A combination of kohlrabi and cabbage makes delicious salad.

COMBINATION SALAD.

1 medium sized sweet onion (dry onion),
1 small green pepper,
French dressing.

Lettuce, cucumber, and green pepper should be crisp and cold. Clean the lettuce and cut into four clubs (clubs are thick, crosswise slices). Lay on cold salad plates (any kind of a salad plate will do, but a crystal plate is especially a beautiful setting for a summer salad). Pare cucumber and cut into thin crosswise slices. Sprinkle salt over cucumber and add just enough ice cold water to cover. Let stand while other vegetables are being prepared. Peel onion and cut into paper thin crosswise slices, the thinner the slices, the more the onion will be appreciated. Slice the tomato. Lay 3 or 4 slices of cucumber on the club of lettuce, then 2 or 3 slices of onion on top, then 3 slices of tomato. Repaper thin crosswise slices, the thin-crosswise, slice of green pepper and a few rings of the thin onion slices. Serve at once with French dressing. This salad carefully prepared and served is always appreciated.

2 teaspoons salt,
1 pound spaghetti.

Have the water boiling, add the salt, then the unbroken spaghetti so gradually that the water does not stop boiling. Cook until tender, or about 20 minutes. Turn spaghetti into a colander and wash thoroughly by running hot water through the mass to wash off the sticky substance on the surface of spaghetti. Drain thoroughly and turn on to a platter. In the meantime have a tomato sauce prepared to pour over the spaghetti.

TOMATO SAUCE.

Pepper black,
3 tablespoons olive oil,
¼ hot red pepper,
1 medium sized onion,
1 tablespoon butter,

Season the meat with salt, black pepper, and chopped red pepper and make into six cakes. Shape the cakes so that the outside surface is as smooth as possible. Brown the cakes on both sides in hot olive oil. When cakes are browned add finely chopped onion and continue cooking until onions are yellow and soft. Stir onions often to prevent burning. Add butter and sherry and simmer for about ten minutes, then add the tomatoes. Cover and let cook slowly for about 2 hours. Finely minced mushrooms added at the same time the onions are added improves this sauce. Serve while hot over spaghetti.

CARDINALS SUBDUE CUBS, 6-2, BEFORE 41,000

23 NAMED FOR FEATURE TODAY AT HAWTHORNE

$5,000 Handicap to Mark Opening.

BY FRENCH LANE.

A battle among the great sprinters of the country for an Inaugural handicap prize of $5,000 is to be the chief attraction at the historic Hawthorne race course this afternoon as the summer meeting season of 18 days gets under way.

It will be a battle in every sense of the word, for overnight 23 were named to take part in it and it is expected 16 of the flyers will go into the barrier when the field is called to the post at about 4 o'clock.

Last night there was a three cornered play on the Warm stable's Epithet, in Johnny Schorr's Silverdale, and E. F. Pritchard's Tannery which promised to make any one of the trio a real dangerous favorite. Silverdale has a win inaugural at Arlington to his credit, Tannery has an inaugural at Washington Park in his trophy chest, and Epithet only recently at Arlington carried three-quarters of a mile—the distance of the Inaugural—in 1:09 4-5, the fastest six furlongs that has been run in America this year.

Weights Are Boosted.

When Silverdale won the Arlington opening stake he carried 111 pounds. Today he must shoulder 119. At Washington Park when Tannery won as inaugural he carried 112. Today his package is 120. Epithet ran a sensational three-quarters carrying 121 pounds. His impost today is 111.

While these top weights will command most of the support, some of the lightweights of the party may step out enough to be in front when the wire ends. Gallant Knight is another high weight in the race, but is by went back on him after a workout at Arlington for the Arlington handicap and he was withdrawn. It is doubtful if he will have recovered sufficiently to start at Hawthorne today, but he was the overnight favorite at 4 to 1. Knight Commander, No Ten Ladder, Don Leon, My Dandy, Bridle, and Morsel were others which were mustering some followers on the eve of the Hawthorne opening.

Another Feature on Program.

Another good number on today's racing program is the Beverly Hills purse, a race at a mile and a sixteenth engaging The Nut, Calf Roper, Boulder, Ulunlu, Mad Career, and Chief John. They are all lightly weighted and the new electric timer, the first ever installed on a track in this country, should tick this event off in pretty speedy time. There are also other races on the opening program.

John Schank, president of the Hawthorne association, and his associates, have dressed the old track up in such a way that except for a few of the habitués the regulars of many years will hardly know the place. While Hawthorne crowds gather from all parts of the Chicago racing wheel, the real sliders usually take it upon themselves to start off the Hawthorne season in a big way so it is expected that 30,000 or more will be on hand when the first bugle call is heard at 2:15 o'clock this afternoon.

Many of the best horses that raced at Arlington were moving over to Hawthorne yesterday and most of the jockeys who performed at Arlington also will ride at Hawthorne. In addition scores of horses that have been racing at Latonia for a month have also been shipped to Chicago to fill engagements during the Hawthorne season.

Sun Beau Probable Starter.

It is fairly certain that Sun Beau, one of the Arlington Cup and Arlington Handicap and the world's richest money winning horse, will be seen in the $25,000 added Hawthorne handicap on next Saturday. Trainer Sam Whyte withheld definite announcement, however, until he gets a look at the handicap weight assignments which Racing Secretary Joseph Schulman will announce at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

There is little doubt but that Sun Beau will be handed an enormous impost, but his brilliant victories at Arlington indicate it will take something more than weight to stop him. This is particularly true at Hawthorne, a track on which he has run some of the most sensational races of his career.

KOZELUH BEATS TILDEN IN FIVE SET STRUGGLE

Big Bill Temperamental as Ever.

Karel Kozeluh, stocky Czecho-Slovakian, upset tempermental Bill Tilden, world's professional tennis champion, 3-6, 9-7, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3, on the rain spattered courts of the Onwentsia Country club yesterday. The match was played before a gathering of 2,000.

The little Czech, playing consistent tennis, returned the stinging drives of Big Bill with remarkable accuracy and balked Tilden's efforts to storm the net by keeping the ball in back court. At times Tilden's play flashed with brilliant shots, but on many occasions he made serious errors, which Kozeluh converted into points.

Wind Does Tricks with Ball.

Heavy clouds hovered over the red clay courts throughout the match and rain fell in slight drizzles. A gale blew across the field, forcing the ball to bounce erratically.

Tilden easily won the first set, 6-3. He took to the net and forced Kozeluh to cover with his répertoire of hard drives and overhead shots.

In the second set, Kozeluh, profiting by Tilden's errors, triumphed, 9-7. Tilden, bothered when a part of the crowd left the stands to escape a temporary downpour, became irritated in the third set and slammed the ball into the net and out of bounds.

Tilden Improves After Rest.

After the intermission Tilden opened a barrage of chops and drives that sent Kozeluh scurrying about after corner placements, and won the fourth set, 6-4. This flash of championship tennis did not last and Kozeluh won the deciding set, 6-3.

A doubles match with Tilden and Pare opposing Kozeluh and Sellers was called on account of darkness at the end of the second set with the latter pair leading, 6-3, 10-8.

GIRLS LOWER 2 RECORDS IN NEWPORT SWIM

Newport, R. I., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Two world's swimming records for women were broken today when Miss Joan McSheehy of Whitinsville, Mass., bettered the 220 meter back stroke mark and Miss Eva Bein of the Women's Swimming association of New York shortened the time for the 700 yard free style event.

Miss McSheehy clipped three-fifths of a second from the former record for the back stroke event, which was held by Eleanor Holm, by splashing over the distance in 3 minutes 2 4-5 seconds.

Miss Bein traversed the 700 yards in the free style swim in 10 minutes 12 3-5 seconds as Miss Lisa Lindstrom, also a member of the New York association and former holder of the record, looked on.

BRYAN CAPTURES KENTUCKY TITLE, BEATS DOC BARR

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Bob Bryan, Chattanooga, Tenn., runner-up last year to Wilmer Hines, Columbia, S. C., succeeded to Hines' Kentucky tennis championship today by defeating Ben [Doc] Barr, Dallas, 6-4, 6-2, 6-3, in the final match.

Bryan and Barr then defeated Ed Pfeiffer and Arnold Simons, Louisville, for the doubles championship, 6-4, 6-1, 6-2.

Kentucky salvaged one title when Miss Helen Schuman, Louisville, won the women's singles for the third straight year. She defeated Miss Bernice Ayres, Chicago, 7-5, 6-4.

Great Britain Takes Lead in International Races

PORTSMOUTH, England, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Great Britain gained a 9 point lead in the first day's competition of the international model yacht races, scoring 42 points, compared with 33 for Belgium, 23 for the United States, and 21 for France. The races continue until Tuesday.

HUMMER II. WINS STAR BOAT TEST; TO RACE IN EAST

Hummer II., owned and skippered by John Dennison of the Sheridan Shore Yacht club of Wilmette, yesterday won the right to represent Lake Michigan in the international star boat races at Long Island next month by winning the final of the series, sailed off Belmont harbor.

Hummer II. scored 68 points during the series of five races, three of which were sailed on July 4 and 5, and one Saturday. The Dennison boat finished first in three of the races, and was second in the others.

Club Has Corner on Races.

The Sheridan Shore Yacht club appears to have a corner in these star boat races, for the next three boats after Hummer II. in the final point standing hail from the Wilmette club.

Wet Smack, owned by Charles Pajeau, was second with 56 points and Harold H. Elliott's Carol third with 53. Twinkle Ditto, Max Hayford's entry was next with 49, and Sidney Tozer of the Columbia Yacht club followed with 45. George Dalseg's Bee scored 38 points, while Frank Manegold's Fram, which represented Lake Michigan in the international series at Baltimore last year, finished with 35.

Winning Time 2:21:54.

Hummer II. hummed around the regular club course at Belmont yesterday with an elapsed time of 2 hours 21 minutes and 54 seconds. The others finished in the following order: Carol, 2:23:30; Bee, 2:25:02; Pat, 2:35:21; Twinkle Ditto, 2:36:10; Wet Smack, 2:36:28; Alibaba, 2:38:18; Sparkler, 2:42:34; and Neried II., 2:44:36.

Wet Smack, the Pajeau boat, will sail for Lake Michigan in the great lakes star boat regatta, to be held at Peoria, Aug. 21, 22, and 23.

JAPANESE STAR, WORLD'S RECORD HOLDER, IS DEAD

Miss Hitomi gained international recognition at the women's Olympic games in Sweden in 1926, when she established several world's records. She also participated in the Olympics at Amsterdam in 1928.

Miss Hitomi held six Japanese women's records and four world's records: the 200 meter run, the 400 meter run, the hop, skip, and jump, and the three event competition.

High Jumping Seems Silly; It's Easier to Go Under Bar

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 2.—There are a number of things in need of correction or abolition, but I have been very busy of late and can only report that I have been attending to these matters in the order of their importance. I have now got around to condemning the intense physical training that goes with sport, on the ground that the end doesn't justify the means or vice versa.

For example, I will take the case of the high jumper who spends hours in the gymnasium in winter and on the athletic field in the spring, practicing to add quarter inches to his jump and goes without cake, pie, cigarets, ice cream and beer in order to put himself into perfect physical condition for his jumps in the track meets. Now, high jumping is a very foolish pursuit because the time never will come in the life of any high jumper when he can jump higher than a nonhigh jumper can clamber with no more effort and certainly with much less preparation.

Serves No Practical Purpose.

I have never seen a high jumper jump for any practical purpose in an emergency, so his collegiate practice and abstinence are of no more effect in after years than his Latin and Greek, and the educators are beginning to ease up on Latin and Greek.

The only practical high jumping to be seen in every day life is that discoursed now and again by book makers on the horse tracks when they find themselves short in the reach and have to take the fence. The facts show that when this happens, little, fat, squatty book makers in square toed shoes and derby hats who never saw a track meet or an official jumping layout have stepped right over the high walls on their stride, sometimes leaving a small tatter of pants or coat tail, it is true, but clearing the walls nevertheless, without so much as a practice jump in preparation.

Vaulters Not So Smart.

Book makers do not go without their cake, pie, cigarets, ice cream, beer, wine, gin, or highballs, and I do not doubt that they live as long as college high jumpers. So, obviously, it is of no benefit that thousands of young athletes abstain from cake, pie and so forth for months on end every year but, on the contrary, a detriment to cake, pie and so forth industries. This is no time to be boycotting any industries.

As for the pole vaulting, it speaks little for the intelligence of the college athlete that he spends so much time and effort and such painful self-denial learning to heave himself up and over a bar that any child would have the sense to go under, not over.

All this physical training has the primary object of improving the subject's proficiency in athletics, but I am in a very surly mood about the whole proposition and I don't even grant that proficiency in athletics will be of as much benefit in the long run as proficiency in telling Scotch jokes or drinking Scotch whisky.

In after years, when an athlete is in business, he is rather likely to find that if he goes around bulging his muscles and saying to people, "Feel how hard my legs are; that comes from high jumping at Exeter and Williams," he will fail to land the job or the order because the other people around the table in the club, where business is done, haven't been taking very good care of themselves and resent the smug superiority of any one who does.

Very little business is done on the running track or on the gymnasium tackle because business is a sedentary occupation, very often attended by ham and cheese on rye and alcoholic refreshments with a Scotch joke ringing clear.

Training Isn't Normal.

The training routine of the athlete is an abnormal method of life and in a way the athlete who goes to such extremes to improve himself at his games is taking an unfair advantage of the fellow who lives the normal life and goes at sport just as he happens to be. Certainly, a fellow of, say 35 years, who stands on his toes and breathes "ah" 35 times before an open window every morning, winter and summer, and puts in his spare time goading himself to strenuous sport, cannot claim to be living a normal life.

The theory behind all this training appears to be that in time everybody will be athletic and that the span of life will be much prolonged. Extended to its logical conclusion this theory in its fulfillment would have everybody living forever, which would be a pretty terrible state of affairs. The world would be cluttered up with a lot of old bores calling themselves the grand old men of one sport or another, and nothing would ever get done any more with these old ones posing for their pictures in leopard skin rugs and the young ones constantly drinking milk and training and admiring their physical development.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 2.—Tommy Thomas didn't have a thing except his southern hospitality this afternoon and did enough bad pitching in the four innings he worked to give the terrible Detroit Tigers the bulk of the score with which they whipped the White Sox, 8 to 4.

Thus the crucial series for last place remains crucial for if the Tigers win again tomorrow and Tuesday the Sox will return home as cave dwellers, their status when they left home on this almost interminable trip.

The game today had several items which we deem worthy of reporting—notably the fact that young Billy Sullivan, who tripled his last two times up yesterday, doubled his first and third times up today. Lu Blue, who made three hits yesterday, made three more today and had a walk besides. Sullivan and Blue made all of the Sox runs.

Reynolds Fails Again.

Carl Reynolds, one of the American league's first five batters, was a washout again this afternoon. Yesterday Carl went hitless five times with men on base, three times with a man on third, once with a runner on second and the other time with a man on first. Today he folded up four straight times, once with men on second and third, once with a runner on third and once he lopped into a double play with Sullivan on first. He didn't get the ball out of the infield today and has not made a hit in 13 times at bat.

Senators Win 2d Straight from Macks

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Washington overcame a four run lead today to win a slugfest, 10 to 6, for its second straight victory over Philadelphia. The victory left the champions a ten game hold on first place.

Al Crowder relieved Jones in the first inning with three runs in and none out and struck out the side after allowing a hit and a run. He fanned eight while holding the Athletics to seven hits.

Simmons, who put his 16th home run of the season into the left field stands in the seventh inning, and Sam West, who collected three doubles and a single in four trips to the plate, were the sluggers. The teams moved on to Philadelphia tonight for a double header tomorrow. Philadelphia has taken eight of the fifteen games between the teams this year. Score:

ROOT'S WINNING STREAK BROKEN IN TRY FOR NO. 13

Hack Has Another Hitless Day.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The fate that sooner or later catches up with those who build up winning streaks overtook Charley Root yesterday. With six victories in a row to his credit, he set out with high hopes to add one more, but the pace-making Cardinals shattered his plan, 6 to 2, before 41,000 spectators, who tore madly for home when a gale, accompanied by rainfall, swept over Wrigley field just as the battle ended. Root's failure moved the Cubs back to third place, eight and one-half games from the top.

Luck was with the champions when it was a matter of hitting Root's offerings, but it turned against them in another way. It cost them the services of Jim Collins, the sensational young first baseman and slugger par excellence. In running to first base in the opening inning he turned his left foot on the edge of the bag exactly as did Riggs Stephenson a week ago. He was carried off the field, and an examination revealed a chipped left ankle bone, the same injury which put Stevie on the shelf for the season.

Cards Ruin Show Early.

The 41,000 didn't have to wait long to have their enthusiasm crushed. It began to fade in the second when two Cardinals skipped over the plate, mainly because the wind played havoc with a pair of fly balls. Then three more moved across on some real hitting in the third. Up to this point the Cards were the possessors of nine hits. After that they produced only two more, both coming in the seventh to manufacture a run before Root could give way to a pinch hitter.

Paul Derringer, the Rochester, N. Y., rookie, who, like Root, was after his thirteenth victory, was the cause of the dearth of Cub runs. They hit him well enough, but the firing covered too much space to be effective. In the fifth they managed to bunch two hits for one run. The other tally was handled exclusively by Ki Cuyler, who spanked a drive over the barrier in the eighth.

Hack Goes Hitless.

Although there were enough hits to go round, poor old Hack Wilson didn't share in the sport. The home run king without a throne, and the object of boos and cheers whenever he appeared, tried four times without success. Once he fanned and on another occasion he tapped into a double play. At that, Hack wasn't far behind his boss in the matter of production. Manager Hornsby swung his bat four times, three of them with runners on base, and was a total loss in each instance.

The Reds will be here today and Bob Smith or Les Sweetland will greet them. Silas Johnson is expected to be the enemy choice. Tomorrow the two teams will work off a double-header.

The day was torrid enough, but Root made it a bit hotter for the spectators at the outset by getting himself into a jam. This served to soften the subsequent blows. The battle opened with Adams' out, but Watkins doubled past Grimm. Frisch died swinging and Collins survived on Blair's fumble. This was the play that cost Collins temporarily the services of his left leg. A pass to Hafey loaded the bags, but Martin popped to Hemsley in front of the plate.

Blair Picked Off First.

The Cubs' half started with Blair singling, but he permitted himself to be plucked off first base, thus ruining what might have been a profitable session.

Root's troubles in the second got under way when Jim Wilson led off with a fly to right. The wind carried it over Dan Taylor's head for a triple. A pop single by Gelbert was weaned away from Blair in the same way, J. Wilson scoring. Three strikes disposed of Derringer and a roller to Grimm eliminated Adams. A new disturbance broke out when Watkins walked. Frisch then doubled to left and Gelbert ran home, but Bottomley, who supplanted Collins, let two of his

New York, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo, whose pursuit of the light heavyweight championship began so long ago that only the oldest inhabitant can remember when it was, will try again this week, meeting Maxie Rosenbloom, the Harlem clown, in a 15 round struggle at Ebbets field, Brooklyn, Wednesday night.

Rosenbloom and Slattery have clashed six times and Jimmy has won four decisions to two for Maxie. But all of Slattery's victories came before Rosenbloom had won the 175 pound title. In their last meeting, with the title at stake, Maxie won a close decision at Buffalo.

Trains in Night Clubs.

Rosenbloom has done his training for the coming title test in New York's night clubs. Gifted with remarkable stamina, the champion never has seen the need for intensive training in a gymnasium. He fights often enough to keep himself in shape. Slattery, something of a playboy himself at one time, has trained earnestly for this bout. Maxie rules a 6 to 5 favorite.

Carnera in Two Bouts.

Primo Carnera, Italian giant, and Jack [Kid] Berg, English lightweight, furnish the other high spots of the metropolitan district card for the week. Carnera battles Roberto Roberti, another big Italian, in a ten rounder at Newark, N. J., tomorrow and Armando Decarlos at Wilmington, Del., on Thursday. Berg tackles Jimmy McNamara of New York at the Queensboro stadium Tuesday night.

The far western program includes a ten round bout at Sacramento Thursday between Fidel La Barba, Los Angeles featherweight, and Santiago Zorilla, and a heavyweight scrap at Oakland tomorrow night between Jose Santa, big Portuguese, and Leon Chevalier, San Francisco Negro.

Bouts on the national schedule include:

Monday—At Newark, N. J., Primo Canera vs. Robert Roberti, 10; at New York, Giacomo Bergomas vs. Con O'Kelly, 10; at New York, Mike Payan vs. Frankie Petrolle, 8; at Oakland, Cal., Jose Santa vs. Leon Chevalier, 10; at Columbus, O., Johnny Freeman vs. Sammy Cohen, 10; at Chicago, Frankie Battaglia vs. Pete LaCrosse, and Clyde Chastian vs. Jerry Crano, each 10.

Tuesday—At New York, Jack [Kid] Berg vs. Jimmy McNamara, 10; Jack Rosenberg vs. Nick Testo, 8; at Indianapolis, Del Fontaine vs. Henry Firpo, 10; at Cleveland, Johnny Risko vs. Meyer [K. O.] Christner, 12.

Wednesday—At New York, Maxie Rosenbloom vs. Jimmy Slattery, 15 [title]; Dave Shade vs. Tiger Thomas, 8; at Seattle, Wash., Joe Cortes vs. Young Sam Langford, and West Kotchell vs. Bob Stennett, each 6.

Von Elm took Harold Weber, Toledo veteran, and toured the scene of the recent United States open in 75 strokes.

Santa Paula Beats Roslyn Poloists, 11-4

Detroit, Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Santa Paula blighted the hopes of the Roslyn four for international polo fame when it swept to an easy victory in the deciding game of the three game series here today, 11 to 4.

The game was marked by numerous spills. Mills, Hopping, Andrada, Harrington and Gazzotti were thrown from their mounts in tense moments of play. Harrington, Santa Paula No. 1, was forced out in the fourth chukker when he injured his wrist. Gazzotti replaced him.

The Long Islanders were unable to stave off the invaders as they kept the ball in their possession most of the game. The lineup:

SANTA PAULA. Position.		ROSLYN.
Harrington	No. 1	Talbot
Gazzotti
Juan Reynal	No. 2	Mills
Jose Reynal	No. 3	Hopping
Andrada	Back	Rathborne

Dams Take All Joy Out of Fox River Canoeing

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aurora, Ill., Aug. 2.—Five dams stretching across the Fox river provide a positive program of exercise for the canoeist who puts his ship in the water above the town of Batavia and then starts to paddle for Aurora.

THE TRIBUNE'S canoe, which is going down the Fox to check on the use of this stream for various outdoor sports, met its squad of dams today, all solid piles of concrete, which quickly teach the canoeist to spell the word dam with an n. There are no locks in these structures. We had to survey the shallow rock strewn river bottom below each one, and then with Vincent Smith, of Chicago, our paddling partner, at one end of our 16 foot canoe, lifted it over the concrete to get in the stream below.

Starting in at Fox Lake and continuing through the city of Aurora, the canoeist must portage over eleven dams across the Fox. Just one of these, the low structure below McHenry, has a lock in it for the convenience of water travelers.

More Dams Ahead.

A drop of 119 feet in the river between Fox lake and Aurora tells the story of these dams. The eleven dams which THE TRIBUNE'S canoe has hurdled are not the end of the lift and haul program. There are two more dams before we strike an open stretch of river below the town of Yorkville.

After leaving Camp Prindle, above Batavia, this morning, we picked up a copy of THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE, scanned the news for five minutes, and then portaged the dam by lifting out the canoe and then sliding it down the smooth back wall. This done, our canoeing expedition took on the appearance of a prairie club hike, because there was so little water below the dam that we strolled several hundred yards down the middle of the river bed, with the canoe dutifully following.

However, as low as the water is near the bridge in Batavia, this town deserves several merit marks because of the work it is doing to make its water front look well. A dredge is working on the river bed, so that instead of an ugly rubbish strewn stream bed being exposed to the visitor's gaze, Batavia provides a pleasing expanse of water and clean banks, a marked contrast to the river vistas which one gets below the dams along this stream.

No Rest for Fish.

If the bullheads and rock bass in this part of the Fox river have any rest it is not on Saturdays and Sundays. So many fishermen were seen in the last seven miles that the poor fish probably encountered nothing but bait and hooks. All the way from Batavia we have been chatting with wading fishermen and bank fishermen. After inquiring if it is THE TRIBUNE canoe they report their luck, which usually is slim.

One does not need to see many miles of the Fox river at this time of the year, when unusually low water levels prevail, to understand why it is shunned by canoeists. Behind the dams one finds considerable use of the deep water by resident boaters. Above St. Charles, where a beautiful stretch of deep water lures hundreds of bathers, we counted 12 canoes at one boat livery and a number of other craft in use. But below the town and the dam there isn't enough of the Fox river to float any kind of a boat until one goes some distance down stream past broad mucky stretches of exposed river bed.

Beautiful Water Highway.

However, there is no denying the beauty of this winding water highway as it flows past green timbered hills, miles of groves and oaks. Basswoods and elms, with tall willows arching over the banks, are made to order for the campers and picnickers and fishermen. To the outdoor fans as well as the swimmers the Fox is giving pleasure all through the summer season.

3 Top Seeded Stars Lose in Eastern Play

Easthampton, N. Y., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Three of the four seeded players lost in the opening day's play of the annual Maidstone club women's invitation tennis tournament today.

Marjorie Morrill of Dedham, Mass., seeded No. 1, Dorothy Weisel of Sacramento, Cal., No. 2, and Josephine Cruickshank, Santa Ana, Cal., No. 3, all were eliminated, leaving Mrs. Marjorie Gladman van Ryn of Philadelphia, as the only seeded American player in the field.

Of the two foreign entrants, Mrs. Dorothy Shepherd-Barron, captain of the British Wightman cup team, survived two matches, but Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall was eliminated.

Three Reach Semi-Finals.

Mary Greef of Kansas City, Mo., Mrs. Shepherd-Barron, and Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup of Wilmington, Del., reached the semi-finals, while Mrs. Van Ryn and Mrs. J. Dallas Corbiere of Boston were a round behind.

All except two of the stars drew first round byes, but that one first round match provided Penelope Anderson of Richmond, Va., with the opportunity to eliminate Mrs. Whittingstall, playing in this country for the first time in three years, 6-4, 6-3. Miss Anderson was herself eliminated in the second round by Mrs. Corbiere after a three hour battle, 6-4, 5-7, 11-9.

Miss Greef, after defeating Norma Taubele of New York in the second round, 9-7, 6-2, beat Miss Morrill in the big upset of the day, 2-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Mrs. Jessup Wins.

Miss Weisel bowed to Mrs. Jessup in the second round, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4, and the Wilmington veteran then went on to beat Virginia Rice of Boston in the third round, 6-2, 6-4.

Miss Cruickshank succeeded in getting past Mianne Palfrey of Boston, 6-1, 6-3, but fell before Mrs. Shepherd-Barron's steady play, 7-5, 3-6, 6-3. Mrs. Shepherd-Barron had eliminated Alice Marble of San Francisco, 6-3, 6-4, in the second round.

Mrs. Van Ryn was forced to three sets by Sarah Palfrey, Boston, 7-5, 4-6, 6-1.

Altoona, Pa., pounded Forrest Paddock for thirteen hits in the first game, to score a 6 to 3 victory over the Mills of the Chicago Semi-Pro league at Mills stadium yesterday, but lost the second contest, 14 to 7. It was called off because of rain in the seventh.

Doug McWeeney hurled the nightcap for the Mills and eight hits gave Altoona five runs in the first two innings. Altoona led, 6 to 4, until the fifth inning, when the Mills scored four runs. The Mills scored six more runs in the seventh. Scores:

GIANTS CONQUER BRAVES TWICE; MITCHELL STARS

New York, Aug. 2.—(AP)—The Giants took both ends of a double header from the Boston Braves today, 4 to 2 and 6 to 2. After five defeats, Clarence Mitchell turned back the Braves with six hits to win the opener. He also led the hitting with three straight, one a home run. Boston's only runs were due to Wes Schulmerich's homer with one on.

Bill Walker's relief pitching pulled the Giants out in the second game. He went the last four and two-thirds innings, allowing only one hit, after the Braves had begun to hammer Claiborne and Morrell in the fifth. The Giants scored four runs off Tom Zachary in the first two innings. Travis Jackson and Lance Richbourg hit for the circuit in the second game. Scores:

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 2.—(AP)—The Robins divided a double header with the Phillies today, coming from far behind to win the second game, 7 to 5, after the Phils had captured the opener, 5 to 2. Jim Elliott came to the rescue of Sheriff Blake to win the first game while Heimach's fine relief pitching was wasted by Brooklyn's hitting impotence.

The Phillies hit Phelps for four runs in the first inning of the second game and drove him from the mound in the second. The Robins scored three in the third and four in the seventh. Scores:

HANSEN SIGNED TO BOX TRAMBLIE ON DUFFY CARD

Johnny Duffy, south side boxing promoter, has signed Haakon Hansen, Norwegian middleweight, to battle Ray Tramblie of Rockford in the ten round whoop at Shrewsbridge field on Monday night.

Tramblie's battle with Laurie Peppin of Winnipeg last week won him a chance against Hansen. Peppin was badly cut in the Tramblie battle, but probably will be given a chance later with the Hansen-Tramblie winner.

Tramblie is Hansen's best test of the season. His left hook is expected to punish Hansen. The Rockford pounder has more speed than any of the Norwegian has battled.

MOON MULLINS—PLASTERED AGAIN

WHEN CARDS RUINED DAY FOR 41,000

Hornsby tries to come to Charley Root's rescue during the Cardinals' bombardment in the third inning, but fails to get the umpire's decision. Watkins overran third base and the Cub manager is putting the ball on him, but too late, Umpire Donnelly rules. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

The Cardinals didn't need the help of the wind to collect their three runs in the third. The banging began with Hafey's double to deep center. He strolled to third on Martin's sacrifice and went home on J. Wilson's single past Blair. Gelbert propelled a single out of the reach of English, and both runners advanced on Derringer's bunt. They crossed the counter on Adams' one base drive to right. Then Watkins doubled into the territory patrolled by Hack Wilson, and by way of silencing the wolves who had been giving him the razz let loose with a powerful throw, on which Adams was nailed at the plate.

Cubs Score in Fifth.

During the first four innings, the Cubs made three worthless hits, but they improved a bit in the fifth and their first run was the outcome. The half started unimpressively on a strikeout by Hack. He wasn't swinging when the third one went over. Grimm followed with a two bagger down the right field line, Hemsley flied to right and Root walked. Blair stepped into the breach with a looping single over short, Grimm scooting across the plate. Then English enjoyed a brief nap while Derringer slipped over three strikes.

From the end of his luckless third to the close of the sixth, Root restricted the enemy to successive outs, but they got away from him again in the seventh and scored once on a pair of hits. Frisch led off with a single to right. Bottomley whistled one down the first base line, but Grimm made a dive, knocked down the ball with his bare hand and recovered in time to get his man. After Hafey had fanned, Martin singled between Hornsby and English to move Frisch over the plate.

Wilson Gets Razz.

Cuyler's homer into the right field seats was the first happening in the eighth. Then Dan Taylor beat out a hit to Frisch and there were visions of a rally, but not for long. Hornsby forced Taylor. This brought up the luckless Hack, and those addicted to booing him were delighted when he grounded to Adams for a double play.

A pair of breaks gave the Cubs a chance to start something in the ninth, but they couldn't make use of the opportunity. Grimm was the first man up and he scratched a hit to Frisch. Hemsley bounced to Derringer, who pegged to second to force Grimm, but Gelbert dropped the ball. Then Hartnett, batting for Warneke, fanned, Blair grounded to the pitcher and English was thrown out by Adams.

Sox Allow Foes 67 Runs in 7 Games, Yet Win Four Times

New York, Aug. 2.—[Special.]—Baseball oddities had their day in the major league records last week as the clubs battled through the closest seven days of the season.

In the National league, only two clubs were able to better a .500 average for the week and only two fell below that mark. Pittsburgh led with four victories and two defeats. Chicago followed with four games won and three lost. Then came Brooklyn, New York, Boston and Cincinnati, each with three triumphs and as many reverses. The league leading St. Louis Cardinals and the slipping Phillies fell below.

Macks, Senators Tie.

In the American league, four victories and two defeats also was good enough for first place, the Athletics and Washington sharing the top. Then came two second division clubs, Boston with five victories and three defeats and Chicago with four games won and three lost.

Scoring records also showed queer combinations. In 27 games the American league clubs scored 314 runs, while the National leaguers scored only 175 tallies in 25 games.

Sox Record Unique.

The Yankees, engaging in a wild hitting series with the Chicago White Sox hit safely 95 times and scored 73 runs, leading both leagues in scoring. The Boston Red Sox also had 95 hits, but could score only 52 times. Yet the Yanks could only break even in eight games, while Boston won five out of its eight. Chicago, with 67 runs scored by its opponents and 12 errors, the biggest totals in either league, also did better than the Yanks.

Washington and the Athletics shared the best showing in the field with Pittsburgh and Cincinnati. Each team made only three errors. The Senators also led the American league defensively, allowing their rivals only 21 runs while the A's topped both circuits in home run hitting with six.

Pirates Lead National.

Pittsburgh's sluggers took the National league home run lead with a total of three and 29 runs and 64 hits for a pair of second places. The Cubs scored 30 times, and had 30 runs scored against them while Brooklyn poked out 67 hits. Boston showed the low total of opponent's runs in the league, 12, while Cincinnati was on the bottom of the scoring and hitting columns with eleven runs and 39 hits.

Last week's record follows:

PACKERS BUILD STRONG TEAM TO DEFEND TITLE

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 2.—[Special.]—With the opening of the professional football season only six weeks off, the Packers, National league champions in 1929 and 1930, are assembling a team which should make a determined bid for the 1931 title.

Green Bay has signed ten players and of this group nine will make their first appearance in Packer uniforms this fall. During the last week, Coach Lambeau has announced the signing of Eddie Baker, all-American end from Northwestern; Dick Stahlman, a veteran professional league tackle, who played with New York for two years, and Roger Grove, three year varsity quarter back at Michigan State.

Grove was recommended by Jimmy Crowley, who is now coaching at Michigan State. When Crowley was assistant coach at Georgia, he tipped the Bay management off to Hurdis McCrary and Tom Nash, a pair of stars who helped the Packers win a couple of titles.

Winning the pentathlon with the German record breaking total of 395 points, Fräulein Braumueller tossed the javelin 42.28 meters [138 feet 8 77-128 inches]. Her listed record is 40.27 meters [132 feet 1 59-128 inches].

Fräulein Dollinger of Nuremberg tied Mrs. Lida Radke's world record for the 800 meters when she was timed in 2:14 3-10.

Frame Pilots Car to 25 Mile Victory in East

Woodbridge, N. J., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Fred Frame of Los Angeles won the 25 mile automobile race feature at the Woodbridge speedway today in 19 minutes 31 seconds. For the first 40 laps Frame fought a battle with Jimmy Gleason of Philadelphia for the lead. Then Gleason's car developed motor trouble and Frame went out in front to win by an eighth of a mile. Larry Beals of Nobscot, Mass., was third.

Tigers Even Series; Beat Sox, 8 to 4

little rest. The long fellow did pretty well. The enemy scored one run off him in the fifth and another one on two errors by Watwood after two were out in the seventh. In the eighth the Tigers had the bases full with one out and Pat started a double play to end the inning and the Tigers' offensive.

Faber Again Today.

Faber will pitch tomorrow and George Uhle probably will furnish the opposition.

The Sox will return home Wednesday morning and will have a day off. The St. Louis Browns will play single games Thursday and Friday and double headers Saturday and Sunday.

The White Sox caught themselves a pair of runs in the first inning. Blue, who on this trip has blossomed as a strong hitter, well above the .300 mark, opened with a single. Then Sullivan prolonged his extra base hitting spree with a double to right center, Blue scoring. Young Bill went on to third when Owen fumbled the throw in. Reynolds failed for the third successive time in two days to score Sullivan from third when he tapped gently to Owen. Fonseca walked, and Gehringer fumbled Watwood's grounder, Sullivan scoring. Fonseca was caught trying to steal third and Kerr flied to Johnson.

Thomas Falls in Fourth.

The Tigers took a 3 to 2 lead in the third. Gehringer got his second single, Stone walked and both runners scored on Alexander's double to center. Alexander went to third, but was out at the plate on McManus' grounder to Cissell. Owen lined to Reynolds.

Thomas faded out completely in the fourth and the Tigers made three runs on a single, an error, a sacrifice, a walk and two more singles. Tommy finished the inning but did not answer the bell in the fifth.

The Sox made two more runs in the first of the fifth. Blue opened with his second single and stopped on third when Sullivan knocked his second double. For the seventh time in the series Reynolds fizzled with runners on base, this time with a characteristic hop to the shortstop. However, Fonseca came through with a double which scored Blue and Sullivan. Watwood flied to Johnson and Herring threw out Kerr.

One run was made off Caraway, who had replaced Thomas in the fifth. Owen fouled to Tate, but Hayworth walked. Herring fanned. Then Johnson tripled, scoring Hayworth. Gehringer flied to Fonseca.

The scoring in the seventh all was due to clumsy work by Watwood, who made two errors after two were out. The first error was a sloppy muff on Herring's easy fly. Johnson followed with a double to center. Herring had stopped at third, but Watwood threw the ball into the dugout, causing Herring to be waved home and Johnson to third. Caraway then fanned Gehringer.

YANKEES SPLIT WITH RED SOX BEFORE 40,000

Boston, Mass., Aug. 2.—(AP)—A crowd of 40,000, the largest to witness a ball game in Boston since the 1916 world series, today saw the Red Sox and Yankees divide a double header. The visitors took the opener, 4 to 1, while Wilcy Moore shut out his old team mates, 1 to 0, in the second.

The first game started out as a pitching duel between Charlie Ruffing and Jack Russell, but the latter weakened in the eighth, giving four hits and two walks.

In the second game Moore and George Pipgras held the opposing batsmen to three hits, the lone run coming in the eighth on singles by Sweeney and Berry and a muff at the plate by Jorgens.

NEW FLORIDA TAX ON GASOLINE IS PEAK FOR NATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 2.—A new peak of 7 cents a gallon for state gasoline tax rates was established recently by the Florida legislature. Just before adjourning a second special session the legislature of the state brought a prolonged battle over state finances to a close by compromising on a 1 cent increase in the gasoline tax rate. Several members of the legislature held out to the last for a 2 cent increase to 8 cents a gallon, but finally compromised on the 7 cent tax, which was an administration measure.

The Alabama legislature recently passed a bill increasing the tax on gasoline from 4 to 5 cents a gallon. Since counties and municipalities of Alabama collect gasoline taxes of their own, the passage of the bill has the effect of making the gasoline tax paid in some sections of the state 10 cents a gallon.

SPECULATORS IN GRAIN PITS TURN TO CORN MARKET

July Wheat Lowest in Trade History.

By CHARLES MICHAELS.

Board of Trade traders witnessed several striking features last week. July wheat, September and December corn, and all futures of oats dropping not only to the lowest of the season but to the lowest in many years.

July wheat touched the lowest point in the history of the trade at 48c over the close on Friday, with cash wheat in the sample market 49c for No. 3 red, 49½c for No. 2 hard, and 47½c for No. 3 yellow hard. At the same time that prices reached their lowest level on Friday July corn, in which there was a squeezing of the shorts, advanced 18c from the week's low and closed at the top of 72½c. Cash wheat prices at Chicago looked comparatively high considering that No. 3 hard at Kansas City on Saturday sold at 41@47c and No. 2 hard at 47@48½c, depending on protein content.

Market Outlook Varies.

What prices are down around the bottom level, and, while there are traders who predict 45c in Chicago before the year is over, there are others who believe that the market has reached its lowest mark and that there should be a slow but irregularly upward movement.

With the government in control of the wheat market, there is a growing opinion on the part of local speculators to give their attention to corn, which is a natural market, and those who have given it serious consideration entertain the belief that, unless conditions governing the wheat market are changed, corn will soon become the leader of all grain markets, a position some believe it is entitled under present conditions.

Corn is used for more than 125 different articles, and, being entirely a domestic affair, regardless of what Argentina, Europe, or Russia does, it could make a better trading market influenced by supply and demand.

July Corn Shorts Squeezed.

A week ago shorts in July corn exposed that Thomas M. Howell, the selling holder, in addition to others who had corn bought, would liquidate at lower prices at the end of the month. Instead they held their corn off the market and scared shorts into covering and advanced prices from 59c to 72½c, holding the top figure to the last and at the same time letting the shorts have all the corn they wanted at the top, and were willing to buy it from scattered holders at or under the high point.

Deliveries of cash corn for the month were 3,468,000 bu, most of it going to Thomas M. Howell, who, it is said, will hold it off the market for some time being to see how the crop reported damaged in some sections develops. Serious damage has already developed in Kansas, Nebraska, northwestern Iowa, southwestern South Dakota, and northeastern Nebraska. Unless good soaking rains and lower temperatures prevail, further damage is expected.

Private crop reports due today are estimated to show decreases of 100,000,000 to 150,000,000 bu from the July report, but this would still indicate a large crop, around 2,800,000,000 to 2,850,000,000 bu. It is believed that the country has disposed of the bulk, if not all, of its surplus corn, so that receipts from now on will be light, giving Howell an opportunity to market his holdings which are said to have cost around 55@65c bu.

At the close September was 53⅞@54c, December 43⅛@43⅝c, May 48½@48¾c, being ⅛c lower to 4c higher for the week.

No. 3 yellow corn was quoted at 10c over September at the close, with No. 2 yellow 1c over, in car lots. Prices for the week follow:

Sensationally bullish news from the American and Canadian spring wheat

Half of June Gains in Stock Prices Lost

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 2.—Continuous selling pressure throughout July caused stock prices to react to a level where approximately half of the June enhancement in values was cancelled. However, the decline was a gradual one, interspersed by occasional rallies, with the volume of trading the lowest in five years.

Values of 240 issues, comprising twenty of the principal groups listed, depreciated $1,821,683,590, compared with an appreciation of $3,235,401,713 in June, and $1,429,659,474 in July 1930.

Factors influencing the course of prices in July were the delay in acceptance of the moratorium plan of international debts proposed by President Hoover for one year; the crisis in Germany; adverse dividend actions by several leading corporations, and publication of poor half year earning statements. Considering all the bearish news, the market held up well and is still a fair distance above the June 2 low figure.

Reaction is General.

The reaction in the market was general, with but one exception in the sugar issues. Prices especially in the so-called leaders declined sharply. Based on the average of 240 issues, the change since the end of June was 2.527 points, with the greatest drop showing in railroad shares, where an average loss of 7.395 points in the 25 issues occurred. Leathers, as a group, fell less in price than other groups, with a drop of .031 points in the average of 4 stocks. Nine sugar stocks advanced on an average of .458 points.

In the aggregate changes in values for the various groups the largest loss during the month was in the public utilities, where $520,353,824 was pared from the prices at the end of June. Other groups showing substantial losses were railroads, $428,056,971, and steels, $219,865,013.

Some Severe Losses.

Losses in many of the leading stocks in July were severe, with Underwood-Elliott-Fisher shares off 18 points, losing $12,543,030 in market value; Allied Chemical and Dye, 22¼ points for a depreciation of $53,422,673; Anaconda Copper, 4 points, or a market loss of $35,640,612; American Telephone and Telegraph, 9¾ points, down $180,775,998 in market value; New York Central, 18½ points, representing a market loss of $92,363,933, and United States Steel, 15⅝ points for a drop in value of $133,783,579.

New York, Aug. 2.—(AP)—National Electric Power company, eastern unit of the Middle West Utilities system, reported today for the June quarter net for retirement and dividends of National Electric Power $1,580,938, compared with $1,563,432 for the corresponding period last year.

NEW YORK BANK GROUP TACKLES BERLIN PUZZLE

Study Short Term Credit Problem.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 2.—The group of New York bankers selected Friday to study the proposals for dealing with short term German credits in this market set forth in the message sent by Dr. Hans Luther, head of the Reichsbank, to the federal reserve bank here, is continuing to work on the problem.

Members of the group, which is composed of representatives of the Chase National bank, the National City bank, the Guaranty Trust company, and the International Acceptance Bank, Inc., said that they had been asked to handle the technical details of investigating the German proposals as a matter of expediency, but were not authorized to conclude agreements with the German banking authorities on behalf of the other banks.

Collects Queries.

It was explained that a study of the German message by the individual banks here has given rise to numerous questions of its interpretation, and that the bankers' group was engaged in collecting these queries in order to avoid duplication. The group will communicate with the German banking authorities to obtain a clarification of those parts of the message that are not clear, will convey to the German banks any objections expressed by individual New York institutions, and will report back to its New York associates the replies received.

When sufficient progress has been made in clearing up questions of interpretation and in conveying back and forth the details of what New York banks are prepared to do and what German banks are ready to do, the committee will lay the information gathered before the other bankers. These in turn will individually indicate whether they are prepared to agree to the proposed arrangement.

Keep in Touch with Group.

At the same time member banks of the federal reserve system in other parts of the country are keeping in touch with the group. They have submitted their questions and will receive answers from the German banks by way of the group. In their turn they will state, as individuals, how far they are prepared to agree to a plan for "staying put" on existing short term credits.

Bankers here have received word that the London banks had discussed the German proposals and were in agreement with the scheme suggested in all major points. Bankers from Holland, Switzerland, and France who have commitments in Germany are to meet in London today and tomorrow to discuss the German proposals.

May Submit Viewpoints.

When an understanding has been reached in all markets as to what the various banks are willing to do, it is thought likely that the various viewpoints may be submitted to the bank for international settlements committee, set up in accordance with the recommendation of the London conference, where an attempt will be made to reconcile them.

Bankers said that there could be no question of reaching an agreement in time to permit the reopening of the German banks tomorrow. London will be enjoying a bank holiday, it was pointed out, so that in any case it would be unwise for the German banks to resume full business tomorrow.

Members of the group were of the opinion that it would be undesirable at this time to disclose the full details of the plan put forward by Germany. They remarked that some changes will unquestionably be made and in that case erroneous conclusions might be drawn as to the extent of the cooperation between German and New York banks.

GRAPE CONTROL BOARD CUTS SIZE OF LOAN SOUGHT

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—(AP)—The question of loans to the California grape industry for assistance in marketing the 1931 crop probably will be settled this week by the farm board. The grape control board originally sought $14,000,000, of which $9,000,000 was to be furnished by the board. The remainder was to be supplied by intermediate credit banks.

Heat damage early in July, however, seriously reduced the prospective crop and the amount required to operate a raisin pool for controlling the surplus. It was understood the loan now asked from the board is in the neighborhood of $6,000,000.

An extension of credit and loan of about $350,000 has been agreed upon for the Sun Maid Raisin company, the marketing agency. The Fruit Industries, Ltd., manufacturers of a grape concentrate, would share in the board loans.

$10,030,236 in Municipal Bonds Scheduled for Award

New York, Aug. 2.—New municipal bonds scheduled for award this week aggregate $10,030,236 and include only one offering of more than $1,000,000, the Daily Bond Buyer reports. So far this year the weekly volume of public sales of issues in this class has averaged $39,541,485, but has fallen off sharply in recent weeks. The largest of the 57 items on the calendar this week is an offering of $1,800,000 Los Angeles county, California, school bonds, to be awarded tomorrow.

Edwin G. Foreman Jr. Joins Staff of Advertising Firm

The affiliation of Edwin G. Foreman Jr. with Blackett-Sample-Hummert Inc., advertising agency, 221 North La Salle street, as vice president was announced yesterday. Mr. Foreman for many years served as vice president and director of the Foreman-State National bank.

Bond Market Is Irregular; Gilt Edge Issues Steady

New York, Aug. 2.—(AP)—The bond market executed a series of back and forth movements last week, the net result of which was a narrow irregular decline. As a group foreign obligations provided some of the largest losses. Railroad issues proved more vulnerable than other domestic loans.

Really gilt edge obligations of all groups were consistently steady or firm. Returning confidence in foreign conditions was reflected in the gradual gains in several of the more pivotal German issues. The week end news of the agreement for the purchase and sale of sterling bills between the central banks of the United States, Great Britain, and France preceded a recovery in the 5½ per cent bonds of 1937 of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

May Stimulate Confidence.

This contract, it is hoped, will help to stimulate greater confidence in British affairs. Another important influence was the publication of July earnings of railroads, which continued to compare unfavorably with the corresponding results for 1930, although the comparisons in some instances were not so unfavorable as for June.

The New York state banking department on Friday removed several rail issues from the list of investments considered legal for savings banks. Of course this action could affect directly the holdings of only New York state institutions, but it is indicative of the predicament of the railroads generally.

The Chase National bank, as fiscal agents for Argentina, has announced that $119,156 is available for the purchase below par of bonds for the sinking fund of the 5½ per cent issue due Aug. 1, 1962, of that country.

Will Redeem Gold Notes.

Kelvinator corporation has called all its outstanding 6 per cent convertible gold notes at 105 as of Sept. 30, which will leave the company without bonded indebtedeness except its building bonds.

Offerings of bonds during the week aggregated $84,339,350 compared with $28,947,000 for the previous week and $118,958,000 in the corresponding week last year. In considering the increased total for the week just passed it should be remembered that the flotations were principally public utility and municipal issues, for which there has been a good market for some time because of the high standing of most such issues.

The desire of many banks to maintain a thoroughly liquid position has congregated the demand upon issues of ready marketability. These two groups include many such bonds.

CASSAT & CO. TO SEGREGATE ITS BUSINESS LINES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 2.—Cassat & Co., one of the oldest stock exchange and investment banking houses, has announced the segregation of its commission brokerage business from its underwriting activities. The Cassat corporation has been formed to carry on the business of "underwriting, participating in syndicates and selling groups, or otherwise purchasing securities." All the officers and directors of the Cassat corporation, which is separate from Cassat & Co., are general partners in Cassat & Co., the stock exchange firm.

There is a trend toward the segregation of brokerage commission business from the underwriting of securities by members of the New York stock exchange. It is understood that Cassat & Co. have obtained the approval of the stock exchange authorities to the segregation of its brokerage and underwriting activities. It is considered likely that other stock exchange houses which have been doing a large underwriting business will take a similar step.

Offering will be made of $1,753,000 state of California 4 per cent gold bonds, due Jan. 2, 1941 to 1948, inclusive, at prices to yield from 3.55 to 3.65 per cent, by a syndicate headed by the National City company.

MERGER OF NEW YORK BANKS WILL BECOME EFFECTIVE ON SEPT. 16

New York, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Merger of the Continental Bank and Trust company of New York and the Straus National Bank and Trust company of New York, and the acquisition by the merged Bank of International Trust company, will become effective Sept. 16 next, an announcement today said.

The consolidation is subject to ratification by stockholders of the three institutions.

Under the merger terms stockholders of Continental will receive 63-100 of a share of new stock for each share now held, plus $8 per share in cash and about $1.40 a share later, when the balance of the assets to be distributed has been liquidated.

International Trust stockholders will receive 20,000 shares of new stock and, subject to liquidation, will receive cash for the assets which are over and above the amount needed to meet the deposit liability of International and a contribution of $1,000,000 to the capital structure of the new bank.

STEEL DIVIDEND CUT REACTS ON MARKET PRICES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 2.—Our financial markets showed last week that they are still acutely sensitive to developments touching home industry and business, no matter how indifferent they may appear at times to events abroad. The decision of the United States Steel corporation to reduce the quarterly dividend on common stock from $1.75 to $1, accompanied as it was by one of the most disappointing income reports since before the war, turned the course of prices sharply downward.

At the close of business on Saturday prices on the stock exchange were, in the average, just about even with those at the close of the brief, but excited, "moratorium market," which followed President Hoover's proposal on June 20 of an intergovernmental debt holiday. After that flurry stocks drifted more or less aimlessly, except for a spasm of selling on July 7. The market provided no excitement thereafter until Friday, July 24, when prices reacted sharply in response to an apparently authoritative intimation that a dividend reduction was imminent. News of the dividend reduction and the earnings for the three months ended June 30 came out on Tuesday, after the close of the market, and the market did not register its disappointment fully until Wednesday.

Income Below Expectations.

Wall street was surprised, not only by the readjustment of the common dividend to a $1 quarterly rate, but more so by the fact that the Steel corporation in the second quarter earned from operations less than 10 per cent of its preferred dividend requirements. This was far below expectations. The necessity of retrenchment was plainly disclosed in this report, which shows that, after drawing upon surplus to the extent of about $25,000,000 in the two previous quarters to pay dividends on the company's 3,700,000 common shares, the corporation was obliged to apply a special income item arising from the sale of property to show a margin sufficient for preferred dividends.

As it was, the corporation took 37,600,000 from surplus to meet the full dividend requirements—$1.75 on 3,602,811 shares of preferred stock and $1 on 8,670,000 shares of common. By reducing the quarterly rate on common to $1 a share, the corporation

Leading the Way Back

Q. "How do you find Business?"
A. "By Going after it."

Such is the enterprising answer to a question that is notably current. Employees and dealers in the areas served by the Associated Gas and Electric System answered it by setting a new record during their recent six weeks' refrigerator sales campaign.

19,489 Refrigerators Sold in Six Weeks

Customers in the area served by the Associated System purchased 19,489 automatic refrigerators during this period. This is more than they purchased during a similar campaign last year when the Associated System sold the largest number of refrigerators ever sold by a utility group in a single campaign.

About half or 9,592 of these sales in the recent campaign, were made by dealers who were assisted by a plan of cooperation established by the Associated New Business Department.

Stability from Domestic Use

Growing domestic use of electricity from sale of appliances increases the natural stability of the industry. Stability from this source is becoming even more pronounced. During 1930, use of electricity in homes accounted for 33⅓% of the revenues of the industry compared to 28% in 1921.

This trend of the electric industry is of interest to those seeking sound investments with growth possibilities. The achievement of dealers in cooperation with employees of the Associated System in the face of conditions generally unfavorable to business expansion shows that the utilities are an important influence in leading the way back to business recovery.

MORE CHEERFUL TONE IS HEARD IN STEEL MART

rst Increase in Ingot Output Since March.

New York, Aug. 2.—(AP)—A more cheerful tone was apparent in the steel market last week as the result of the first increase in ingot production since March.

The rate is now estimated at 32 per cent of capacity, as compared with 30 per cent a week ago, but the improvement was regarded as reflecting more production on large structural orders booked earlier in the season than new business.

However, the trade is looking to maintenance of a steady rate during the current month, but with automobile plants shut down and tin plate output reduced there is said to be slight indication for further increase activity before September. Prices held steady. Pig iron is quiet and steady.

Copper Market Dull.

Copper remained dull with domestic buyers holding off owing to renewed weakness of London which was reflected by appearance of offerings here at concessions through second hand sources. Large producers however, maintained quotations on the basis of 8 cents for electrolytic delivered in the Connecticut valley and were not inclined to press sales, owing to reports that a foreign producer would curtail output further. Sales for export were moderate.

Tin prices fluctuated narrowly and irregularly in a quiet market. Moderate buying in nearby positions accounted for a steadier tone at the close of the week. Offerings in more distant deliveries were relatively scarce reflecting firmness in the far east.

Lead Prices Steady.

Lead held steady, although dull, with demand limited to small orders for immediate shipment. Sellers, however, maintained quotations firmly on an expectation that unfilled tonnage to be covered for August would result in improved buying.

Although demand for zinc was restricted, sellers held steady owing to a rather tight ore situation.

American Sugar Refining.

Will you kindly give me information on American Sugar Refining company 6 per cent bonds, due 1937?—A. D. K.

American Sugar Refining company is one of the leading units in the sugar refining industry in the United States. Its package sugars are sold under the trade names "Domino" and "Franklin." About 12 per cent of its requirements are supplied by its own plantations.

It holds about 24 per cent of the capital stock of National Sugar Refining company, 50 per cent of the stock of Spreckles Sugar company and 26.6 per cent of Michigan Sugar company capital stock.

Amount available for fixed charges from 1925 through 1930 varied from a low of $5,618,741 in 1927 to a high of $8,571,301 in 1929. Fixed charges in the same period ranged from a low of $1,505,937 in 1930 to a high of $1,925,498 in 1929. Fixed charges in 1930 were covered 4.76 times, against 4.45 times in 1929 and 4.66 times in 1928.

Production quota of Cuba for the 1931 sugar crop was cut about 36.5 per cent under average production for 1929 and 1930 in a decree signed by President Machado of Cuba to restrict excessive production. Distribution in the United States was also restricted.

The company has continued to maintain a strong current position. On Dec. 31, 1930, current assets were $59,420,556, and current liabilities were $5,347,597. Cash and short term loans were $19,489,208. Working capital was $54,072,959, against $57,909,091 the year before.

The $13,873,000 fifteen year 6 per cent debentures, due 1937, were issued in the amount of $30,000,000 in December, 1921, to pay current bank indebtedness. A sudden fall in sugar prices came at a time when the company was engaged in an expansion program. They are a direct obligation of the company but are not secured by a mortgage. The company agrees not to mortgage any of its fixed assets without securing this issue at least equally.

The company retired $5,000,000 of bonds on Jan. 1, 1931. These bonds constitute the company's only funded debt. They are reasonably sound.

Gold-Platinum Dredge.

This company was organized to dredge for gold along the beach of Nome, Alaska. After operations had started it was found that as the overlying gravel and sand were removed by the dredge the next wave would cover up the spot. All assets of the company were swept out to sea by storm in the winter of 1911 or 1912. Several of the largest stockholders were members of the crew operating the dredge. Apparently the company's stock is worthless.

The trade today will have the pri... ...vate reports on spring wheat, which are expected to show 125,000,000 bu or more short of last year. Private estimates on the western Canadian report ...expected 174,000,000 to 200,000,000 bu for the three provinces, against 374,... ...000,000 bu harvested last year.
